25 Feared Dead In Plane Crash

Four Passengers From U.S. Aboard Mexican Airliner

MEXICO CITY, March 8 (AP) — A Mexican airliner with 25 persons aboard crashed in flames today. It set fire to a mountainside forest near Mexico's West Coast. Among the passengers were four from the United States.

Rescue workers reported the forest fire prevented them from approaching the burned wreckage. All aboard were believed killed.

The plane was flying from Puerto Vallarta, on the Pacific Coast, to Mexico City. The crash occurred 16 miles north of Mascota, in the state of Jalisco.

It was the second major air crash in Mexico in 24 hours. Jorge Pasquel, millionaire Mexican sportsman, and five other persons were killed last night when Pasquel's private plane crashed in the mountainous state of San Luis Potosi. Pasquel led a raid on American baseball talent in 1946 and succeeded in getting several major league stars to jump to the Mexican League.

The crashed DC3 belonged to Compania Mexicana de Aviacion, a subsidiary of Pan American World Airways. First reports from the scene said the plane crashed into a mountain, burst into flames and set fire to the surrounding forest.

A rescue plane belonging to the airline left Mexico City for the Mascota area. A ground rescue party also set out for the crash scene but it was not expected to reach the area until tomorrow morning.

Mascota is about 500 miles west of Mexico City.

CMA officials said the pilot of the plane was Capt. Oscar Iriarte and called him one of the line's most experienced fliers.

Betty Hutton, 34, Takes Third Mate

LAS VEGAS, Nev., March 8 (AP)—Singer-actress Betty Hutton, 34, and Alan W. Livingston, 37, recording company executive, were married today.

The marriage, her third, was performed before a few relatives and friends by Dist. Judge Frank McNamee at the Desert Inn Hotel.

Jack Doyle, hotel executive, and Mrs. Helen Steffens, Las Vegas businesswoman, attended the couple. Miss Hutton's mother, Mrs. Gilbert Adams of Los Angeles, and Livingston's mother, Mrs. M. H. Livingston of Beverly Hills, were present.

The bouncy comedienne startled Hollywood last November by announcing her retirement from "the heartbreaks of show business." She said, "I'm going to be married."

Three months later the ebullient blonde said she was restless and bored. She said she had decided to return to show business.

Hike In Military Pay Is Approved By House Group

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP)—The House Armed Services Committee voted 30-0 today to give career men in the armed services pay raises running from 6 to 25 per cent.

House approval is expected Thursday, with Senate action to follow. President Eisenhower asked the legislation, in order to cut down on what military officials described as a dangerous and expensive loss of good men who leave for jobs in private life.

The pay raises, averaging an estimated 11.9 per cent, would become effective on the first day of the month after the bill has been signed into law.

Cost 745 Million Year

The House committee adopted without change a subcommittee version of the measure which finally will add about 19 million dollars a year to original Pentagon estimates. This will bring the cost to about 745 million dollars a year.

The congressmen voted to increase the pay boosts in some categories, and Rep. Short (R-Mo) reminded officers that "Congress has been more generous than the Department of Defense."

The bill boosts pay for all enlisted men and warrant officers with more than two years' service and all commissioned officers with over three years' duty.

"Dislocation Allowance"

The measure increases special monthly pay for hazardous air and submarine duty, establishes a new "dislocation allowance" of one month's pay for service families making a permanent change of station and boosts the daily travel allowance from $9 to $12.

Officers of second lieutenant grade with over three years of service would get the top 25 per cent increase. This would raise their pay $59.28 a month to $296.40.

Privates with over two years of service would get $7.80 more a month for a total of $98.80 and sergeants with over eight years' duty would go up $26.99 to $202.80 a month.

Nationalists To Treble Strength In Matsus

TAIPEI, Formosa, March 8 (AP)—Official quarters today indicated that as many as 15,000 men will be thrown into the defenses of the Matsu Islands, threatened by a Communist invasion.

Insisting that the islands 100 miles northwest of Formosa will be defended, they put out the word that the strength of the defenders would be trebled. The garrison now is estimated at 5,000.

Some Brokers Blame Inquiry As Market Falls

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP)—The stock market broke sharply today following testimony before the Senate Banking Committee that stock buying ought to be put on a cash basis, that there is too much speculation.

However, Chairman Fulbright (D-Ark) of the committee said of the market drop:

"I think it has no connection whatever with the study being made by this committee. I can't imagine how there would be any connection."

Safeguards Urged

Some New York brokers attributed the sell-off in the market to testimony today by John Kenneth Galbraith, professor of economics at Harvard University, who urged "strongest precautionary measures" to prevent a repetition of the disastrous market crash of 1929.

While saying there is too much speculation, Galbraith added there are some "formidable safeguards" against a 1929-type crash.

A reporter referred to Galbraith's testimony as "gloomy," but Fulbright said:

"It wasn't a gloomy statement. He only said we should be cautious. We should be cautious when we are walking across the street."

In urging "strongest precautionary measures" to avoid a bust such as occurred in 1929, Galbraith told the committee that "prevention rather than cure is our best hope."

Galbraith Backed Up

Galbraith is the author of a book "The Great Crash" to be published next month, dealing with the 1929 crash.

Harold E. Wood of St. Paul, Minn., chairman of the board of governors of the National Assn. of Securities Dealers, Inc., followed Galbraith on the witness stand and was asked by Fulbright whether there "is too much speculation in the present market."

"There are evidences of speculation and we don't like it," Wood replied.

"That's very reassuring that you're worried about it," Fulbright told Wood.

LAS VEGAS, Nev., March 8 (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission today postponed the next shot in the present test series until at least Thursday.

New Farm Fight Brews In House

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — Another farm fight brewed today in the House, where the Agriculture Committee approved a bill to restore major price supports at 90 per cent of parity.

The vote was 23-11, crossing party lines, and Chairman Cooley (D-NC) predicted House passage of the legislation.

After a long struggle in Congress last year, the Eisenhower administration succeeded in scrapping the war-born law calling for high price supports on "basic" commodities. Substituted was a measure providing a more flexible system ranging from 82½ to 90 per cent of parity.

Parity is a standard of fixing farm prices, declared by law to give producers a fair return in relation to the price of things they buy.

The new House legislation would reinstate 90 per cent supports for wheat, rice, cotton, corn and peanuts. Tobacco, the sixth basic crop, is supported at 90 per cent under a special law.

Robert Cutler Resigns As Ike Security Aide

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP)—President Eisenhower today accepted the resignation of Robert Cutler as his special assistant for national security affairs. He announced Dillon Anderson, Houston, Tex., attorney, will succeed Cutler April 1.

Priest's Ouster Retaliatory Move, Russia Informs U.S.

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — Russia told the United States today it expelled the Rev. George Bissonnette, Roman Catholic priest, because the United States refused to permit a Russian Orthodox priest, Archbishop Boris, to remain in the United States.

At the State Department it was learned the United States would have allowed Boris to make frequent visits to the American branch of the Russian church, but officials declined to allow him to remain indefinitely.

One reason was that they considered the Russian church to be serving political aims of the Soviet government.

The Soviet foreign office handed a blunt note to the American embassy in Moscow today. It was the first time the Russians stated their reasons for ousting Father Bissonnette from Moscow last week.

The Russians advised Father Bissonnette to get out of Russia by last Saturday, after the State Department had notified the Soviet embassy that Archbishop Boris would not be given a visa to stay in the United States indefinitely. Boris was here on a 60-day visa, which expired Feb. 28, on affairs of the American branch of the Russian Church.

State Department officials said the reason of retaliation given by the Russians was not legally a sufficient reason to forbid the American Catholic priest to remain in Moscow to serve Americans in the U.S. embassy there. Several years ago the church in which Father Bissonnette's predecessor held services, which Russians could attend, was denied to him. Thereafter all such services were held in a private apartment with Americans only in attendance.

Senate Battle Over Tax Cut Set Tomorrow

Knowland Predicts Rejection Of Demo Plan For $20 Slash

WASHINGTON, March 18 (AP)—Republican leaders expressed renewed confidence today that the Senate will turn back a Democratic drive to reduce income taxes by $20 a person. The showdown could come early next week.

Fight Starts Thursday

A short time later Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson (Tex) announced in the Senate that the bitterly debated tax measure will be taken up Thursday. He commented "many members will want to express their views" and said no vote would be called before Monday.

Democrats supporting the general income tax cut were given until Wednesday midnight to send in more ammunition. The six Finance Committee Democrats who voted for the $20 provision originally were to have submitted their report at noon today, but the Senate agreed unanimously to extend the deadline.

Byrd, George Voted With GOP

Two other Democrats on the committee—Chairman Byrd (Va) and George (Ga)—sided last week with the seven GOP members to disapprove the section of a House measure which has caused all the argument. It would allow a $20 credit for every income taxpayer and dependent, beginning next Jan. 1.

The reduction would cost an estimated $2,200,000,000 in revenue. Democratic votes in the House forced the provision into an administration bill to continue for another year present corporate and excise tax rates. Without legislation, those rates will drop April 1 at a loss to the Treasury of some three billion dollars.

Ohio Flood Crest Nears Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, March 8 (AP)—The crest of a "major" Ohio River flood rolled closer to the heavily populated Cincinnati area today. But the U.S. Engineers reiterated "there has been nothing like a catastrophe."

The principal development today was a revision in the U.S. Weather Bureau's forecast of the crest here of from 61 feet to 61.5 feet. That would be 9.5 feet above flood stage.

Meteorologist A. W. Walstrom said the upward revision of the crest came because the Big Sandy and Guyandot Rivers, draining the West Virginia mountain area, are pouring more water into the Ohio than had been expected.

The river already is in many low lying streets and still has more than two feet to go to reach the predicted crest, due early Thursday.

Col. J. L. Person of the U.S. Engineers, said the damage up and down the river would run into millions of dollars but floodwalls and dams have reduced the potential damage.

Second Ft. Dix Soldier Dies Of Blood Infection

FT. DIX, N.J., March 8 (AP) — A 21-year-old soldier, in the Army barely a month, died today of a blood stream infection that already has claimed one other life at Ft. Dix.

The latest victim was Pvt. Richard A. Robinson of Norwell, Mass., who had been transferred by plane Friday night for treatment at Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D.C.

He died there this morning of what the Army described as meningococcemia, a blood stream infection. The first victim, was Pvt. Irwin Weinrib, 18, of Far Rockaway, N.Y.

Weinrib's death touched off a probe of Ft. Dix medical treatment and health conditions by the Army and an investigator from a House Armed Services subcommittee.

Harry James' Dad Dies

HOLLYWOOD, March 8 (AP) — Harry James' father, onetime circus bandmaster who taught his son to play the trumpet, died last night of a heart attack.

A Bit Of Louisville For France

A homemade Louisville, Ky., flag to be sent to Montpellier, France, is examined by (from left) David Tinsley, 9, and Shirley Longon, 11, pupils; Miss Bright Middleton, the teacher who made the flag, and the Rev. Alfred F. Horrigan, president of Bellarmine College, who will take it to France. The flag is being sent to Montpellier as part of a program calling for an exchange of cultural information between Louisville and the French city. When it was learned the flag would cost $70, Miss Middleton was tapped to make one. It cost $5.

Isle Withdrawal By Nationalists Urged By Eden

LONDON, March 8 (AP) — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden disclosed today Britain's secret negotiations for a Formosa cease-fire have bogged down. He called on Nationalist China to open the way for a settlement by surrendering the off-shore islands.

Eden told the House of Commons his soundings of Peiping show "The necessary conditions for progress" toward ending the China war "do not yet exist."

But he said secret contacts with Russia and Red China are continuing in an effort to get a Formosa cease-fire through "a conference or other discussions."

Eden's disclosures came during a report on his meeting with U.S. Secretary of State Dulles at the Bangkok conference and his 16-day swing through capitals of Southeast Asia and the Middle East.

Warning that further fighting in the Formosa Strait could lead to "grave" consequences, Eden urged Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists to take two steps:

"First, we would like to see them withdraw their armed forces from the other coastal islands (Quemoy and Matsu). Secondly, they should let it be known that they...while maintaining their claims, will not prosecute them by forceful means, and will abstain from all offensive military action."

Eden appealed to Red China to refrain from attacking Quemoy and Matsu and "to make apparent" that it does not intend to take Formosa by force.

Amid cheers both sides of the House, the foreign secretary promised that a peaceful Formosa settlement would result in the West giving fresh consideration to Red China's claims to a seat in the United Nations.

Eden's apparent call for immediate Chinese Nationalist evacuation of Quemoy and Matsu indicated he still disagrees with Dulles over immediate disposition of the islands—despite efforts at Bangkok to smooth over the rift.

Eisenhower Library Planned At Abilene

ABILENE, Kan., March 8 (AP)—The Eisenhower Foundation today announced plans for the construction in Abilene of a presidential library to house the official papers of President Eisenhower.

The foundation, organized to promote citizenship and to honor veterans of America's wars, announced from its headquarters in the President's home town it has received assurance that President Eisenhower "will be happy to deposit his papers in the library."

Faure Wins First Test

PARIS, March 8 (AP)—The two-week-old government of Premier Edgar Faure tonight won its first parliamentary battle.

The victory came when the National Assembly accepted limited increases in budget funds for government employes and retired civil servants. The government of former Premier Pierre Mendes-France was turned down on the same issue.

Burglar Leaves Money In Purse

PASADENA, Calif., March 8 (AP) —The case of the beneficient burglar had police scratching their heads today.

Mrs. Selene Smith Royer, 69, complained to officers that for the last month someone had been breaking into her home at night and leaving money in her purse.

She turned over $49 to police—the total contribution for the month, she said. She told officers she was afraid she'd be harmed if she kept it.

PRR And Union Settle Dispute

PHILADELPHIA, March 8 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Rail Road and the CIO Transport Workers Union reached a settlement tonight in a dispute which had threatened a strike of 20,000 maintenance workers on the nation's largest railroad.

A TWU spokesman called it "a terrific agreement." He said the union will strive for similar pacts with other railroads.

J. E. McFarland, superintendent of personnel of the railroad, said "mediation has been successfully consummated. We have reached an amicable agreement with TWU on the issues involved."

The strike by the non-operating workers had been called for last Sunday and then postponed in an effort to come to a settlement.

The dispute centered around a union claim the company had furloughed many workers needlessly. Twelve thousand TWU members who worked for the Pennsy are now out of work, according to Andrew J. Kaelin, TWU international vice president.

One section of the agreement, which the union called "a major concession," was the company's move to reinstate 20 maintenance workers furloughed from its Conway, Pa., repair shops.

Reds In Position To Attack Isles, Newsmen Told

TOKYO, March 8 (AP)—A top U.S. military leader said today the Communists are in position to attack the Nationalist Chinese offshore islands of Quemoy and the Matsus at any time.

The Chinese Communists have reinforced air units in the area and have moved in ground troops to positions near the islands, the officer, who cannot be named, told correspondents.

Should the Communists attack, he emphasized, the decision to defend them with U.S. forces is up to the President of the United States.

The officer said he thought Western observers were inclined to overrate the Red Chinese military.

He observed that while the Communists have a large ground force they lack the structure—presumably industrial—to support a great military machine.

The officer indicated a U.S. decision was still to be made whether to defend Quemoy, across the strait from Formosa, and the Matsus, 100 miles northwest of Formosa. Quemoy is only 7 miles from the Red port of Amoy and the Matsus are 20 miles offshore.

Chinese Nationalist quarters on Formosa this week appear confident U.S. aid will be forthcoming should the Reds attack.

Secretary of State Dulles has said the United States will fight for Quemoy and the Matsus if convinced the Communists are trying to seize them as stepping stones for an attack on Formosa.

Floods In Four States Damage 2,658 Homes

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — The Red Cross estimated tonight flooding rivers in four states have damaged the homes or other property of 2,658 families.

Reports from Red Cross workers in Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky and Indiana said about 295 persons are being given food and clothing at Red Cross disaster shelters.

New Weapons Ready To Meet Any Challenge

Secretary Declares Peiping Determined To Annex Formosa

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said tonight the Red Chinese seem bent on conquering Formosa, but he warned them the United States has new "weapons of precision" which can annihilate their military centers.

He said the United States, pledged to defense of Formosa, stands ready "to meet hostile force with the greater force that we possess."

In a speech prepared for nationwide radio-TV broadcast, Dulles did not name the new weapons. But he said they can be so pinpointed as to "utterly destroy military targets without endangering unrelated civilian centers."

This could mean "baby" atomic bombs, or guided missiles—or something not yet disclosed. His mention of not endangering civilian centers could be taken as a form of assurance to those—some American allies among them—who oppose the use of hydrogen bombs or conventional A-bombs as indiscriminate slaughter.

No Need For Ultimate Weapons

It also could be taken as a warning to any Red Chinese leaders who might figure they would be safe in launching an attack because the United States would never risk world-wide revulsion by the use of massive atomic or hydrogen weapons. Dulles was saying in effect that there would be no need to use these ultimate weapons, that others would suffice.

Dulles' speech was a report on his just-completed tour of Asian countries and the Far Pacific.

Red China, he said, seems "determined to try to conquer Formosa," and is spreading the propaganda that the United States is only a "paper tiger."

While practicing restraint against such taunts, Dulles continued, the United States must not let the free people of Asia get the idea that "our love of peace means peace at any price."

U. S. Prepared To Stand Firm

"We must, if occasion offers, make it clear that we are prepared to stand firm," he said, "and, if necessary, meet hostile force with the greater force that we possess."

If the Chinese Communists engage in open armed aggression," he said, "this would probably mean that they have decided on general war in Asia."

"They would then have to take into account the mutual defense treaties of the United States with the Republic of Korea and the Republic of China, and the forces maintained under them.

"Thus general war would confront the Chinese Communists with tasks at the south, center and north, tasks which would strain their inadequate means of transportation.

"The allied nations possess together plenty of power in the area. The United States in particular has sea and air forces now equipped with new and powerful weapons of precision, which can utterly destroy military targets without endangering unrelated civilian centers."

Drink-Crazed Man Shoots Two, Kills Self

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., March 8 (AP)—A man, described by police as drink-crazed, shot and wounded a mother and her daughter and then killed himself today in the laundry room of the Penn Hall Junior College for Girls.

H. S. Byers, chief of police, said Joseph Knight, 41-year-old Army Ordnance depot foreman, shot himself to death with the same pistol he used to wound seriously Mrs. Mabel Ankerbrand, 56, and her daughter, Mrs. Hanna Mowen, 38, both of Chambersburg.

Mrs. Mowen was reported in critical condition at Chambersburg Hospital suffering with six bullet wounds of the chest, arm and hand.

Mrs. Ankerbrand was shot in the hip. Her condition was listed as serious.

Bones In Fire Ruins

ELKINS, W. Va., March 8 (AP)—Bones, believed to be human, were found in the charred remains of a home in the Randolph County mining community of Monterville after an early morning fire today, authorities said.

Prosecutor Robert E. Maxwell said the remains are believed to be those of Wirt Ball, about 68, a retired miner who lived in the home. Maxwell said a complete investigation will be held.

Wilson Says Strength Best Answer To CD Problems

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — Secretary of Defense Wilson said today he thinks the best answer to civil defense problems is for the United States "to be so strong that no enemy dare to attack."

Wilson gave that sum-up at a news conference where he was peppered with a series of speculative questions such as whether martial law would be required in event of atomic attack. He said some kind of "local martial law" might be needed at target centers.

The civil defense people, Wilson commented," are struggling with a very difficult problem" which keeps changing.

In answer to questions Wilson also said:

1. He does not believe the Chinese Communists have the capability to invade Formosa successfully but he would not want to underestimate them. "The Asian peoples have ways of doing things that are unpredictable," he said.

2. If the Communists should take the offshore islands of Matsu and Quemoy it would handicap the defense of Formosa but "in the long run would not make too much difference in the result."

3. As far as we know the Russians up to now have produced no test hydrogen explosions "of the magnitude" of those tested by the United States.

4. In over-all progress in the atomic weapons field "I personally do not believe they are nearly as far along as our country is."

5. He was asked about reports that the March 1, 1954, test at Bikini involved use of a hydrogen bomb with raw uranium to boost its power. His answer was that "the super bomb was bad enough and I don't think we gain anything in talking about it."

One reason was that they considered the Russian church to be serving political aims of the Soviet government.

The Soviet foreign office handed a blunt note to the American embassy in Moscow today. It was the first time the Russians stated their reasons for ousting Father Bissonnette from Moscow last week.

The Russians advised Father Bissonnette to get out of Russia by last Saturday, after the State Department had notified the Soviet embassy that Archbishop Boris would not be given a visa to stay in the United States indefinitely. Boris was here on a 60-day visa, which expired Feb. 28, on affairs of the American branch of the Russian Church.

State Department officials said the reason of retaliation given by the Russians was not legally a sufficient reason to forbid the American Catholic priest to remain in Moscow to serve Americans in the U.S. embassy, there. Several years ago the church in which Father Bissonnette's predecessor held services, which Russians could attend, was denied to him. Thereafter all such services were held in a private apartment with Americans only in attendance.

Senate Battle Over Tax Cut Set Tomorrow

Knowland Predicts Rejection Of Demo Plan For $20 Slash

WASHINGTON, March 18 (AP)—Republican leaders expressed renewed confidence today that the Senate will turn back a Democratic drive to reduce income taxes by $20 a person. The showdown could come early next week.

Fight Starts Thursday

A short time later Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson (Tex) announced in the Senate that the bitterly debated tax measure will be taken up Thursday. He commented "many members will want to express their views" and said no vote would be called before Monday.

Democrats supporting the general income tax cut were given until Wednesday midnight to send in more ammunition. The six Finance Committee Democrats who voted for the $20 provision originally were to have submitted their report at noon today, but the Senate agreed unanimously to extend the deadline.

Byrd, George Voted With GOP

Two other Democrats on the committee—Chairman Byrd (Va) and George (Ga)—sided last week with the seven GOP members to disapprove the section of a House measure which has caused all the argument. It would allow a $20 credit for every income taxpayer and dependent, beginning next Jan. 1.

The reduction would cost an estimated $2,200,000,000 in revenue. Democratic votes in the House forced the provision into an administration bill to continue for another year present corporate and excise tax rates. Without legislation, those rates will drop April 1 at a loss to the Treasury of some three billion dollars.

Ohio Flood Crest Nears Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, March 8 (AP)—The crest of a "major" Ohio River flood rolled closer to the heavily populated Cincinnati area today. But the U.S. Engineers reiterated "there has been nothing like a catastrophe."

The principal development today was a revision in the U.S. Weather Bureau's forecast of the crest here of from 61 feet to 61.5 feet. That would be 9.5 feet above flood stage.

Meteorologist A. W. Walstrom said the upward revision of the crest came because the Big Sandy and Guyandot Rivers, draining the West Virginia mountain area, are pouring more water into the Ohio than had been expected.

The river already is in many low lying streets and still has more than two feet to go to reach the predicted crest, due early Thursday.

Col. J. L. Person of the U.S. Engineers, said the damage up and down the river would run into millions of dollars but floodwalls and dams have reduced the potential damage.

Second Ft. Dix Soldier Dies Of Blood Infection

FT. DIX, N.J., March 8 (AP)—A 21-year-old soldier, in the Army barely a month, died today of a blood stream infection that already has claimed one other life at Ft. Dix.

The latest victim was Pvt. Richard A. Robinson of Norwell, Mass., who had been transferred by plane Friday night for treatment at Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D.C.

He died there this morning of what the Army described as meningococcemia, a blood stream infection. The first victim, was Pvt. Irwin Weinrib, 18, of Far Rockaway, N.Y.

Weinrib's death touched off a probe of Ft. Dix medical treatment and health conditions by the Army and an investigator from a House Armed Services subcommittee.

Harry James' Dad Dies

A Bit Of Louisville For France

A homemade Louisville, Ky., flag to be sent to Montpellier, France, is examined by (from left) David Tinsley, 9, and Shirley Longon, 11, pupils; Miss Bright Middleton, the teacher who made the flag, and the Rev. Alfred F. Horrigan, president of Bellarmine College, who will take it to France. The flag is being sent to Montpellier as part of a program calling for an exchange of cultural information between Louisville and the French city. When it was learned the flag would cost $70, Miss Middleton was tapped to make one. It cost $5.

Isle Withdrawal By Nationalists Urged By Eden

LONDON, March 8 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden disclosed today Britain's secret negotiations for a Formosa cease-fire have bogged down. He called on Nationalist China to open the way for a settlement by surrendering the off-shore islands.

Eden told the House of Commons his soundings of Peiping show "The necessary conditions for progress" toward ending the China war "do not yet exist."

But he said secret contacts with Russia and Red China are continuing in an effort to get a Formosa cease-fire through "a conference or other discussions."

Eden's disclosures came during a report on his meeting with U.S. Secretary of State Dulles at the Bangkok conference and his 16-day swing through capitals of Southeast Asia and the Middle East.

Warning that further fighting in the Formosa Strait could lead to "grave" consequences, Eden urged Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists to take two steps:

"First, we would like to see them withdraw their armed forces from the other coastal islands (Quemoy and Matsu). Secondly, they should let it be known that they...while maintaining their claims, will not prosecute them by forceful means, and will abstain from all offensive military action."

Eden appealed to Red China to refrain from attacking Quemoy and Matsu and "to make apparent" that it does not intend to take Formosa by force.

Amid cheers both sides of the House, the foreign secretary promised that a peaceful Formosa settlement would result in the West giving fresh consideration to Red China's claims to a seat in the United Nations.

Eden's apparent call for immediate Chinese Nationalist evacuation of Quemoy and Matsu indicated he still disagrees with Dulles over immediate disposition of the islands—despite efforts at Bangkok to smooth over the rift.

Eisenhower Library Planned At Abilene

ABILENE, Kan., March 8 (AP)—The Eisenhower Foundation today announced plans for the construction in Abilene of a presidential library to house the official papers of President Eisenhower.

The foundation, organized to promote citizenship and to honor veterans of America's wars, announced from its headquarters in the President's home town it has received assurance that President Eisenhower "will be happy to deposit his papers in the library."

Faure Wins First Test

PARIS, March 8 (AP)—The two-week-old government of Premier Edgar Faure tonight won its first parliamentary battle.

The victory came when the National Assembly accepted limited increases in budget funds for government employes and retired civil servants. The government of former Premier Pierre Mendes-France was turned down on the same issue.

Burglar Leaves Money In Purse

PASADENA, Calif., March 8 (AP)—The case of the beneficient burglar had police scratching their heads today.

Mrs. Selene Smith Royer, 69, complained to officers that for the last month someone had been breaking into her home at night and leaving money in her purse.

She turned over $49 to police—the total contribution for the month, she said. She told officers she was afraid she'd be harmed if she kept it.

PRR And Union Settle Dispute

PHILADELPHIA, March 8 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Rail Road and the CIO Transport Workers Union reached a settlement tonight in a dispute which had threatened a strike of 20,000 maintenance workers on the nation's largest railroad.

A TWU spokesman called it "a terrific agreement." He said the union will strive for similar pacts with other railroads.

J. E. McFarland, superintendent of personnel of the railroad, said "mediation has been successfully consummated. We have reached an amicable agreement with TWU on the issues involved."

The strike by the non-operating workers had been called for last Sunday and then postponed in an effort to come to a settlement.

The dispute centered around a union claim the company had furloughed many workers needlessly. Twelve thousand TWU members who worked for the Pennsy are now out of work, according to Andrew J. Kaelin, TWU international vice president.

One section of the agreement, which the union called "a major concession," was the company's move to reinstate 20 maintenance workers furloughed from its Conway, Pa., repair shops.

Reds In Position To Attack Isles, Newsmen Told

TOKYO, March 8 (AP)—A top U.S. military leader said today the Communists are in position to attack the Nationalist Chinese offshore islands of Quemoy and the Matsus at any time.

The Chinese Communists have reinforced air units in the area and have moved in ground troops to positions near the islands, the officer, who cannot be named, told correspondents.

Should the Communists attack, he emphasized, the decision to defend them with U.S. forces is up to the President of the United States.

The officer said he thought Western observers were inclined to overrate the Red Chinese military.

He observed that while the Communists have a large ground force they lack the structure—presumably industrial—to support a great military machine.

The officer indicated a U.S. decision was still to be made whether to defend Quemoy, across the strait from Formosa, and the Matsus, 100 miles northwest of Formosa. Quemoy is only 7 miles from the Red port of Amoy and the Matsus are 20 miles offshore.

Chinese Nationalist quarters on Formosa this week appear confident U.S. aid will be forthcoming should the Reds attack.

Secretary of State Dulles has said the United States will fight for Quemoy and the Matsus if convinced the Communists are trying to seize them as stepping stones for an attack on Formosa.

Floods In Four States Damage 2,658 Homes

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP)—The Red Cross estimated tonight flooding rivers in four states have damaged the homes or other property of 2,658 families.

Reports from Red Cross workers in Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky and Indiana said about 295 persons are being given food and clothing at Red Cross disaster shelters.

Wilson Says Strength Best Answer To CD Problems

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson said today he thinks the best answer to civil defense problems is for the United States "to be so strong that no enemy dare to attack."

Wilson gave that sum-up at a news conference where he was peppered with a series of speculative questions such as whether martial law would be required in event of atomic attack. He said some kind of "local martial law" might be needed at target centers.

The civil defense people, Wilson commented," are struggling with a very difficult problem" which keeps changing.

In answer to questions Wilson also said:

1. He does not believe the Chinese Communists have the capability to invade Formosa successfully but he would not want to underestimate them. "The Asian peoples have ways of doing things that are unpredictable," he said.

2. If the Communists should take the offshore islands of Matsu and Quemoy it would handicap the defense of Formosa but "in the long run would not make too much difference in the result."

3. As far as we know the Russians up to now have produced no test hydrogen explosions "of the magnitude" of those tested by the United States.

4. In over-all progress in the atomic weapons field "I personally do not believe they are nearly as far along as our country is."

5. He was asked about reports that the March 1, 1954, test at Bikini involved use of a hydrogen bomb with raw uranium to boost its power. His answer was that "the super bomb was bad enough and I don't think we gain anything in talking about it."

New Weapons Ready To Meet Any Challenge

Secretary Declares Peiping Determined To Annex Formosa

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said tonight the Red Chinese seem bent on conquering Formosa, but he warned them the United States has new "weapons of precision" which can annihilate their military centers.

He said the United States, pledged to defense of Formosa, stands ready "to meet hostile force with the greater force that we possess."

In a speech prepared for nationwide radio-TV broadcast, Dulles did not name the new weapons. But he said they can be so pinpointed as to "utterly destroy military targets without endangering unrelated civilian centers."

This could mean "baby" atomic bombs, or guided missiles—or something not yet disclosed. His mention of not endangering civilian centers could be taken as a form of assurance to those—some American allies among them—who oppose the use of hydrogen bombs or conventional A-bombs as indiscriminate slaughter.

No Need For Ultimate Weapons

It also could be taken as a warning to any Red Chinese leaders who might figure they would be safe in launching an attack because the United States would never risk world-wide revulsion by the use of massive atomic or hydrogen weapons. Dulles was saying in effect that there would be no need to use these ultimate weapons, that others would suffice.

Dulles' speech was a report on his just-completed tour of Asian countries and the Far Pacific.

Red China, he said, seems "determined to try to conquer Formosa," and is spreading the propaganda that the United States is only a "paper tiger."

While practicing restraint against such taunts, Dulles continued, the United States must not let the free people of Asia get the idea that "our love of peace means peace at any price."

U. S. Prepared To Stand Firm

"We must, if occasion offers, make it clear that we are prepared to stand firm," he said, "and, if necessary, meet hostile force with the greater force that we possess."

If the Chinese Communists engage in open armed aggression," he said, "this would probably mean that they have decided on general war in Asia."

"They would then have to take into account the mutual defense treaties of the United States with the Republic of Korea and the Republic of China, and the forces maintained under them.

"Thus general war would confront the Chinese Communists with tasks at the south, center and north, tasks which would strain their inadequate means of transportation.

"The allied nations possess together plenty of power in the area. The United States in particular has sea and air forces now equipped with new and powerful weapons of precision, which can utterly destroy military targets without endangering unrelated civilian centers."

Drink-Crazed Man Shoots Two, Kills Self

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., March 8 (AP)—A man, described by police as drink-crazed, shot and wounded a mother and her daughter and then killed himself today in the laundry room of the Penn Hall Junior College for Girls.

H. S. Byers, chief of police, said Joseph Knight, 41-year-old Army Ordnance depot foreman, shot himself to death with the same pistol he used to wound seriously Mrs. Mabel Ankerbrand, 56, and her daughter, Mrs. Hanna Mowen, 38, both of Chambersburg.

Mrs. Mowen was reported in critical condition at Chambersburg Hospital suffering with six bullet wounds of the chest, arm and hand.

Mrs. Ankerbrand was shot in the hip. Her condition was listed as serious.

Bones In Fire Ruins

ELKINS, W. Va., March 8 (AP)—Bones, believed to be human, were found in the charred remains of a home in the Randolph County mining community of Monterville after an early morning fire today, authorities said.

Prosecutor Robert E. Maxwell said the remains are believed to be those of Wirt Ball, about 68, a retired miner who lived in the home. Maxwell said a complete investigation will be held.

Congress Told:

Reds Plot To "Hamstring" FBI's Informant System

Current Attack On Government Witnesses Cited

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP)—Communists are plotting to "hamstring" the FBI's informant system, Asst. Atty.-Gen. William F. Tompkins told Congress today.

"It is becoming increasingly clear," he reported to a Senate Government Operations subcommittee, "that the current attack against government witnesses and informants of the FBI has its roots in a Communist effort."

The Justice Department has been under criticism on the ground that some of its witnesses have been unreliable. Critics have pointed especially to Harvey Matusow, a key government witness in a string of anti-Red proceedings. Matusow now proclaims that he lied.

Tompkins, top internal security aide in the Justice Department, didn't mention Matusow by name.

But before another Senate group Albert E. Kahn, a New York publisher, testified that the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union advanced $1,000 in the hope of getting Matusow to write a book recanting his testimony. Matusow since has become the author of "False Witness," which is being published by Kahn's firm.

The union mentioned was ousted from the CIO in 1949 for alleged Red dominance.

Tompkins appeared before the Government Operations subcommittee as it held a hearing on the government's program for weeding out federal workers deemed to be security risks. He said there have been occasional errors in handling the program, but that it is "basically sound."

"I think the American people want Communists kept out of the government," he told the subcommittee.

"I think this program is keeping Communists out of government and will keep them out," he added.

The subcommittee is considering whether to recommend that a special commission be set up to study whether the government's personnel security regulations need improvement.

Tompkins discussed one of the more frequent suggestions for a change—that accused employes be allowed to confront those who accuse them as security risks.

He said there could be no more effective way of trying to hamstring the FBI informant system "than through the demand for confrontation of witnesses in these non-criminal (security hearings) matters."

"It would be most desirable," he said, "if it could be possible to permit an accused employe to confront his accusers, to know their identity and be able to cross examine all who have given derogatory information about him.

"It should be recognized, however, that this is an unusual situation and it is one where the rights and interests of an individual must be weighed against the security of 160 million people."

BEWILDERED TRAVELER — Leonardo Giampietro, 3-year-old native of Venezuela, sailor suit and all, looks bewildered as he arrived in New York yesterday aboard the liner Constitution from Pacentra, Italy. He is en route to join his father, Antonio, in Coraopolis, Pa. The boy's mother plans to come to the U. S. in September. Leonardo made the ocean crossing in the care of a friend of his mother's.

Publisher Says Leftwing Union Helped Matusow

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — A New York publisher testified today a leftwing union advanced $1,000 to encourage Harvey Matusow to write his book, "False Witness."

The forthcoming book repudiates much of the testimony Matusow gave as a government witness against Reds and alleged Reds.

Albert E. Kahn, the publisher, told the Senate Internal Security subcommittee the $1,000 came from the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union, which was expelled from the CIO in 1949 on the ground it was dominated by Communists.

Kahn related he knew the kind of book Matusow had in mind and in conversation with Nathan Witt, attorney for the union, mentioned that he thought if it were written it would contain material of "considerable interest" to the union.

He said he tried to get an advance order for 10,000 copies from Witt, but that the attorney agreed at first to order only 2,000. The $1,000 was raised in this fashion. Later the union increased its order to 6,700 and paid Kahn's firm $3,250.

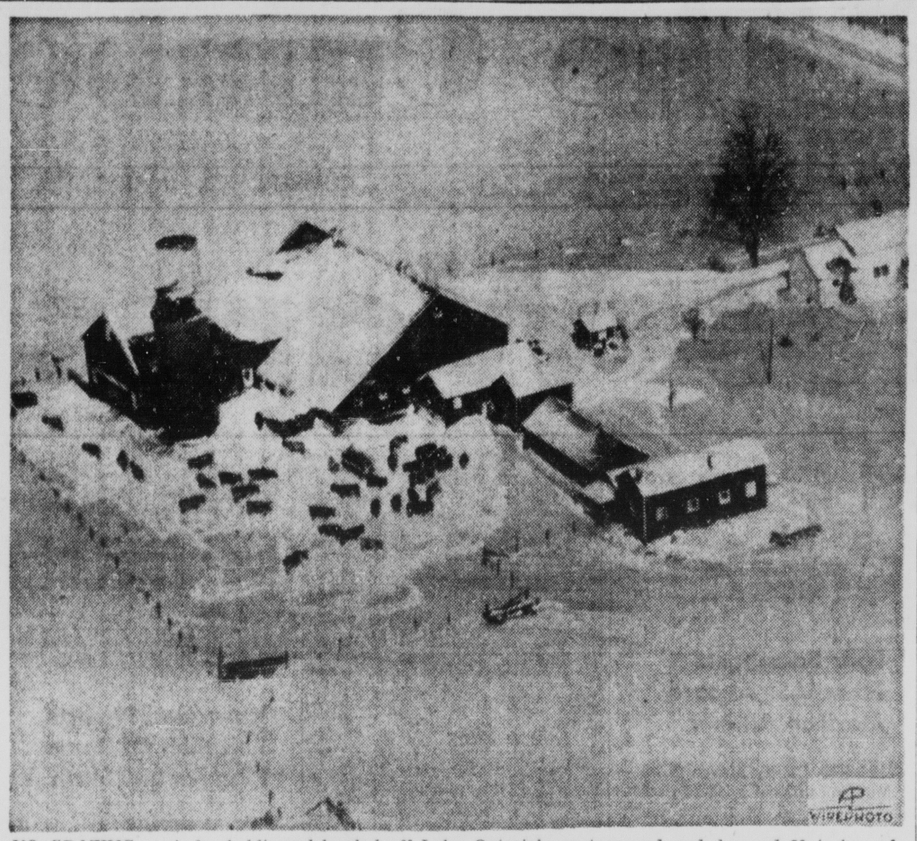
J. D. Sourwine, subcommittee counsel, asked the witness whether it was correct that the original $1,000 was advanced in the hope of getting the book written, with no promise of repayment if the book were not published.

"That's my opinion," Kahn said.

Kahn also testified that Witt approached him about having Matusow sign an affidavit he had given false testimony against Clinton A. Jencks, a union official.

Matusow's testimony helped convict Jencks last year on a charge of falsely swearing to a noncommunist affidavit required by the National Labor Relations Board.

The turnabout witness was in El Paso, Tex., today, testifying before a federal grand jury about his changed story. Jencks has asked for a new trial on the basis of an affidavit Matusow filed Jan. 20.



NO GRAZING — A freak blizzard howled off Lake Ontario's eastern end and dumped 20 inches of snow on three counties. This peaceful scene near Altmar, N. J., in Oswego County, was the result yesterday. Livestock on the farm are shown milling about in the snow-covered barnyard.

Two Women Get Seats On Jelke Vice Trial Jury

NEW YORK, March 8 (AP)—Two women were seated on the jury today at the Cafe Society vice retrial of Mickey Jelke. One, a slight, gray former music teacher, once voted to condemn two men to die.

There were no women jurors at Jelke's first trial in 1953.

Both women took their seats despite a warning by the state that "some of the testimony which will be educed here might be embarrassing to you."

Three men also were selected during the day, bringing to eight the number of persons in the jury box at the close of the second trial day.

One Woman Has Son, 21

Mrs. Annie Johnson, English-born mother of a married daughter, was the first woman selected. She was joined later by Mrs. Marie C. Toland, middle-aged mother of a 21-year-old son.

Mrs. Toland said it wouldn't bother her if trial testimony showed Jelke "sowed wild oats hither and yon, kicked up his heels and cavorted around as a young man may do."

No Women On First Jury

Court sources said Mrs. Johnson was the first woman ever to sit on a special murder panel in New York City. She voted to convict two brothers in a holdup killing several years ago and both died in the electric chair.

By agreement, no women were on the first jury that convicted Jelke of promoting $50 to $100 a night call girls in his wealthy Cafe Society playboy set.

Michener Describes Visit To Red-Threatened Matsus

James A. Michener, author of "Tales of the South Pacific" and other stories of the Far East, describes a visit to the Communist-threatened Matsu Islands off the Red China Coast. Michener's story was made available to The Associated Press by the U. S. Navy.

By JAMES A. MICHENER

THE MATSU ISLANDS, March 6 (Delayed) (AP)—Today I stood upon a perilous outpost of the free world. Here on the barren Matsu Islands the United States will soon have to face decisions of the gravest importance.

For it is on these tiny islands, the nearest only five miles from Red China, that democracy and communism come into direct contact.

President Eisenhower may soon have to decide whether the free world will make a stand at the Matsus or accept a new defeat, devastating to the confidence of the democracies in the leadership of the United States.

I visited the Matsus with the men most intimately concerned in holding them. Tall, gaunt, tough-minded Felix Stump is the four-star admiral in charge of all American military operations in the Western Pacific south of Japan. With his staff, and accompanied by Chinese generals responsible for the Matsus, he was inspecting on foot these critical islands.

The opinions which follow are those of this writer alone.

Can the Matsus be defended? Compared to the great Japanese defense I saw in the South Pacific during World War II, the Matsus today look like a pushover.

The Chinese Communists today do not have the capacity to launch anything but a Sampan invasion, so for the time being the crucial Matsus have a good chance. Furthermore under wiry, sharp Maj. Gen. John C. MacDonald, American experts are helping build substantial fortifications.

My guess is that, with three weeks of concentrated digging, the Matsus will be able to withstand any surface invasion the Communists might launch.

Are the Matsus currently being evacuated? I saw not a bit of evidence to support this recurring rumor. Today the islands contain 10,648 civilians who go about their business of fishing and farming. Not a single resident has so far been evacuated.

Does the Nationalist army intend to fight for Matsu? I found no clue to the contrary. For example, an incredible road, more than 10 miles long and three jeeps wide, has just been completed. Magnificantly engineered and drained, it climbs and winds across 850 foot hills. Pill boxes and bunkers, gun emplacements and dugouts are being built.

Can the Matsus be shelled from the Red mainland? Any Communist gun with a range of 22,000 yards can bring 5-6 of the islands under shell fire, and the Red Chinese are supposed to be hauling into position Russian guns capable of firing 27,000 yards. Last night, for example, dynamite blasts were spotted along the Red mainland and the soldiers on Matsu listened, for the blasting meant that positions were being readied for the big Russian guns.

Are the Matsus safe from Communist jets? For the time being, they are. But only 35 miles away Nantai Airbase is rushing to completion. The concrete strip is already 5,000 feet long. Soon it will reach out 10,000 feet and be able to accommodate jets.

Capehart Asks Funds For Housing Inquiry

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) urged the Senate today to approve a $100,000 fund to continue the Senate Banking Committee's investigation of what he called a "billion dollar fraud" in federal housing.

Capehart headed the committee last year when it inquired into "windfall" profits on projects financed with mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

He said in a prepared speech he is counting on the Department of Justice to bring civil suits in these cases "to recover any losses the government may sustain."

Capehart said the statute of limitations has run out on "many of the criminal offenses committed by builders in the FHA program" but "there is no statute of limitations against a civil action by the government for fraud."

Westinghouse Head Urges Higher Tariffs

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP)—A spokesman for the electrical manufacturing industry said today British and other foreign producers of heavy power equipment can undersell American makers by 40 per cent.

This is due in part to tariff rates allowed under the reciprocal trade law, President Gwilym A. Price of the Westinghouse Electric Corp. told the Senate Finance Committee.

Price, speaking for 51 companies in the industry, said U.S. tariffs have been cut to a completely inadequate point. He asked that the bill the House passed to extend the trade program be amended to provide higher tariffs on electrical and communication equipment.

Flood Worker Drowns

GREENUP, Ky., March 8 (AP) — A flood worker, clad in a diving outfit with lead shoes but no helmet, drowned today in six feet of water.

Bonton Myers, 35, fell from a boat while aiding evacuees driven from their homes by high water.

New "Independence"

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — The Navy today gave the historic name "Independence" to the fourth new 60,000 ton aircraft carrier that will be started this summer at the Brooklyn Naval Shipyard.

Cold Bugs Visit At White House

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — Those cold bugs everyone complains about were visiting at the White House today. President Eisenhower, "not feeling too good," spent only a short time at his desk. Mrs. Eisenhower was in bed with the flu.

The President didn't get to work until 11:25 a.m. Then, after luncheon with Bernard Baruch, he decided against returning to the office.

Cold symptoms had forced cancellation of Eisenhower's weekly meeting with Republican congressional leaders.

Three other morning engagements also were called off but later reinstated. The President was smiling and joking when reporters saw him buy the first sheet of Easter seals from 6-year-old Billy Jennings of Trumball, Conn.

Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, White House physician, told newsmen he had kept the President "in for a while as a protection against a cold." He said Eisenhower "has some congestion" but no fever.

Twins Born Dead, Mother Succumbs After Car Crash

BAKER, Ore., March 8 (AP) — A car rushing Mrs. Olvin D. Hale, 19, to a hospital for delivery of expected twins, crashed head-on into another car here. Her twin girls were born dead an hour after the crash and two hours after birth Mrs. Hale died.

Five other persons were hurt, one critically, in the accident last night.

Mrs. Hale's brother-in-law, Jesse Hale, was driver of the car in which she rode. Others in it were her husband, Olvin Hale; their 18-month-old son; Mrs. George Hughes; and Barbara Lee, 18, all of Baker. Miss Lee and the baby were unhurt but Mrs. Hughes suffered a critical skull fracture and the Hale men suffered serious injuries.

Stassen, Japanese Leaders Begin Talks

TOKYO, Wednesday, March 9 (AP) —Harold Stassen, U.S. foreign aid chief, today begins talks which Japanese government leaders hope will build up Japan's economic strength in Southeast Asia.

Government sources said Japan will urge the use of Japanese machinery and technicians in the 500-million-dollar U.S. program to develop Southeast Asian countries.

Stassen flew to Tokyo last night after a two-day inspection tour of the U.S. reconstruction program in South Korea.

He told a news conference at Seoul that the United States must support South Korea's economy as long as Communist pressure requires that small nation to maintain a large army.

President Launches Easter Seal Drive

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — President Eisenhower today handed 6-year-old Billy Jennings a new 10 dollar bill to launch the 1955 sale of Easter seals for the benefit of crippled children.

Billy, whose home is in Trumbull, Conn., walked into the President's office on crutches and Eisenhower told him as the boy came across the room:

100 Millionth Leaflet

MUNICH, Germany, March 8 (AP) — The American-sponsored Crusade for Freedom floated its 100 millionth anticommunist leaflet over the Iron Curtain today.

Fairchild, Airline Ask Retention Of Director

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corp., Hagerstown, Md., and Pan American World Airways, New York, urged the Civil Aeronautics Board today to let them retain Sherman M. Fairchild as a director.

The Hagerstown concern said Fairchild, its founder, built the organization to importance as a manufacturer and is its largest stockholder—with 95,770 shares valued at near two million dollars.

Pan American said Fairchild, with 11,700 shares, is one of the half dozen largest individual holders of Pan American stock. It added that he, with President Juan Trippe and directors Robert Lehman and E. O. McDonnell, is one of the airline's four senior directors, and the loss of his services would be "a very serious matter."

The CAB ruled Feb. 7 that because the Fairchild company has an option to build and sell the twin-engine Dutch Fokker F27 airliner, and because Pan American is a potential customer, Sherman Fairchild may no longer continue as a director of both companies.

One-Legged Youth Shoots And Kills Woman, Takes Car

LOS ANGELES, March 8 (AP)—A one-legged 16-year-old boy fatally wounded a woman shopper with a burst of revolver shots last night when she resisted his efforts to force her from her car in back of a market.

Then the youth shoved the woman from the car and roared onto the nearby Hollywood Freeway. Police captured him after a three-mile chase.

Booked on suspicion of murder was Roger Kelley, who officers said told them he wanted the automobile for a trip to Mexico.

Mrs. Nancy LeMasters, 43, died 40 minutes after the shooting.

Police quoted Kelley as saying she had warned him:

"You don't scare me. Get away."

Five shots were fired. Three of them hit Mrs. LeMasters.

Grand Jurors Begin Probe Of Baltimore Traffic Courts

BALTIMORE, March 8 (AP) — The Grand Jury today apparently was embarked on an investigation into the operation of Baltimore's traffic courts.

The inquiry comes amid a public airing of charges that political pressure and influence dominate traffic court cases.

Called was Stanley Scherr, chief traffic court magistrate and political crony of Gov. McKeldin, who appoints all the magistrates. He was closeted with the jury about an hour. There was no disclosure about what went on, since the sessions are secret.

It was disclosed, however, that Harry Leeward Katz, another traffic court magistrate, appeared last week.

Katz is one of three magistrates who issued public criticisms of the traffic courts either just before or just after McKeldin failed to reappoint them last month to new terms.

The other two are Hugh Monghan 2nd and A. Risley Ensor.

Monoghan and Ensor charged several persons closely connected with the McKeldin administration had tried to influence their decisions.

Those named as trying to do this included Deeley K. Nice, Republican party leader recently named by the governor to Baltimore's Supreme Bench; M. William Adelson, a former law partner of the governor, and Scherr himself.

All three issued denials.

Three members of Baltimore's delegation in the State Senate visited the traffic court offices yesterday and Scherr told them there was no fixing of tickets.

Walter V. Harrison, president of the Baltimore City Bar Assn. last year, said he had warned the governor last October "things were a hell of a mess" in the traffic courts because there is too much influence being used."

Congress Told:

Reds Plot To "Hamstring" FBI's Informant System

Current Attack On Government Witnesses Cited

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP)—Communists are plotting to "hamstring" the FBI's informant system, Asst. Atty.-Gen. William F. Tompkins told Congress today.

"It is becoming increasingly clear," he reported to a Senate Government Operations subcommittee, "that the current attack against government witnesses and informants of the FBI has its roots in a Communist effort."

The Justice Department has been under criticism on the ground that some of its witnesses have been unreliable. Critics have pointed especially to Harvey Matusow, a key government witness in a string of anti-Red proceedings. Matusow now proclaims that he lied.

Tompkins, top internal security aide in the Justice Department, didn't mention Matusow by name.

But before another Senate group Albert E. Kahn, a New York publisher, testified that the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union advanced $1,000 in the hope of getting Matusow to write a book recanting his testimony. Matusow since has become the author of "False Witness," which is being published by Kahn's firm.

The union mentioned was ousted from the CIO in 1949 for alleged Red dominance.

Tompkins appeared before the Government Operations subcommittee as it held a hearing on the government's program for weeding out federal workers deemed to be security risks. He said there have been occasional errors in handling the program, but that it is "basically sound."

"I think the American people want Communists kept out of the government," he told the subcommittee.

"I think this program is keeping Communists out of government and will keep them out," he added.

The subcommittee is considering whether to recommend that a special commission be set up to study whether the government's personnel security regulations need improvement.

Tompkins discussed one of the more frequent suggestions for a change—that accused employes be allowed to confront those who accuse them as security risks.

He said there could be no more effective way of trying to hamstring the FBI informant system "than through the demand for confrontation of witnesses in these non-criminal (security hearings) matters."

"It would be most desirable," he said, "if it could be possible to permit an accused employe to confront his accusers, to know their identity and be able to cross examine all who have given derogatory information about him.

"It should be recognized, however, that this is an unusual situation and it is one where the rights and interests of an individual must be weighed against the security of 160 million people."

Cold Bugs Visit At White House

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — Those cold bugs everyone complains about were visiting at the White House today. President Eisenhower, "not feeling too good," spent only a short time at his desk. Mrs. Eisenhower was in bed with the flu.

The President didn't get to work until 11:25 a.m. Then, after luncheon with Bernard Baruch, he decided against returning to the office.

Cold symptoms had forced cancellation of Eisenhower's weekly meeting with Republican congressional leaders.

Three other morning engagements also were called off but later reinstated. The President was smiling and joking when reporters saw him buy the first sheet of Easter seals from 6-year-old Billy Jennings of Trumball, Conn.

Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, White House physician, told newsmen he had kept the President "in for a while as a protection against a cold." He said Eisenhower "has some congestion" but no fever.

Twins Born Dead, Mother Succumbs After Car Crash

BAKER, Ore., March 8 (AP) — A car rushing Mrs. Olvin D. Hale, 19, to a hospital for delivery of expected twins, crashed head-on into another car here. Her twin girls were born dead an hour after the crash and two hours after birth Mrs. Hale died.

Five other persons were hurt, one critically, in the accident last night.

Mrs. Hale's brother-in-law, Jesse Hale, was driver of the car in which she rode. Others in it were her husband, Olvin Hale; their 18-month-old son; Mrs. George Hughes; and Barbara Lee, 18, all of Baker. Miss Lee and the baby were unhurt but Mrs. Hughes suffered a critical skull fracture and the Hale men suffered serious injuries.

Stassen, Japanese Leaders Begin Talks

TOKYO, Wednesday, March 9 (AP) —Harold Stassen, U.S. foreign aid chief, today begins talks which Japanese government leaders hope will build up Japan's economic strength in Southeast Asia.

Government sources said Japan will urge the use of Japanese machinery and technicians in the 500-million-dollar U.S. program to develop Southeast Asian countries.

Stassen flew to Tokyo last night after a two-day inspection tour of the U.S. reconstruction program in South Korea.

He told a news conference at Seoul that the United States must support South Korea's economy as long as Communist pressure requires that small nation to maintain a large army.

President Launches Easter Seal Drive

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — President Eisenhower today handed 6-year-old Billy Jennings a new 10 dollar bill to launch the 1955 sale of Easter seals for the benefit of crippled children.

Billy, whose home is in Trumbull, Conn., walked into the President's office on crutches and Eisenhower told him as the boy came across the room:

One-Legged Youth Shoots And Kills Woman, Takes Car

LOS ANGELES, March 8 (AP)—A one-legged 16-year-old boy fatally wounded a woman shopper with a burst of revolver shots last night when she resisted his efforts to force her from her car in back of a market.

Then the youth shoved the woman from the car and roared onto the nearby Hollywood Freeway. Police captured him after a three-mile chase.

Booked on suspicion of murder was Roger Kelley, who officers said told them he wanted the automobile for a trip to Mexico.

Mrs. Nancy LeMasters, 43, died 40 minutes after the shooting.

Police quoted Kelley as saying she had warned him:

"You don't scare me. Get away."

Five shots were fired. Three of them hit Mrs. LeMasters.

Grand Jurors Begin Probe Of Baltimore Traffic Courts

BALTIMORE, March 8 (AP) — The Grand Jury today apparently was embarked on an investigation into the operation of Baltimore's traffic courts.

The inquiry comes amid a public airing of charges that political pressure and influence dominate traffic court cases.

Called was Stanley Scherr, chief traffic court magistrate and political crony of Gov. McKeldin, who appoints all the magistrates. He was closeted with the jury about an hour. There was no disclosure about what went on, since the sessions are secret.

It was disclosed, however, that Harry Leeward Katz, another traffic court magistrate, appeared last week.

Katz is one of three magistrates who issued public criticisms of the traffic courts either just before or just after McKeldin failed to reappoint them last month to new terms.

The other two are Hugh Monghan 2nd and A. Risley Ensor.

Monoghan and Ensor charged several persons closely connected with the McKeldin administration had tried to influence their decisions.

Those named as trying to do this included Deeley K. Nice, Republican party leader recently named by the governor to Baltimore's Supreme Bench; M. William Adelson, a former law partner of the governor, and Scherr himself.

All three issued denials.

Three members of Baltimore's delegation in the State Senate visited the traffic court offices yesterday and Scherr told them there was no fixing of tickets.

Walter V. Harrison, president of the Baltimore City Bar Assn. last year, said he had warned the governor last October "things were a hell of a mess" in the traffic courts because there is too much influence being used."

Publisher Says Leftwing Union Helped Matusow

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — A New York publisher testified today a leftwing union advanced $1,000 to encourage Harvey Matusow to write his book, "False Witness."

The forthcoming book repudiates much of the testimony Matusow gave as a government witness against Reds and alleged Reds.

Albert E. Kahn, the publisher, told the Senate Internal Security subcommittee the $1,000 came from the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union, which was expelled from the CIO in 1949 on the ground it was dominated by Communists.

Kahn related he knew the kind of book Matusow had in mind and in conversation with Nathan Witt, attorney for the union, mentioned that he thought if it were written it would contain material of "considerable interest" to the union.

He said he tried to get an advance order for 10,000 copies from Witt, but that the attorney agreed at first to order only 2,000. The $1,000 was raised in this fashion. Later the union increased its order to 6,700 and paid Kahn's firm $3,250.

J. D. Sourwine, subcommittee counsel, asked the witness whether it was correct that the original $1,000 was advanced in the hope of getting the book written, with no promise of repayment if the book were not published.

"That's my opinion," Kahn said.

Kahn also testified that Witt approached him about having Matusow sign an affidavit he had given false testimony against Clinton A. Jencks, a union official.

Matusow's testimony helped convict Jencks last year on a charge of falsely swearing to a noncommunist affidavit required by the National Labor Relations Board.

The turnabout witness was in El Paso, Tex., today, testifying before a federal grand jury about his changed story. Jencks has asked for a new trial on the basis of an affidavit Matusow filed Jan. 20.

Fairchild, Airline Ask Retention Of Director

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corp., Hagerstown, Md., and Pan American World Airways, New York, urged the Civil Aeronautics Board today to let them retain Sherman M. Fairchild as a director.

The Hagerstown concern said Fairchild, its founder, built the organization to importance as a manufacturer and is its largest stockholder—with 95,770 shares valued at near two million dollars.

Pan American said Fairchild, with 11,700 shares, is one of the half dozen largest individual holders of Pan American stock. It added that he, with President Juan Trippe and directors Robert Lehman and E. O. McDonnell, is one of the airline's four senior directors, and the loss of his services would be "a very serious matter."

The CAB ruled Feb. 7 that because the Fairchild company has an option to build and sell the twin-engine Dutch Fokker F27 airliner, and because Pan American is a potential customer, Sherman Fairchild may no longer continue as a director of both companies.

Michener Describes Visit To Red-Threatened Matsus

James A. Michener, author of "Tales of the South Pacific" and other stories of the Far East, describes a visit to the Communist-threatened Matsu Islands off the Red China Coast. Michener's story was made available to The Associated Press by the U. S. Navy.

By JAMES A. MICHENER

THE MATSU ISLANDS, March 6 (Delayed) (AP)—Today I stood upon a perilous outpost of the free world. Here on the barren Matsu Islands the United States will soon have to face decisions of the gravest importance.

For it is on these tiny islands, the nearest only five miles from Red China, that democracy and communism come into direct contact.

President Eisenhower may soon have to decide whether the free world will make a stand at the Matsus or accept a new defeat, devastating to the confidence of the democracies in the leadership of the United States.

I visited the Matsus with the men most intimately concerned in holding them. Tall, gaunt, tough-minded Felix Stump is the four-star admiral in charge of all American military operations in the Western Pacific south of Japan. With his staff, and accompanied by Chinese generals responsible for the Matsus, he was inspecting on foot these critical islands.

The opinions which follow are those of this writer alone.

Can the Matsus be defended? Compared to the great Japanese defense I saw in the South Pacific during World War II, the Matsus today look like a pushover.

The Chinese Communists today do not have the capacity to launch anything but a Sampan invasion, so for the time being the crucial Matsus have a good chance. Furthermore under wiry, sharp Maj. Gen. John C. MacDonald, American experts are helping build substantial fortifications.

My guess is that, with three weeks of concentrated digging, the Matsus will be able to withstand any surface invasion the Communists might launch.

Are the Matsus currently being evacuated? I saw not a bit of evidence to support this recurring rumor. Today the islands contain 10,648 civilians who go about their business of fishing and farming. Not a single resident has so far been evacuated.

Does the Nationalist army intend to fight for Matsu? I found no clue to the contrary. For example, an incredible road, more than 10 miles long and three jeeps wide, has just been completed. Magnificantly engineered and drained, it climbs and winds across 850 foot hills. Pill boxes and bunkers, gun emplacements and dugouts are being built.

Can the Matsus be shelled from the Red mainland? Any Communist gun with a range of 22,000 yards can bring 5-6 of the islands under shell fire, and the Red Chinese are supposed to be hauling into position Russian guns capable of firing 27,000 yards. Last night, for example, dynamite blasts were spotted along the Red mainland and the soldiers on Matsu listened, for the blasting meant that positions were being readied for the big Russian guns.

Are the Matsus safe from Communist jets? For the time being, they are. But only 35 miles away Nantai Airbase is rushing to completion. The concrete strip is already 5,000 feet long. Soon it will reach out 10,000 feet and be able to accommodate jets.

Capehart Asks Funds For Housing Inquiry

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) urged the Senate today to approve a $100,000 fund to continue the Senate Banking Committee's investigation of what he called a "billion dollar fraud" in federal housing.

Capehart headed the committee last year when it inquired into "windfall" profits on projects financed with mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

He said in a prepared speech he is counting on the Department of Justice to bring civil suits in these cases "to recover any losses the government may sustain."

Capehart said the statute of limitations has run out on "many of the criminal offenses committed by builders in the FHA program" but "there is no statute of limitations against a civil action by the government for fraud."

'Right To Work' Bill Survives Its Initial Test In State Senate

But Measure Ends Up Where It Started

ANNAPOLIS, March 8 (AP)—The "right to work" bill survived its first skirmish in the Senate today, but it ended up exactly where it started Feb. 10—in the Labor Committee.

The Senate voted to ask the committee to hold a hearing on the controversial measure as soon as possible, after beating down an attempt by Labor Committee Chairman DiDomenico (D-Balto 2nd) to kill the measure.

The measure, which would ban compulsory union membership as a requirement to hold a job, was was petitioned out of committee by Sen. Weinroth (D-Cecil), its sponsor, and Sens. Jewell (D-Kent) and Dean (D-Queen Annes).

DiDomenico's motion to lay the bill on the table lost 21-7, with most of the "no" voters explaining they were neither for nor against the measure but wanted a hearing on it.

Sen. Turnbull (D-Baltimore), majority floor leader, sought to have the hearing scheduled within a week, but DiDomenico begged off, saying the busy legislative schedule prohibits this.

Vote Not Sentiment Indicator

The 21-7 vote gave no indication as to sentiment on the proposal, since Sens. Malkus (D-Dorchester), Nock (D-Wicomico), Redden (D-Caroline), Shipley (D-Howard), Turnbull and Wheatley (D-Prince Georges) all said they voted against the tabling motion because they believe a hearing is in order.

Sens. Cole (R-Balto 4th) and Goodman (Balto 5th) changed their votes from yes to no after all the arguments for the hearing, and Sen. Phoebus (R-Somerset) decided to vote against the tabling motion after originally passing.

Battle lines were drawn on the right to work measure long before the General Assembly convened two months ago. It was even a factor in some phases of last year's elections.

An organization called the Maryland Right to Work Committee finally got Weinroth to introduce the measure after weeks of rumor. The freshman senator, however, refused to go along with a provision to make it illegal for an employer to deduct union dues from an employe's paycheck and forward them to the union.

Would Outlaw Union Shop

The bill, as presented, would outlaw the union shop included in many labor-management agreements to require new employes to join within a certain time the union recognized as the collective bargaining agent for him and his fellow workers.

Union leaders have girded for the battle, signing up new member assessments with which to fight the measure, and calling full membership meetings to back up lobbying. They contend the bill is designed to destroy organized labor.

Gov. McKeldin went on record in a speech last year opposing the legislation which has been adopted by 17 other states as authorized in the Taft-Hartley Law.

Del. Culotta (R-Balto 3rd) has introduced a resolution urging the House to condemn this type of legislation. The resolution is still in committee.

The House in its biggest mass production of the session passed 30 bills, enacted two and adopted two resolutions at its afternoon session.

After extended debate, another bill to let chiropractors use the State Health Laboratory failed to get past the passage stage. The vote for it was 58-17, but it requires 62 for passage.

Youth Board Bill Approved

Among those forwarded to the Senate are bills to establish a state youth board that will coordinate all activities to prevent juvenile delinquency, an authority to build a Baltimore civic center and a batch to broaden the sale of beer and wine and mixed drinks in Harford County.

Del. Robinson (D-Balto 4th) spearheaded opposition to the chiropractors. He said that permitting them to use the state laboratory "would open up the doors of the practice of medicine" to them.

He said by the State code they are restricted to treatment without drugs and of ills caused by nerve trouble.

Del. Tawney (D-Anne Arundel), the sponsor, claimed chiropractors are trained in diagnosis and qualified to make them. He said chiropractors treat one-third—800,000—of the population of Maryland and shouldn't "be refused the use of a State supported institution."

Del. Schweinhaut (D-Montgomery), co-sponsor of the proposal for a board, replied to a question of cost raised by Del. Cannon (D-Wicomico) by saying "some things you can afford to do. This is one thing we must do."

The vote was 101-5 in favor of the board.

Search Plane Crashes; 2 Saved

CAMBRIDGE, Md., March 8 (AP)—A Maryland Civil Air Patrol plane crashed into the Choptank River while searching for a missing Air Force jet today but the two men aboard were rescued.

They were identified as Lt. John A. Anderson Jr., 31, of Glen Burnie and Franklin A. Reynolds, 25, of Baltimore. Neither was hurt.

A report on the accident said their plane's engine failed and they crashed in the river off Castle Haven, between the Talbot and Dorchester County shorelines.

Capt. Saul Phillips, operating an oyster boat out of Cambridge, pulled them from the water and they were transferred later to a patrol boat of the Maryland Tidewater Fisheries Commission. A trooper from the State Police barracks returned them to the CAP's headquarters at Friendship International Airport outside Baltimore.

The plane was one of 30 from the Maryland CAP squadron searching for an Air Force jet which has been missing since it disappeared Monday on a flight from Andrews Field near Washington to Newcastle Air Base near Wilmington, Del.

Lt. Charles F. Agee, 24, of Washington and Charleston, W. Va., was piloting the missing plane.

Adultery Case Dismissed

HAGERSTOWN, March 8 (AP)—The first adultery case within the memory of court personnel here was dismissed today by Magistrate Paul Ottinger.

A resident of Zullinger, Pa., filed the complaint, charging his wife and another man with the offense here last June 4, 5, and 6.

Magistrate Ottinger dismissed the charge for lack of corroborating evidence. Police were never able to locate the man named in the complaint.

The penalty in Maryland for adultery is a $10 fine.

Vets Would Let Voters Decide Bonus Question

ANNAPOLIS, March 8 (AP)—The question of whether Maryland war veterans should receive a bonus and activities of school teachers in political campaigns came in for attention today from legislative committees.

The House Judiciary Committee was urged by officials of veterans organizations to let voters decide next year whether Maryland should operate a lottery to pay veterans a bonus.

Most of those appearing at a hearing on bonus legislation said veterans themselves were opposed to adding any more taxes to finance a bonus. A lottery, they argued, would achieve the same end without burdening the taxpayer.

"We're not asking you to give us a bonus but to let the people of the state of Maryland decide for themselves," said Albert W. Styles, chairman of the Allied Veterans Council representing some 100,000 members of veterans organizations.

He and other officials argued that the bonus had become a political football and an annual headache for the Legislature, primarily because previous proposals would have called for raising taxes.

"Let's get rid of this question once and for all," urged J. Nelson Tribby, representing the Catholic War Veterans.

Others arguing for passage of the constitutional amendment proposed by Del. Hodges (D-Balto 6th) included: Benjamin Buckner, state commander of the American Legion; William Earl Griffin, state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Claude Callegary, state commander of the Disabled American Veterans; Joseph Leiter, national council representative of the American Legion; Daniel Burkhardt, state adjutant of the American Legion; William Clay, legislative chairman of the DAV; and Weldon Maddox of the VFW.

The only person testifying against the proposal was Lewis Wethered of Baltimore, representing the American Veterans Committee.

He said his organization, which has about 100 members in Maryland, is not opposed to the State conducting a lottery but thinks it should be for schools, hospitals or some other "chronic" financial needs.

The question of political activity by school teachers came up in the Senate Finance Committee where State School Superintendent Thomas G. Pullen Jr., was appearing at a hearing on his department's 58 million dollar budget.

Several senators chose the occasion to criticize election and legislative activities by teachers.

Sen. James (D-Harford) said that during the last campaign teachers organizations sent out questionnaires to candidates, issued statements and voting records. He called these activities "deplorable" and asked if the education department had any control over them.

Dr. Pullen said the department did not have such control but that he personally is opposed to schools and those connected with them engaging in political campaigns.

McKeldin Won't Run For U. S. Senate Seat

Report Beall May Seek Governorship

ANNAPOLIS, March 8 (AP)—Gov. McKeldin does not plan to run for the Maryland seat in the U. S. Senate which comes up for election next year.

There has been much speculation about McKeldin running for the Senate, so he was asked about it at a press conference.

"I do not plan to run in 1956," he said.

Published reports have represented White House political strategists as urging McKeldin to run, in the belief the Republicans would thereby have a better chance of retaining the seat.

McKeldin characterized this as "a million per cent untrue."

The Republican senator whose term runs out early in 1957 is John Marshall Butler, now serving his first term. He has as yet made no statement about running for re-election. No other Republican candidate has come forward so far.

Another report being bandied about is that McKeldin and J. Glenn Beall, the other senator and also a Republican, have joint plans for 1958, when the current terms of both will be running out.

McKeldin, it has been suggested, would support Beall for governor and Beall would support McKeldin for the Senate.

The governor did not comment on this.

He is just starting his second term at Annapolis after last November's victory in which he became the first Republican governor ever re-elected in Maryland. He is not eligible for reelection.

Many Democratic leaders have expressed a belief the Democratic nominee will defeat Butler in 1956 if Butler wins the nomination for a second term.

The names of four men are mentioned in political talk about the Democratic nomination. They are George P. Mahoney, beaten by Beall in 1952; Clarence W. Miles, president of the Baltimore Orioles; W. Preston Lane Jr., beaten by McKeldin when he ran for reelection in 1950, and Millard E. Tydings, who lost the Senate seat to Butler in 1950 after holding it for many years.

State Retains Old Air Raid Signals

PIKESVILLE, Md., March 8 (AP)—Maryland Civil Defense Director Sherley Ewing said today the present system of air raid warnings will remain in effect until further notice.

A new series of action signals was announced yesterday by the federal CD organization in Washington, but Ewing said the new signals can't be put into effect locally for at least 30 days.

Any change in the present system, Ewing said, will require a change in the wiring systems and a thorough re-education of civil defense personnel. Any change in the present system will be announced through the state CD office, he added.

Slide Blocks Road Near Harper's Ferry

HARPER'S FERRY, W. Va., March 8 (AP)—A huge rockslide blocked U. S. 340 between the Sandy Hook and Shenandoah River bridges last night, but road crews restored one-way traffic around the slide today.

An estimated 20 tons of rock and debris slid down upon the road. A three-foot-thick concrete retaining wall on the hill side of the road was pushed across the high way to the river side.

The slide occurred about midnight and by early morning there were long lines of trucks and automobiles lined up on both sides of the break.

A crew from the West Virginia State Road Commission shop cleared a one-way lane and said it would be kept open for traffic moving to and from the races at Charles Town.

Crewmen Uninjured As C119 Crash-Lands

PITTSBURGH, March 8 (AP)—An Air Force C119 Flying Boxcar crash-landed at the Greater Pittsburgh Airport today. Three crewmen escaped unhurt.

The big plane skidded about 500 feet on its belly before grinding to a halt. It did not burn. Air Force officials said the plane, capable of carrying 60 men, was on a training hop.

1st Lt. Lyman Frain, the pilot, told Air Force officials the plane's landing gear was partially down at the time. The impact of the crash, he said, folded it back into the cell of the plane.

Also aboard the plane were 1st Lt. J. E. Sweeney, and Staff Sgt. Donald Gaskins, both of Pittsburgh. Sweeney is a reserve pilot.

Mental Hospital Head Declares Report Distorted

ANNAPOLIS, March 8 (AP)—Dr. Arnold H. Eichert, superintendent at Crownsville State Mental Hospital, said today a recent report on conditions there by an Anne Arundel County commissioner, Louis A. Boehm, contained "numerous distortions and inaccuracies."

Boehm visited the hospital after a riot several weeks ago. He said he wanted to look over security measures in the wake of the disturbance created by a group of insane criminals.

The commissioner had expressed concern for the safety of nearby residents in case of a full scale breakout.

Among other things, Boehm said, the insane criminals "rule" the building in which they are confined and get "white glove" treatment.

Dr. Eichert said he and Dr. Meng, clinical director at the Anne Arundel County institution, had seen a copy of Boehm's report before he presented it to the board and were "quite surprised by the numerous distortions and inaccuracies it contained."

Dr. Eichert said he protested, but Boehm seemed "unconvinced."

The superintendent requested that he be allowed to appear before the commissioners to explain the philosophy of treatment practiced at the mental institution.

"My purpose in this is not to defend the hospital. We know it is not perfect. But the efforts of the community to obtain better medical care for our patients, as well as better security for themselves, will be greater if they are in possession of accurate facts," said Dr. Eichert.

The commissioners agreed to hear the superintendent, but did not set a date for the meeting.

But Measure Ends Up Where It Started

ANNAPOLIS, March 8 (AP)—The "right to work" bill survived its first skirmish in the Senate today, but it ended up exactly where it started Feb. 10—in the Labor Committee.

The Senate voted to ask the committee to hold a hearing on the controversial measure as soon as possible, after beating down an attempt by Labor Committee Chairman DiDomenico (D-Balto 2nd) to kill the measure.

The measure, which would ban compulsory union membership as a requirement to hold a job, was was petitioned out of committee by Sen. Weinroth (D-Cecil), its sponsor, and Sens. Jewell (D-Kent) and Dean (D-Queen Annes).

DiDomenico's motion to lay the bill on the table lost 21-7, with most of the "no" voters explaining they were neither for nor against the measure but wanted a hearing on it.

Sen. Turnbull (D-Baltimore), majority floor leader, sought to have the hearing scheduled within a week, but DiDomenico begged off, saying the busy legislative schedule prohibits this.

Vote Not Sentiment Indicator

The 21-7 vote gave no indication as to sentiment on the proposal, since Sens. Malkus (D-Dorchester), Nock (D-Wicomico), Redden (D-Caroline), Shipley (D-Howard), Turnbull and Wheatley (D-Prince Georges) all said they voted against the tabling motion because they believe a hearing is in order.

Sens. Cole (R-Balto 4th) and Goodman (Balto 5th) changed their votes from yes to no after all the arguments for the hearing, and Sen. Phoebus (R-Somerset) decided to vote against the tabling motion after originally passing.

Battle lines were drawn on the right to work measure long before the General Assembly convened two months ago. It was even a factor in some phases of last year's elections.

An organization called the Maryland Right to Work Committee finally got Weinroth to introduce the measure after weeks of rumor. The freshman senator, however, refused to go along with a provision to make it illegal for an employer to deduct union dues from an employe's paycheck and forward them to the union.

Would Outlaw Union Shop

The bill, as presented, would outlaw the union shop included in many labor-management agreements to require new employes to join within a certain time the union recognized as the collective bargaining agent for him and his fellow workers.

Union leaders have girded for the battle, signing up new member assessments with which to fight the measure, and calling full membership meetings to back up lobbying. They contend the bill is designed to destroy organized labor.

Gov. McKeldin went on record in a speech last year opposing the legislation which has been adopted by 17 other states as authorized in the Taft-Hartley Law.

Del. Culotta (R-Balto 3rd) has introduced a resolution urging the House to condemn this type of legislation. The resolution is still in committee.

The House in its biggest mass production of the session passed 30 bills, enacted two and adopted two resolutions at its afternoon session.

After extended debate, another bill to let chiropractors use the State Health Laboratory failed to get past the passage stage. The vote for it was 58-17, but it requires 62 for passage.

Youth Board Bill Approved

Among those forwarded to the Senate are bills to establish a state youth board that will coordinate all activities to prevent juvenile delinquency, an authority to build a Baltimore civic center and a batch to broaden the sale of beer and wine and mixed drinks in Harford County.

Del. Robinson (D-Balto 4th) spearheaded opposition to the chiropractors. He said that permitting them to use the state laboratory "would open up the doors of the practice of medicine" to them.

He said by the State code they are restricted to treatment without drugs and of ills caused by nerve trouble.

Del. Tawney (D-Anne Arundel), the sponsor, claimed chiropractors are trained in diagnosis and qualified to make them. He said chiropractors treat one-third—800,000—of the population of Maryland and shouldn't "be refused the use of a State supported institution."

Del. Schweinhaut (D-Montgomery), co-sponsor of the proposal for a board, replied to a question of cost raised by Del. Cannon (D-Wicomico) by saying "some things you can afford to do. This is one thing we must do."

The vote was 101-5 in favor of the board.

Search Plane Crashes; 2 Saved

CAMBRIDGE, Md., March 8 (AP)—A Maryland Civil Air Patrol plane crashed into the Choptank River while searching for a missing Air Force jet today but the two men aboard were rescued.

They were identified as Lt. John A. Anderson Jr., 31, of Glen Burnie and Franklin A. Reynolds, 25, of Baltimore. Neither was hurt.

A report on the accident said their plane's engine failed and they crashed in the river off Castle Haven, between the Talbot and Dorchester County shorelines.

Capt. Saul Phillips, operating an oyster boat out of Cambridge, pulled them from the water and they were transferred later to a patrol boat of the Maryland Tidewater Fisheries Commission. A trooper from the State Police barracks returned them to the CAP's headquarters at Friendship International Airport outside Baltimore.

The plane was one of 30 from the Maryland CAP squadron searching for an Air Force jet which has been missing since it disappeared Monday on a flight from Andrews Field near Washington to Newcastle Air Base near Wilmington, Del.

Lt. Charles F. Agee, 24, of Washington and Charleston, W. Va., was piloting the missing plane.

Adultery Case Dismissed

HAGERSTOWN, March 8 (AP)—The first adultery case within the memory of court personnel here was dismissed today by Magistrate Paul Ottinger.

A resident of Zullinger, Pa., filed the complaint, charging his wife and another man with the offense here last June 4, 5, and 6.

Magistrate Ottinger dismissed the charge for lack of corroborating evidence. Police were never able to locate the man named in the complaint.

The penalty in Maryland for adultery is a $10 fine.

Vets Would Let Voters Decide Bonus Question

ANNAPOLIS, March 8 (AP)—The question of whether Maryland war veterans should receive a bonus and activities of school teachers in political campaigns came in for attention today from legislative committees.

The House Judiciary Committee was urged by officials of veterans organizations to let voters decide next year whether Maryland should operate a lottery to pay veterans a bonus.

Most of those appearing at a hearing on bonus legislation said veterans themselves were opposed to adding any more taxes to finance a bonus. A lottery, they argued, would achieve the same end without burdening the taxpayer.

"We're not asking you to give us a bonus but to let the people of the state of Maryland decide for themselves," said Albert W. Styles, chairman of the Allied Veterans Council representing some 100,000 members of veterans organizations.

He and other officials argued that the bonus had become a political football and an annual headache for the Legislature, primarily because previous proposals would have called for raising taxes.

"Let's get rid of this question once and for all," urged J. Nelson Tribby, representing the Catholic War Veterans.

Others arguing for passage of the constitutional amendment proposed by Del. Hodges (D-Balto 6th) included: Benjamin Buckner, state commander of the American Legion; William Earl Griffin, state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Claude Callegary, state commander of the Disabled American Veterans; Joseph Leiter, national council representative of the American Legion; Daniel Burkhardt, state adjutant of the American Legion; William Clay, legislative chairman of the DAV; and Weldon Maddox of the VFW.

The only person testifying against the proposal was Lewis Wethered of Baltimore, representing the American Veterans Committee.

He said his organization, which has about 100 members in Maryland, is not opposed to the State conducting a lottery but thinks it should be for schools, hospitals or some other "chronic" financial needs.

The question of political activity by school teachers came up in the Senate Finance Committee where State School Superintendent Thomas G. Pullen Jr., was appearing at a hearing on his department's 58 million dollar budget.

Several senators chose the occasion to criticize election and legislative activities by teachers.

Sen. James (D-Harford) said that during the last campaign teachers organizations sent out questionnaires to candidates, issued statements and voting records. He called these activities "deplorable" and asked if the education department had any control over them.

Dr. Pullen said the department did not have such control but that he personally is opposed to schools and those connected with them engaging in political campaigns.

McKeldin Won't Run For U. S. Senate Seat

State Retains Old Air Raid Signals

PIKESVILLE, Md., March 8 (AP)—Maryland Civil Defense Director Sherley Ewing said today the present system of air raid warnings will remain in effect until further notice.

A new series of action signals was announced yesterday by the federal CD organization in Washington, but Ewing said the new signals can't be put into effect locally for at least 30 days.

Any change in the present system, Ewing said, will require a change in the wiring systems and a thorough re-education of civil defense personnel. Any change in the present system will be announced through the state CD office, he added.

Slide Blocks Road Near Harper's Ferry

HARPER'S FERRY, W. Va., March 8 (AP)—A huge rockslide blocked U. S. 340 between the Sandy Hook and Shenandoah River bridges last night, but road crews restored one-way traffic around the slide today.

An estimated 20 tons of rock and debris slid down upon the road. A three-foot-thick concrete retaining wall on the hill side of the road was pushed across the high way to the river side.

The slide occurred about midnight and by early morning there were long lines of trucks and automobiles lined up on both sides of the break.

A crew from the West Virginia State Road Commission shop cleared a one-way lane and said it would be kept open for traffic moving to and from the races at Charles Town.

Report Beall May Seek Governorship

ANNAPOLIS, March 8 (AP)—Gov. McKeldin does not plan to run for the Maryland seat in the U. S. Senate which comes up for election next year.

There has been much speculation about McKeldin running for the Senate, so he was asked about it at a press conference.

"I do not plan to run in 1956," he said.

Published reports have represented White House political strategists as urging McKeldin to run, in the belief the Republicans would thereby have a better chance of retaining the seat.

McKeldin characterized this as "a million per cent untrue."

The Republican senator whose term runs out early in 1957 is John Marshall Butler, now serving his first term. He has as yet made no statement about running for re-election. No other Republican candidate has come forward so far.

Another report being bandied about is that McKeldin and J. Glenn Beall, the other senator and also a Republican, have joint plans for 1958, when the current terms of both will be running out.

McKeldin, it has been suggested, would support Beall for governor and Beall would support McKeldin for the Senate.

The governor did not comment on this.

He is just starting his second term at Annapolis after last November's victory in which he became the first Republican governor ever re-elected in Maryland. He is not eligible for reelection.

Many Democratic leaders have expressed a belief the Democratic nominee will defeat Butler in 1956 if Butler wins the nomination for a second term.

The names of four men are mentioned in political talk about the Democratic nomination. They are George P. Mahoney, beaten by Beall in 1952; Clarence W. Miles, president of the Baltimore Orioles; W. Preston Lane Jr., beaten by McKeldin when he ran for reelection in 1950, and Millard E. Tydings, who lost the Senate seat to Butler in 1950 after holding it for many years.

Mental Hospital Head Declares Report Distorted

ANNAPOLIS, March 8 (AP)—Dr. Arnold H. Eichert, superintendent at Crownsville State Mental Hospital, said today a recent report on conditions there by an Anne Arundel County commissioner, Louis A. Boehm, contained "numerous distortions and inaccuracies."

Dr. Eichert said he protested, but Boehm seemed "unconvinced."

The superintendent requested that he be allowed to appear before the commissioners to explain the philosophy of treatment practiced at the mental institution.

"My purpose in this is not to defend the hospital. We know it is not perfect. But the efforts of the community to obtain better medical care for our patients, as well as better security for themselves, will be greater if they are in possession of accurate facts," said Dr. Eichert.

The commissioners agreed to hear the superintendent, but did not set a date for the meeting.

Dixie Baptist Group Wins Struggle To Prove Church Roots Deeper Than Moods Of Moment

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK, March 8 (AP)—Some steadfast Southern Baptists go back to a Rocky Mount, N.C., church this Sunday—victors in a long struggle to prove the church roots go deeper than moods of the moment.

The case seems likely to become a landmark in the history of congregationally governed churches.

It demonstrates, said the Rev. Douglas M. Branch, president of the North Carolina State Baptist Convention, that a church structure "does not belong to a congregation at any particular time."

Rather, he said, it belongs to "both the dead and the living" whose cumulative gifts have built it to serve God according to convictions of "a particular denomination or persuasion."

The question, long a touchy one among Baptists and other "free church" denominations, was appealed through three courts in a year and a half of conflict at the North Rocky Mount Baptist Church.

As a result, a minority group that remained loyal to the church's traditional Southern Baptist position regains the house of worship this Sunday from a majority that voted to switch allegiance.

The dispute arose shortly after the Rev. Samuel H. W. Johnston, of the General Assn. of Regular Baptists, became pastor. The State Supreme Court held that he "was the person who inspired and led" the dissension.

He charged the Southern and state Baptist conventions with "promoting modernism, liberalism, unbelief and apostasy."

The "true congregation," said the State Supreme Court, consists of those "who adhere and submit to the characteristics, doctrines, usages, customs and practices" accepted by both sides prior to the dispute.

Fundamental to the church, the court said, are its Southern Baptist connections.

"I doubt if this has ever been defined in this particular way," said Dr. Porter Routh, of Nashville, Tenn., secretary of the Southern Baptist Convention. "In that degree, it is breaking new ground."

The church was founded 60 years ago. It grew to a membership of about 1,300. It had a harmonious, flourishing life until the current dispute boiled over Aug. 9, 1953.

The vote to break old ties was 241 to 144. May didn't vote.

Ordinarily, that would have ended the matter, and the minority would either have to go along with the break, or get out. But they argued the church's foundations couldn't be shaken by any momentary majority.

"The thing that makes this decision important is that it was carried to court," said Dr. Albert McLellan, of Nashville, director of Southern Baptist publications. "It does, in that measure, establish a precedent.

Declared the watchman - examiner, a national Baptist publication:

"It has taken a court of law to come nearest to a definition of Baptist local church property responsibilities. . . .

"Our forefathers could not foresee a time when ambitious sectarians would lead organized raids upon Baptist churches. This generation has to meet a new type of church problem . . . the dangers inherent in our freedom."

About 540 Rocky Mount members are reported currently supporting the minority. A few of the original majority have shifted back. The others are building a new church two blocks away.

Officials of the Southern Baptist Convention, second largest Protestant body in the nation, took no part in the controversy, but made their comment in reply to this reporter's questions.

"The finding of the court," Dr. Routh said, "was that the customs and characteristics of an individual church have real meaning and substance, that they can be recognized even through they aren't written down."

Southern Baptist churches have no prescribed creed, or fixed procedures. Each acts as an independent democracy, whose "messengers" to conventions set programs of the denomination.

"One healthy result of this case," Dr. Routh said, "probably will be the writing, establishment and approval of bylaws in many individual churches for carrying on business. This can involve statements of faith."

This, he said, would have averted the Rocky Mount dispute.

R. H. Wallace, a long - time church trustee who supported the separation move, said:

"Most Bible-believing churches will not be satisfied realizing they can vote themselves into a convention with a majority vote but can never vote themselves out with a majority vote without losing their property."

Two H-Bombs Would KO Britain, Red Says

MOSCOW, March 8 (AP)—Soviet writer Ilya Ehrenburg declared today "two or three H-bombs are sufficient" to knock out Britain.

Such nuclear warnings to Western powers are popular among the Soviet Union's "Peace Partisans" now holding a national meeting here.

Ehrenburg had this comment on British Prime Minister Churchill's recent speech asserting that the Americans lead in the H-bomb race:

"I did not count how many H-bombs we have nor how many the Americans have. Neither did Mr. Churchill. It is clear, however, that for a heavily populated country like Britain two or three H-bombs are sufficient."

Shellac's Drying Time

Shellac is quick drying, hardening dust-free within 10 minutes, but it should not be walked on, even lightly, in less than an hour. For best results, allow at least three hours between first and second coats. If a third coat is desired, allow an overnight drying period.

'Miracle' Tot Lives Normal Life Due To Medical Science

CHICAGO, March 8 (AP)—A child born nearly three years ago with virtually no chest structure and an exposed heart is living a normal life due to medical science.

The fact that blonde Linda Wetzel is able to romp and play like any other girl her age is viewed by her mother, Mrs. Werner Wetzel, as "almost a miracle."

At her birth on Sept. 28, 1952, Linda was found to have almost no chest frame. Missing was the normal rib structure. Instead she had only stub ends protruding from her spinal column. Her heart was exposed.

Linda was transferred to Michael Reese Hospital where Dr. Saul A. Mackler determined a course of action.

Twelve days after her birth, the breastbone and rib cage from a stillborn infant were attached to Linda's body. The full developed ribs of the dead infant were interlaced with the stub ends on Linda's spinal column.

The breastbone and rib cage of the dead infant provided Linda with a framework around which her body grew, replacing the parts missing at birth.

Part of the substituted framework was absorbed or sloughed away as Linda's own body developed. Some of the transplanted tissue grew to be a portion of her body.

A recent examination, Dr. Mackler said, showed Linda's chest has developed an almost complete rib cage and breastbone. Only one small soft spot remains in the chest structure at this stage, the surgeon said.

Red-Sponsored Fair Features Consumer Goods

LEIPZIG, Germany, March 8 (AP)—It was all very confusing to visitors expecting to see the latest Moscow political line in exhibits at the Soviet-sponsored Leipzig Fair.

Consumer goods, the battle cry for the regime of ousted Soviet Premier Georgi M. Malenkov, are in abundance in the central hall of the pavilion at the fair which ends a 12-day exhibition tomorrow. These fancier items were displayed even more prominently than last year.

Heavy machiner, slogan for Communist party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai Bulganin, now riding high in the Kremlin, were shunted to the sidelines. That is, when there was anything to shunt.

The first thing the visitors saw after entering the main gate was the biggest fur display since the Russian occupiers revived the 500-year-old fair after World War II. There was a whole corridor for cosmetics, perfumes, and household goods. Men's and women's clothes, in fairly modern styles, were shown in many choice locations. Radio and TV sets, rigged to play symphonic music by the hour, were conspicuous.

The usual drill presses, lathes, turbines, transformers and generators were shown on the side. Even some of the heavy goods had an appeal for a consumer's eye. They were the Russian automobiles—the Zis, Zim, and Pobeda. A newcomer was a collapsible outboard motorboat that folds up on wheels to be hauled trailer-wise.

Premier Says Burma Will Not Join SEATO

BANGKOK, Thailand, March 8 (AP)—Burmese Premier U Nu declared today there is no possibility his country will join the Southeast Asia defense post.

Nu, who arrived in Thailand yesterday on a seven-day good will visit, told a news conference he would not discuss the Manila pact organization with Thai leaders.

There had been widespread reports here that the Thais would try to soften Nu's attitude toward the pact, which links the defenses of Thailand, The Philippines and Pakistan with those of the West. Burma, following neutralist India's leadership, has remained aloof.

Asked about Communist rebels inside Burma, Nu said:

"In our country, the Communists have now become a joke—objects to be laughed at and not to be taken seriously."

Dixie Baptist Group Wins Struggle To Prove Church Roots Deeper Than Moods Of Moment

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK, March 8 (AP)—Some steadfast Southern Baptists go back to a Rocky Mount, N.C., church this Sunday—victors in a long struggle to prove the church roots go deeper than moods of the moment.

The case seems likely to become a landmark in the history of congregationally governed churches.

It demonstrates, said the Rev. Douglas M. Branch, president of the North Carolina State Baptist Convention, that a church structure "does not belong to a congregation at any particular time."

Rather, he said, it belongs to "both the dead and the living" whose cumulative gifts have built it to serve God according to convictions of "a particular denomination or persuasion."

The question, long a touchy one among Baptists and other "free church" denominations, was appealed through three courts in a year and a half of conflict at the North Rocky Mount Baptist Church.

As a result, a minority group that remained loyal to the church's traditional Southern Baptist position regains the house of worship this Sunday from a majority that voted to switch allegiance.

The dispute arose shortly after the Rev. Samuel H. W. Johnston, of the General Assn. of Regular Baptists, became pastor. The State Supreme Court held that he "was the person who inspired and led" the dissension.

He charged the Southern and state Baptist conventions with "promoting modernism, liberalism, unbelief and apostasy."

The "true congregation," said the State Supreme Court, consists of those "who adhere and submit to the characteristics, doctrines, usages, customs and practices" accepted by both sides prior to the dispute.

Fundamental to the church, the court said, are its Southern Baptist connections.

"I doubt if this has ever been defined in this particular way," said Dr. Porter Routh, of Nashville, Tenn., secretary of the Southern Baptist Convention. "In that degree, it is breaking new ground."

The church was founded 60 years ago. It grew to a membership of about 1,300. It had a harmonious, flourishing life until the current dispute boiled over Aug. 9, 1953.

The vote to break old ties was 241 to 144. May didn't vote.

Ordinarily, that would have ended the matter, and the minority would either have to go along with the break, or get out. But they argued the church's foundations couldn't be shaken by any momentary majority.

"The thing that makes this decision important is that it was carried to court," said Dr. Albert McLellan, of Nashville, director of Southern Baptist publications. "It does, in that measure, establish a precedent.

Declared the watchman - examiner, a national Baptist publication:

"It has taken a court of law to come nearest to a definition of Baptist local church property responsibilities. . . .

"Our forefathers could not foresee a time when ambitious sectarians would lead organized raids upon Baptist churches. This generation has to meet a new type of church problem . . . the dangers inherent in our freedom."

About 540 Rocky Mount members are reported currently supporting the minority. A few of the original majority have shifted back. The others are building a new church two blocks away.

Officials of the Southern Baptist Convention, second largest Protestant body in the nation, took no part in the controversy, but made their comment in reply to this reporter's questions.

"The finding of the court," Dr. Routh said, "was that the customs and characteristics of an individual church have real meaning and substance, that they can be recognized even through they aren't written down."

Southern Baptist churches have no prescribed creed, or fixed procedures. Each acts as an independent democracy, whose "messengers" to conventions set programs of the denomination.

"One healthy result of this case," Dr. Routh said, "probably will be the writing, establishment and approval of bylaws in many individual churches for carrying on business. This can involve statements of faith."

This, he said, would have averted the Rocky Mount dispute.

R. H. Wallace, a long - time church trustee who supported the separation move, said:

"Most Bible-believing churches will not be satisfied realizing they can vote themselves into a convention with a majority vote but can never vote themselves out with a majority vote without losing their property."

'Miracle' Tot Lives Normal Life Due To Medical Science

CHICAGO, March 8 (AP)—A child born nearly three years ago with virtually no chest structure and an exposed heart is living a normal life due to medical science.

The fact that blonde Linda Wetzel is able to romp and play like any other girl her age is viewed by her mother, Mrs. Werner Wetzel, as "almost a miracle."

At her birth on Sept. 28, 1952, Linda was found to have almost no chest frame. Missing was the normal rib structure. Instead she had only stub ends protruding from her spinal column. Her heart was exposed.

Linda was transferred to Michael Reese Hospital where Dr. Saul A. Mackler determined a course of action.

Twelve days after her birth, the breastbone and rib cage from a stillborn infant were attached to Linda's body. The full developed ribs of the dead infant were interlaced with the stub ends on Linda's spinal column.

The breastbone and rib cage of the dead infant provided Linda with a framework around which her body grew, replacing the parts missing at birth.

Part of the substituted framework was absorbed or sloughed away as Linda's own body developed. Some of the transplanted tissue grew to be a portion of her body.

A recent examination, Dr. Mackler said, showed Linda's chest has developed an almost complete rib cage and breastbone. Only one small soft spot remains in the chest structure at this stage, the surgeon said.

Red-Sponsored Fair Features Consumer Goods

LEIPZIG, Germany, March 8 (AP)—It was all very confusing to visitors expecting to see the latest Moscow political line in exhibits at the Soviet-sponsored Leipzig Fair.

Consumer goods, the battle cry for the regime of ousted Soviet Premier Georgi M. Malenkov, are in abundance in the central hall of the pavilion at the fair which ends a 12-day exhibition tomorrow. These fancier items were displayed even more prominently than last year.

Heavy machiner, slogan for Communist party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai Bulganin, now riding high in the Kremlin, were shunted to the sidelines. That is, when there was anything to shunt.

The first thing the visitors saw after entering the main gate was the biggest fur display since the Russian occupiers revived the 500-year-old fair after World War II. There was a whole corridor for cosmetics, perfumes, and household goods. Men's and women's clothes, in fairly modern styles, were shown in many choice locations. Radio and TV sets, rigged to play symphonic music by the hour, were conspicuous.

The usual drill presses, lathes, turbines, transformers and generators were shown on the side. Even some of the heavy goods had an appeal for a consumer's eye. They were the Russian automobiles—the Zis, Zim, and Pobeda. A newcomer was a collapsible outboard motorboat that folds up on wheels to be hauled trailer-wise.

Two H-Bombs Would KO Britain, Red Says

MOSCOW, March 8 (AP)—Soviet writer Ilya Ehrenburg declared today "two or three H-bombs are sufficient" to knock out Britain.

Ehrenburg had this comment on British Prime Minister Churchill's recent speech asserting that the Americans lead in the H-bomb race:

"I did not count how many H-bombs we have nor how many the Americans have. Neither did Mr. Churchill. It is clear, however, that for a heavily populated country like Britain two or three H-bombs are sufficient."

Shellac's Drying Time

Shellac is quick drying, hardening dust-free within 10 minutes, but it should not be walked on, even lightly, in less than an hour. For best results, allow at least three hours between first and second coats. If a third coat is desired, allow an overnight drying period.

French Premier Faure And His Old School Chum, Mendes-France, Both 'Boy Wonders'

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS, Mar. 8 (AP)—Edgar Faure and Pierre Mendes-France, the incoming and outgoing premiers of France, were college friends who arrived at the same goal by different routes.

Both were "boy wonders" in their younger days as budding lawyers. They are "middle-aged wonders" of French politics today. They are members of the same party. But there the likenesses stop.

Mendes-France tried always for the spectacular, the break from tradition. Faure is an advocate of slow, careful planning for a limited objective. He favors the "easy-does-it" approach. Mendes-France is the politician; Faure, the technician.

The former premier sought support directly from the French people. He made up new rules for the old game of politics in France. Faure plays according to the old rules. He had concentrated on winning support from the deputies, who have the votes to put him in office.

Mendes-France was the hero of the political left. Faure, by delicate maneuvering, has managed to wind up at practically dead center in the badly splintered National Assembly. He has a foot in each camp and can move either way as the occasion demands.

Faure was the only member of the conservative Cabinet of Joseph Laniel to be held over by Mendes-France. Although when he was asking approval as new premier from the National Assembly, Faure called Mendes-France his friend, the former premier refused to vote for or against him. He abstained. Associates say considerable bitterness has developed.

One of the most spectacular moves of Faure's whole life was his recent challenge to a duel issued to a Paris newspaper editor. The newspaper had insinuated—without mentioning his name—that Faure might have been lacking in political morals because he approved a measure to cut the taxes on sales of race horses.

The seriousness of the situation, from Faure's point of view, was that the statement was made in the weekly newspaper which skyrocketed Mendes-France to office and has been his sturdiest backer. The whole affair simmered down and was dropped when Mendes-France issued a statement expressing his continued confidence in Faure—but not directly calling the newspaper in error. The newspaper never printed a retraction.

The hallmark of Mendes-France's 7½ months in office was his promise to end the Indochinese War within a month or resign. Faure prides himself on the results of an 18-month economic recovery program during his term as finance minister under Laniel and Mendes-France.

The Faure 18-month plan called for moves to facilitate investments and credits, regrouping of enterprises, standardization of products, shifting of taxes, and an effort to cut down on the number of small shopkeepers. He claims that as a result of the plan industrial production is up 12 per cent, salaries up 10 per cent, wholesale prices down 2.3 per cent and unemployment down 8 per cent.

The Faure plan got little attention either at the outset or during its progress. The means he proposed were thoroughly unspectacular. The premier says further progress can be made with exactly the same means. It is the basis for his program during his second term as premier. His first lasted six weeks in early 1952.

Faure is a quick-witted little man whose lips always seem ready to burst into a smile.

As an orator, he is much more effective when speaking extemporaneously from notes than when reading a prepared address. He tends to brush aside criticism with a good humored retort. He refrains from the Mendes-France style of acid counterattack.

Faure is the son of an army medical officer. His schooling was scattered over the nation as his father was transferred from one post to another. He attended law school in Paris and was graduated with honors at the age of 19.

After a postgraduate course at the school for Oriental languages, where he learned to speak Russian, Faure started practice of law. He specialized in oil litigation. At the start of the war he became a censor at Havas News Agency, then went to an officer training school. He was still studying when France fell.

After demobilization, he resumed practice of law, but in 1942 left German-occupied France with his wife and daughter.

"It wasn't much of an escape, we just took the last boat to North Africa," he said.

In Algiers he was appointed director of the legislative services of Gen. De Gaulle's French Committee for National Liberation.

When the government was moved to France, Mendes-France became minister of national economy. Faure was named one of his anonymous helpers.

Faure was defeated for a seat in the constituent assembly in 1946. He was elected deputy later in the year.

An ardent fisherman, he is honorary president of the "Trout Club of the Valley of Love," made up of anglers from his home district.

Faure first made the Cabinet in 1949, when he was named secretary of state for finance, a junior but important job. He then moved up to minister of budget and minister of justice as governments came and went. The government he heads is the 21st in France since liberation in 1944.

His big chance came in 1952, when he became premier. Virtually unknown at the time, he was summoned at a moment when the budget was badly out of balance and experts at the Finance Ministry were estimating the government was going in debt $2,857,140 a day.

Then 43 years old, Faure called for new taxes and reductions in government expenditures. He drew up an elaborate plan for balancing the budget and called for 39 votes of confidence to push it through the Assembly. He was beaten on the third vote and resigned.

One of the few things which Faure had time to do during his first term was to push through the Assembly an approval of the principle of the European Army.

Later both Faure and France turned cool to the idea, and it was beaten in the Assembly last August.

Faure lives with his wife and two daughters in a spacious apartment on the fashionable Avenue Foch, near the Bois de Boulogne, Paris' biggest park.

President Eisenhower, for instance. He stayed away from his White House office for a while Tuesday because of "slight symptoms," but later decided to keep most of his engagements.

Mrs. Eisenhower is ill with flu and confined to bed.

In London, Prime Minister Churchill got a slight cold, or chill as the British call it. He canceled an appearance at the Lord Mayor's luncheon welcoming Princess Margaret home from her Caribbean tour.

In Bonn, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer came down with a slight case of flu. His doctor told him to stay at home for three days.

And in Munich, a cold kept Iran's touring Shah, Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, from a planned visit to Germany's highest mountain, the 7,922-foot Zugspitze in the Bavarian Alps.

Among others under the weather is Aneurin Bevan, the leftist British Laboriate, who has the flu.

Tone-Duplicating Electronic Synthesizer Conceivably Could Replace Music Artists

Will the new electronic music synthesizer one day replace musicians and musical instruments on stage at Carnegie Hall and Hollywood Bowl?

Will the voice of the late, great Enrico Caruso be heard again singing arias he never performed when alive?

Could the machine be used by an enemy to broadcast to this country an appeal to surrender in the tones of our President?

And if you combed an electronic brain with the music synthesizer would you have a robot that could both think and talk, and perhaps tell better jokes than live TV comedians?

Those are some of the questions being asked facetiously, and occasionally with a touch of seriousness, since the unveiling of the electronic music synthesizer by Radio Corp. of America.

Board Chairman David Sarnoff of RCA says the complex gadget can duplicate the tones of the human voice or any existing musical instrument, as well as tones it has not been possible to produce.

Sarnoff, however, describes the electronic music synthesizer as a new tool for composers and musicians rather than a device to replace musical artists.

Alfred Wallenstein, conductor of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, says:

"In its present state, the electronic system of synthesized music is not at a point where it can replace or personalize live artists or orchestras. However, . . . further development of this system, when realized, should make it possible not only to expand the boundaries of music as we know them today, but also to achieve musical results that can now be achieved only through human hands and voices and with existing musical instruments."

The electronic synthesizer has seven cabinets, each about the height of a man, and is operated by a keyboard resembling that of a typewriter. When the keys are pressed they perforate a roll of paper resembling the player piano roll. These perforations cause the machine to create electric waves identical with those coming from a microphone picking up sounds from a musical instrument or a voice. The impulses are fed to a stylus and recorded on a disk.

Suppose an engineer operating the machine wanted to produce a record of a musical selection as Jose Iturbi would play it on the piano, even though Iturbi himself may never have played it. Here's what he would do:

A record of some composition that Iturbi had performed would be put on a turntable and the electric impulses or waves from the pickup would be put through an analyzer that gives a visual representation of the tones. The engineer would break down the tones of the Iturbi performance noting such characteristics as frequency, intensity, growth, duration, decay, timbre and vibrato.

The engineer now takes another composition and, using the keyboard of the synthesizer, perforates the roll of paper so the machine will produce the notes as they would sound if played on a piano by Iturbi. The keyboard perforations give him complete control over the tone characteristics, so they are the same as if produced by Iturbi.

The device does not directly produce the music, but sets up electrical waves which, if piped to a stylus, will make a record that plays back the sounds as if Iturbi had been the performing artist.

If music from more than one instrument is desired, the machine has to produce the tones for each one separately. Then the separate recordings are played back and blended into an orchestral performance.

With complete control over the overtones and other characteristics, the operator can create sounds no existing musical instrument can produce.

Comments Wallenstein: "There is no question that if perfected and made thoroughly responsive, the electronic music synthesizer can become a veritable fountain of inspiration and new ideas. . . It can synthesize voices from the past such as Caruso's great voice creating the accurate timbre, and then reconstructing an aria from some opera."

Music and science editors invited by RCA to see and hear the music synthesizer at the company's laboratories at Princeton, N.J., were deeply impressed by the device and its implications.

The electronic music synthesizer was constructed under the direction of Dr. Harry F. Olson, director of RCA's acoustical laboratory, with the aid of Herbert Belar, acoustical engineer. It cost $25,000 and took a year to build. And another year was needed to learn how to use it.

Mental Illness Called Greatest Health Problem

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — Mental illness is the greatest single problem in the nation's health picture, a Hoover Commission task force said today.

The commission said more than half of the hospital beds in the United States are devoted to care of the mentally ill. It added about 250,000 new patients will have their first admission to such hospitals this year.

The commission said at the present rate of illness, one in every twelve children born in this country will spend some time in a mental institution and the number of prolonged-care patients is steadily increasing at the rate of 10,000 a year.

The figures are contained in a special report on mental illness prepared under the direction of Dr. Francis J. Braceland, Hartford, Conn., a member of the commission's task force on medical services.

The report on this phase of health was submitted to Congress last week as part of the commission's recommendations for more efficient medical services in government.

The commission urged that the Advisory Council of Health, which it proposed, study means of establishing cooperative planning among federal agencies providing psychiatric care, and that the military services and Veterans Administration give greater emphasis to preventive psychiatric services.

It also recommended that the federal government, through the Public Health Service, encourage wider research and training of psychiatrists and workers in allied fields. It said one of the greatest bottlenecks in caring for mental patients was the lack of trained personnel.

The growing needs in this field, the commission said, are reported to be largely the result of population growth and the larger proportion of older people rather than any upsurge in the rate of ailments of the mind.

Young Hero Honored Again For Bravery

LONDON, March 8 (AP)—Anthony Rivers, 17, was singled out for extreme bravery yesterday for the second time in his young life.

British Railways presented him a check—amount undisclosed—and a certificate for saving the life of a 66-year-old woman who had caught her foot between two rails at a crossing and struggled helplessly before an onrushing train.

Rivers pinned down her shoulders, getting her body as far as possible from the engine, but was struck himself. He received a fractured pelvis and other injuries. The woman lost her foot.

"There is little doubt," said a railway executive, K. X. C. Grand, "that but for his actions, the woman, a Mrs. Rowlands, would have been killed."

When he was 14, Rivers rode his bicycle in pursuit of a runaway horse, leaped into a cart and stopped the horse before it reached a group of small children leaving school. He holds four awards for heroism.

Her Swiss attorney, the friend said, has consulted with a leading lawyer in Beirut, Lebanon, concerning procedure to follow. Narriman married Dr. Adham El Nakib of Cairo May 4, 1954, after getting a divorce from ex-King Farouk.

She came to Switzerland last October for medical treatment.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, March 8—(INS)—I cornered Gary Cooper a few nights ago at a dinner and asked him what motion picture is really on his schedule. He said that he has been talking with Willy Wyler about "Friendly Persuasion," which Frank Capra sold to Willy.

"I think you printed something about it. It's a story about Quakers during the period of the Civil War. As soon as 'The Billy Mitchell Story' is finished I want to read that," Coop said.

"The Billy Mitchell Story," I told him has met up with difficulties according to Milton Sperling. He is being sued by a man named Glassman, who bought a book on Mitchell by Isaac Don Levine.

Looks like Arthur Krim's money is going to be spent pretty lavishly in our industry this next few years. He is furnishing money for stars right and left. Joan Crawford has just agreed to make six pictures in six years for the Krim company—United Artists, that is.

In three of them Joan will star, and the other three she'll choose the talent and act as producer. She has always wanted to be a producer.

I can understand William Dieterle's enthusiasm in writing the life story of Mozart. No composer had as controversial a life as did Mozart, who as a child was a pet of the royal family in Austria and who later had many adversities. His first piano is on exhibition in Salzburg, along with many other memorabilia of his childhood.

Under the name of William Sidney, Dieterle is writing the Mozart story, and after it is finished he will put it on the screen as "The Divine Mozart." He says it will take years. Well, it took him ten years to make the life of Richard Wagner, "Magic Fire," which he completed not long ago with Carlos Thompson, Yvonne De Carlo and Alan Badel in Germany.

Libbie Block writes to thank me for what I had to say about her story, "Beverly Carle," in Good Housekeeping magazine. I recognized two of her principal characters as Marilyn Monroe and Howard Hughes.

"It's gratifying that you recognized my principal theme, which was an attempt to combat some of the unfavorable publicity given the motion picture industry and its stars, who, in my notion, do a great deal—perhaps even more than their share—for worthy people and causes," writes Miss Block (Mrs. Pat Duggan).

"Though I am a bystander who does not work in the industry, I have long been disturbed by the slings and arrows thrown at a basically great art and/or business, and the fine people who make it their life work. It is a theme I shall hope to deal with again."

Say what you will about Mae West, she's still a big draw to the paying customers—who are more amused these days than shocked by her wisecracks.

So it's interesting to learn from Florida that Mae's planning to give Broadway a chance to "come up 'n' see" her next fall in a new play "Gold Brick Cassie," about a hard driving career woman of the 1900's.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

The wildest rumor in town is that Milton Greene, Marilyn Monroe's mentor, will soon become a 20th Century-Fox producer. That I don't expect to live long enough to see.

Jack Dempsey, who always spends Easter with his two daughters, gets here early this year—in time for the opening of Estelle Allardale's new shop. Any day you may expect to hear an announcement of their engagement.

A great honor has come to my friend, Maureen O'Sullivan Farrow. She's invited to the annual Antostal (festival) in Dublin, May 8, to play three weeks. She'll accept if Johnny Farrow is home from India in time to look after the children.

Jeff Morrow and his actress wife, Anna Karen, will appear in summer stock in Denver. Anna hasn't been active since Jeff was brought to Hollywood for "The Robe."

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Home Show Highlight Of Jaycee Activities

The Cumberland Home Show is the high point of a year-round program of activities conducted here by the Junior Association of Commerce, the only organization in the city exclusively for young men between the ages of 21 and 35 years.

Other traditonal activities include the Voice of Democracy speech contest for high school students, the Teen-Age Road-e-o, to encourage young drivers to be safe drivers and the Soap Box Derby in which the Jaycees annually provide the needed supervisory manpower.

Right after the Home Show ends the Jaycees must next turn to the State Convention which will be held here April 29, 30 and May 1.

George L. Carney Jr., Jaycee president and also general chairman of the Home Show, has named every member of the organization to at least one of the 15 committees for the three-day event.

Among the committee chairman are Raymond L. Lapp Jr., Richard A. Sell and Paul Buchanan, co-chairmen of the interior building committee; Thomas F. Conlon Jr., insurance committee; Raymond C. Firey, co-chairmen of exterior building committee; Robert Moore, decorations; Albert D. Darby Jr., publicity; Joseph H. Pellerzi, finance; Edward Sokolowski, safety and fire prevention; Gilbert Bohn and Arthur Crum, prizes; Kenneth Williams and Miles S. Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, March 8—(INS)—I cornered Gary Cooper a few nights ago at a dinner and asked him what motion picture is really on his schedule. He said that he has been talking with Willy Wyler about "Friendly Persuasion," which Frank Capra sold to Willy.

"I think you printed something about it. It's a story about Quakers during the period of the Civil War. As soon as 'The Billy Mitchell Story' is finished I want to read that," Coop said.

"The Billy Mitchell Story," I told him has met up with difficulties according to Milton Sperling. He is being sued by a man named Glassman, who bought a book on Mitchell by Isaac Don Levine.

Looks like Arthur Krim's money is going to be spent pretty lavishly in our industry this next few years. He is furnishing money for stars right and left. Joan Crawford has just agreed to make six pictures in six years for the Krim company—United Artists, that is.

In three of them Joan will star, and the other three she'll choose the talent and act as producer. She has always wanted to be a producer.

I can understand William Dieterle's enthusiasm in writing the life story of Mozart. No composer had as controversial a life as did Mozart, who as a child was a pet of the royal family in Austria and who later had many adversities. His first piano is on exhibition in Salzburg, along with many other memorabilia of his childhood.

Under the name of William Sidney, Dieterle is writing the Mozart story, and after it is finished he will put it on the screen as "The Divine Mozart." He says it will take years. Well, it took him ten years to make the life of Richard Wagner, "Magic Fire," which he completed not long ago with Carlos Thompson, Yvonne De Carlo and Alan Badel in Germany.

Libbie Block writes to thank me for what I had to say about her story, "Beverly Carle," in Good Housekeeping magazine. I recognized two of her principal characters as Marilyn Monroe and Howard Hughes.

"It's gratifying that you recognized my principal theme, which was an attempt to combat some of the unfavorable publicity given the motion picture industry and its stars, who, in my notion, do a great deal—perhaps even more than their share—for worthy people and causes," writes Miss Block (Mrs. Pat Duggan).

"Though I am a bystander who does not work in the industry, I have long been disturbed by the slings and arrows thrown at a basically great art and/or business, and the fine people who make it their life work. It is a theme I shall hope to deal with again."

Say what you will about Mae West, she's still a big draw to the paying customers—who are more amused these days than shocked by her wisecracks.

So it's interesting to learn from Florida that Mae's planning to give Broadway a chance to "come up 'n' see" her next fall in a new play "Gold Brick Cassie," about a hard driving career woman of the 1900's.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

The wildest rumor in town is that Milton Greene, Marilyn Monroe's mentor, will soon become a 20th Century-Fox producer. That I don't expect to live long enough to see.

Jack Dempsey, who always spends Easter with his two daughters, gets here early this year—in time for the opening of Estelle Allardale's new shop. Any day you may expect to hear an announcement of their engagement.

A great honor has come to my friend, Maureen O'Sullivan Farrow. She's invited to the annual Antostal (festival) in Dublin, May 8, to play three weeks. She'll accept if Johnny Farrow is home from India in time to look after the children.

Jeff Morrow and his actress wife, Anna Karen, will appear in summer stock in Denver. Anna hasn't been active since Jeff was brought to Hollywood for "The Robe."

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Home Show Highlight Of Jaycee Activities

The Cumberland Home Show is the high point of a year-round program of activities conducted here by the Junior Association of Commerce, the only organization in the city exclusively for young men between the ages of 21 and 35 years.

Other tradiitonal activities include the Voice of Democracy speech contest for high school students, the Teen-Age Road-e-o, to encourage young drivers to be safe drivers and the Soap Box Derby in which the Jaycees annually provide the needed supervisory manpower.

Right after the Home Show ends the Jaycees must next turn to the State Convention which will be held here April 29, 30 and May 1.

George L. Carney Jr., Jaycee president and also general chairman of the Home Show, has named every member of the organization to at least one of the 15 committees for the three-day event.

Among the committee chairman are Raymond L. Lapp Jr., Richard A. Sell and Paul Buchanan, co-chairmen of the interior building committee; Thomas F. Conlon Jr., insurance committee; Raymond C. Dorn and E. William Lowery, co-chairmen of concession stand committee; Oscar H. Lashley Jr., sales committee; Conrad Hohing and Dr William S. Firey, co-chairmen of exterior building committee; Robert Moore, decorations; Albert D. Darby Jr., publicity; Joseph H. Pellerzi, finance; Edward Sokolowski, safety and fire prevention; Gilbert Bohn and Arthur Crum, prizes; Kenneth Williams and Miles S. Amick, co-chairmen of public address system; George R. registration; James Martinson, Hughes Jr., legal; Lewis C. Millholland III, photography.

Firemen Check Call

East Side firemen were called at 10:24 a. m. yesterday to Kellough's Pharmacy, corner of Decatur and Frederick streets, to check the transformer in a ceiling fluorscent light. A short circuit was blamed for minor damage.

Va. Demo Sen. Byrd Quarterbacks Administration Trade, Tax Battles

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — The Eisenhower administration has called on Sen. Harry Flood Byrd, doughty Virginia Democrat, to quarterback legislative battles over taxes and trade that may split the Senate wide open.

Byrd, grower of 160 million apples last year, is calling Senate signals now in administration efforts to defeat a Democratic-sponsored $20-a-person income tax cut.

When that fight is over Byrd will pick up the ball for what may be an even tougher tussle to get the Senate to go along with House approval of the reciprocal trade agreements program.

For the stocky, 67-year-old Virginia senator it will not be a new experience to buck his own party's leaders, as he will have to do on the tax bill.

Byrd cut his pattern of opposition to the proposals of Democratic administrations only a short time after he arrived in the Senate 22 years ago in the dark days of the depression. That March 4, 1933 arrival was not particularly auspicious.

The banks were closed and the new senator from Berryville, Va., didn't have a dime of cash in his pockets. For one of the few times in a business and political career that began at 15 on his father's almost-bankrupt newspaper, Byrd had to ask friends to take his I. O. U.'s.

The young senator, who had set some records for economy and business - like administration as governor of Virginia, pitched in with enthusiasm to support Franklin D. Roosevelt's bill to cut federal expenditures 15 per cent.

Significantly, he cast his first Senate vote for that bill, which was entitled "a bill to preserve the credit of the United States."

The Virginian's enthusiasm and support vanished a few months later when F.D.R. turned to a pump-priming program.

Despite his open criticisms of the programs of Roosevelt and former President Truman—who once said there were "too many Byrds in Congress"—the Virginian never bolted the Democratic ticket until Dwight D. Eisenhower turned up as the Republican presidential candidate in 1952.

Byrd didn't endorse Eisenhower. He just said he couldn't support the Democratic nominee, former Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois.

Coming as it did from the head of the party organization in Virginia, this was enough. Virginians split their ballot, going for Eisenhower on the GOP side and re-electing Byrd senator on the Democratic side.

The result left Byrd with what for him was a satisfying independence of action. He was welcomed at the White House and once he was sounded out, but refused to consider, the secretaryship of the Treasury.

He was still a regular Democrat with all that implied. When the Democrats took over control of Congress this year, there was no question about his elevation to chairmanship of the Senate Finance Committee.

The Eisenhower administration quickly found out it had enlisted no supporter who could be cajoled into going along on legislation he didn't like. Byrd led the fight that denied the administration an increase in the federal debt limit for a year and finally forced the Republicans to compromise for less than they wanted.

He draws from his own experiences in politics and business his creed that government ought to be on a pay-as-you-go basis, and that it ought to keep as much as possible out of the lives of individuals.

As an indication that he practices what he preaches, Byrd never has accepted government soil conservation payments which would have brought him close to $150,000 over the years.

He would rather grow his apples in his own way. And he would rather be his own man in the Senate.

Tug-Of-War Over Bedspread Won By Chilly Burglar

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 8 (AP)—It was cold early one morning when Mr. and Mrs. Billy H. Kelton began a sleepy tug-of-war over a bedspread.

Kelton told police he felt the bedspread slipping and thought his wife was pulling it. His wife thought he was pulling it.

'Wrong Patient' Operation Costs Surgeon $7,500

Mrs. Stella Mrozowski, 37, of Detroit, had sought $100,000 damages from Dr. Russell E. Lynch. The settlement was announced by visiting Circuit Judge Raymond L. Smith, of Holland, Mich.

Mrs. Mrozowski charged that on April 17, 1952, she was rushed to Holy Cross Hospital after two fingers of her right hand had been severed in an accident at a factory where she worked.

When she awoke after the operation she said she discovered her abdomen was bandaged and was told skin had been removed for grafting purposes. Later, she said, she discovered her gall bladder had been removed.

Dr. Lynch said he was an innocent party. He said he was notified that a patient was ready for surgery, and that despite the fact he was assisted by the family doctor of the other patient, did not discover he was operating on the wrong person until the operation was nearly over.

After the operation, he said he treated Mrs. Mrozowski's hand, and, besides, he added, her gall bladder was in poor condition.

Iran Queen Downs Beer

MUNICH, Germany, March 8 (AP) — Queen Soraya of Iran downed a stein of Bavarian beer in a Munich beer cellar yesterday while 5,000 patrons cheered.

The Queen, whose mother is German, visited the huge Salvator beer cellar. A costumed band played Bavarian folk songs.

Shapely legs show off stocking styles to advantage . . . and vice versa, of course.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

It used to be that a wardrobe of stockings meant having just enough pairs—usually of the same color—to produce a replacement for one with a run. Today stockings tell a fashion story: there are blues to wear with a navy suit, grays for your muted dresses, powdery pastels for your spring and summer styles. There are knee-highs for sportswear, sheers for dress, business sheers for everyday.

Add to these weight and color developments the many factors in fit, such as proportioned lengths, stretch nylon stockings, elasticized welts, hose with extra toe and heel space. You see, there's far, far more to a stocking purchase than telling a sales-person your size!

Basic Knowledge

I couldn't begin to advise you, in these few paragraphs, of all the news in the hosiery departments, so you must be your own sleuth. I will tell you something more basic, however: how to shape and beautify your legs, so you can't help but have an interest in the sheer or sporting coat that sheathes them.

Ankles. "Wring out" your ankles as you would a wet towel. Use a sideways winding motion, turning the hands simultaneously about the ankles in opposite directions, back and forth. This is a slimming technique.

Calves. Try this for reducing: Sit on the floor with legs out and together. Stretch feet down toward the floor, hold for a count of five, and relax. Repeat 15 times. Try this for increasing: Stand barefoot, with one foot about a pace ahead of the other. Come up on the toes, then bend your knees, and gradually sink to the floor. (Be sure to hold your back erect.) Rise to your toes again, and repeat 10 times. Reverse foot position, and perform 10 times more.

Your Shoes

If you wish to reduce the calves, wear high heels whenever feasible. Flats, ballet slippers, and the like set up tension in the calf muscles, tending to increase their development. That's good for the too-slim calf, but not for the fleshy one!

If your knees are somewhat flabby, try this exercise: Stand with feet together and pull kneecaps upward. Hold, relax, repeat 20 times. Without moving the feet, pull your kneecaps sideways, away from each other. Again hold, relax, and repeat 20 times.

HOW MUCH SHOULD YOU WEIGH?

A new, lightning calculator that tells you how to compute your own individual ideal weight. Write to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper, enclosing 10c (in coin) and a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ask for "How Much Should You Weigh?"

Tomorrow—Using your articulators correctly.

"Phonovisual Method" Is Called Answer To Poor Reading Problem

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — More than 20 years ago a couple of teachers, Lucille Schoolfield and Josephine Timberlake, brooded over what educators still rate as a No.1 problem:

Why is it that so many students, even in high school and college, read so poorly?

"We tore our hair," said Miss Timberlake.

"We agonized over it," said Miss Schoolfield.

Being determined women, they didn't stop there. They worked out something called the "phonovisual method" of learning to read.

"It used to be," Miss Timberlake explained, "that everyone learned to read phonetically, by sounding out the words."

"Then everything changed," Miss Schoolfield said. "Phonetics were out completely. Everything became sight reading."

"There's no reason," Miss Timberlake said, "why any youngster with normal intelligence shouldn't learn to read—and read well."

The teachers worked out their system, made themselves some charts to help the youngsters learn, and in 1944 founded the Nonprofit Primary Day School here. Yesterday they had more than 100 primary teachers from surrounding states in to see how the method is getting along.

A reporter who tagged along for the demonstration can safely report this: The President, Congressmen and other big shots do all right before a crowd, but for real aplomb it's hard to beat a group of first graders.

They marched in, and were handed a book they never had seen before. They were to read this, to themselves, and then report on what they had read. Well, they squirmed, they scratched and they wiggled, but they also concentrated.

The story dealt with what seemed to an old farm boy as a most unlikely problem, on how a small chick was to get to the other side of the puddle.

But the kids tackled it wholeheartedly, and finally Babs Brown, aged 6 and not much bigger than a chick herself, said: "He went around!"

The primary teachers, who were in a much better position to evaluate such things, all clucked approvingly. They also liked the spelling done by the second graders, who whisked through words like "milkshake" and "hamburger" without even having to shift into low gear.

Miss Timberlake said a number of schools now use the system, or systems like it, and she's convinced that if it spreads, it will answer the nation's poor reading problem.

In its early stages, Miss T. said, when the words are pronounced phonetically, you get some strange results. And she cited this original composition by a first grader:

"Wuns I had a pupit but wun day he wus gawn. I wanted my pupit back. I saw a pupit in the store like my lowst pupit. I got my pupit back for crisms. His name is Genty."

"At least," Miss Timberlake said, "you know what he wanted to say."

And in this town, that's something.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 8 (AP)—It was cold early one morning when Mr. and Mrs. Billy H. Kelton began a sleepy tug-of-war over a bedspread.

Kelton told police he felt the bedspread slipping and thought his wife was pulling it. His wife thought he was pulling it.

'Wrong Patient' Operation Costs Surgeon $7,500

Mrs. Stella Mrozowski, 37, of Detroit, had sought $100,000 damages from Dr. Russell E. Lynch. The settlement was announced by visiting Circuit Judge Raymond L. Smith, of Holland, Mich.

Mrs. Mrozowski charged that on April 17, 1952, she was rushed to Holy Cross Hospital after two fingers of her right hand had been severed in an accident at a factory where she worked.

When she awoke after the operation she said she discovered her abdomen was bandaged and was told skin had been removed for grafting purposes. Later, she said, she discovered her gall bladder had been removed.

Dr. Lynch said he was an innocent party. He said he was notified that a patient was ready for surgery, and that despite the fact he was assisted by the family doctor of the other patient, did not discover he was operating on the wrong person until the operation was nearly over.

After the operation, he said he treated Mrs. Mrozowski's hand, and, besides, he added, her gall bladder was in poor condition.

Iran Queen Downs Beer

MUNICH, Germany, March 8 (AP) — Queen Soraya of Iran downed a stein of Bavarian beer in a Munich beer cellar yesterday while 5,000 patrons cheered.

The Queen, whose mother is German, visited the huge Salvator beer cellar. A costumed band played Bavarian folk songs.

Only two cities in Nebraska are of more than 25,000 population: Omaha and Lincoln.

Shapely legs show off stocking styles to advantage . . . and vice versa, of course.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

It used to be that a wardrobe of stockings meant having just enough pairs—usually of the same color—to produce a replacement for one with a run. Today stockings tell a fashion story: there are blues to wear with a navy suit, grays for your muted dresses, powdery pastels for your spring and summer styles. There are knee-highs for sportswear, sheers for dress, business sheers for everyday.

Add to these weight and color developments the many factors in fit, such as proportioned lengths, stretch nylon stockings, elasticized welts, hose with extra toe and heel space. You see, there's far, far more to a stocking purchase than telling a sales-person your size!

Basic Knowledge

I couldn't begin to advise you, in these few paragraphs, of all the news in the hosiery departments, so you must be your own sleuth. I will tell you something more basic, however: how to shape and beautify your legs, so you can't help but have an interest in the sheer or sporting coat that sheathes them.

Ankles. "Wring out" your ankles as you would a wet towel. Use a sideways winding motion, turning the hands simultaneously about the ankles in opposite directions, back and forth. This is a slimming technique.

Calves. Try this for reducing: Sit on the floor with legs out and together. Stretch feet down toward the floor, hold for a count of five, and relax. Repeat 15 times. Try this for increasing: Stand barefoot, with one foot about a pace ahead of the other. Come up on the toes, then bend your knees, and gradually sink to the floor. (Be sure to hold your back erect.) Rise to your toes again, and repeat 10 times. Reverse foot position, and perform 10 times more.

Your Shoes

If you wish to reduce the calves, wear high heels whenever feasible. Flats, ballet slippers, and the like set up tension in the calf muscles, tending to increase their development. That's good for the too-slim calf, but not for the fleshy one!

If your knees are somewhat flabby, try this exercise: Stand with feet together and pull kneecaps upward. Hold, relax, repeat 20 times. Without moving the feet, pull your kneecaps sideways, away from each other. Again hold, relax, and repeat 20 times.

HOW MUCH SHOULD YOU WEIGH?

A new, lightning calculator that tells you how to compute your own individual ideal weight. Write to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper, enclosing 10c (in coin) and a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ask for "How Much Should You Weigh?"

Tomorrow—Using your articulators correctly.

"Phonovisual Method" Is Called Answer To Poor Reading Problem

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — More than 20 years ago a couple of teachers, Lucille Schoolfield and Josephine Timberlake, brooded over what educators still rate as a No.1 problem:

Why is it that so many students, even in high school and college, read so poorly?

"We tore our hair," said Miss Timberlake.

"We agonized over it," said Miss Schoolfield.

Being determined women, they didn't stop there. They worked out something called the "phonovisual method" of learning to read.

"It used to be," Miss Timberlake explained, "that everyone learned to read phonetically, by sounding out the words."

"Then everything changed," Miss Schoolfield said. "Phonetics were out completely. Everything became sight reading."

"There's no reason," Miss Timberlake said, "why any youngster with normal intelligence shouldn't learn to read—and read well."

The teachers worked out their system, made themselves some charts to help the youngsters learn, and in 1944 founded the Nonprofit Primary Day School here. Yesterday they had more than 100 primary teachers from surrounding states in to see how the method is getting along.

A reporter who tagged along for the demonstration can safely report this: The President, Congressmen and other big shots do all right before a crowd, but for real aplomb it's hard to beat a group of first graders.

They marched in, and were handed a book they never had seen before. They were to read this, to themselves, and then report on what they had read. Well, they squirmed, they scratched and they wiggled, but they also concentrated.

The story dealt with what seemed to an old farm boy as a most unlikely problem, on how a small chick was to get to the other side of the puddle.

But the kids tackled it wholeheartedly, and finally Babs Brown, aged 6 and not much bigger than a chick herself, said: "He went around!"

The primary teachers, who were in a much better position to evaluate such things, all clucked approvingly. They also liked the spelling done by the second graders, who whisked through words like "milkshake" and "hamburger" without even having to shift into low gear.

Miss Timberlake said a number of schools now use the system, or systems like it, and she's convinced that if it spreads, it will answer the nation's poor reading problem.

In its early stages, Miss T. said, when the words are pronounced phonetically, you get some strange results. And she cited this original composition by a first grader:

"Wuns I had a pupit but wun day he wus gawn. I wanted my pupit back. I saw a pupit in the store like my lowst pupit. I got my pupit back for crisms. His name is Genty."

"At least," Miss Timberlake said, "you know what he wanted to say."

Margaret, Welcomed Back Home, Drops No Hint Of Marriage Plans

LONDON, March 8 (AP)—The City of London today officially welcomed pretty Princess Margaret home from her Caribbean tour. She took the spotlight with a smile and spoke lyrically of the delights of the British West Indies, from which she returned last week.

"I am sure there are no peoples who are more proud of their British heritage, nor more eager to display their deep sense of loyalty to the crown," she told a luncheon gathering at the ornate mansion house of Lord Mayor Sir Seymour Howard.

Apparently undisturbed by rumors she plans to marry a 40-year-old divorced war hero, the Princess, 24, dropped no hint of the secrets of her heart. She said nothing of the speculations which are intriguing Britons.

Thousands of Londoners gave her a big hand as she rode in a royal car through crowded streets to the Mansion House. Their interest was stimulated by the reports that after Aug. 21, when she will be 25 and according to royal rule she will no longer have to get her sister's permission, she will be married to RAF Capt. Peter Townsend.

India's Sacred Monkeys Not For U. S. Research

NEW DELHI, India, March 8 (AP)—India's sacred monkeys no longer will be sent to America for experimental research, the Commerce Ministry said last night.

In the eight months up to last November India sent 40,000 monkeys, worth almost $150,000, to the United States. They have been among the country's best dollar earners.

Hindus regard monkeys as sacred.

Kammholz Confirmed

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — The Senate today confirmed President Eisenhower's nomination of Theophile C. Kammholz of Chicago to be general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board.

Kammholz, 45, is a labor relations attorney. He succeeds George Bott whose term expired last December.

Arkansas was the 25th state to be admitted to the Union.

Increase In Dope Addiction Traced To Red China

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — H. J. Anslinger, federal narcotics commissioner, said today he has traced "a very decided increase" in narcotics addiction in this country to Red China's door.

Testifying before the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, Anslinger charged that the Peiping regime maintains an official trade bureau "to promote the distribution of heroin" through legal and illegal channels abroad.

He said his personal view is that this alone should be grounds for rejection of the Reds' bid for a seat in the United Nations because, he said:

Anslinger estimated the Chinese trade bureau reaped a 60 million dollars harvest from the sale of narcotics in 1954, "not all of it from the United States."

He said Red China "definitely" is the source of drugs which have caused an increase in addiction.

"Friendly Study" Has Its Problems

So long as the approach to the subject remains as it has started, there can be little quarrel with the investigation of the stock market which is being conducted by the Senate Banking Committee. The chairman of the committee calls it a "friendly study" and says the purpose of it is "education, not accusation."

Senator Capehart, a member of the committee, says he has no reason to believe there has been any "skullduggery or rigging," but he will be watchful for facts and information.

Although committee members have expressed the hope that calmness will mark the inquiry throughout, the possibility always exists in a probe of this kind that the conflict of views will be less than good-natured. That is particularly the fact because many of the witnesses have reason to remember what happened in 1929 and may be moved by their fears to testify that a similar collapse is in the making today.

There is danger, too—and the committee seems to recognize it—that the mere fact that an inquiry is under way will have an adverse effect on the orderly movement of stock prices. Quite wisely, Senator Fulbright, who heads this investigation, cautions impulsive investors not to rush into action on the basis of statements made on any one day by any one witness, however competent he may be.

The next day's developments and testimony may change the picture entirely and make the investors wish that they had not done what they did.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Churchill's Position

Winston Churchill is in an extremely difficult position. Since 1946, every propagandistic weapon has been used by the British government to condemn Chiang Kai-shek and to ruin his reputation in the eyes of the British people. This propaganda has spread over the continent of Europe and has manifested itself in such a country as India. The political reason for this activity was to prevent Asiatic diversions from lessening the interest of the United States in the affairs of Europe. Even before 1946, General MacArthur suffered from Washington's concentration on European affairs. Frazier Hunt, in his book, "The Untold Story of Douglas MacArthur," details MacArthur's difficulties arising from lack of materiel while he was actually fighting the Asiatic war.

Now Churchill is faced by a prepared public opinion in his own country which is embarrassing because it cannot be turned. Great Britain is definitely anti-Chiang Kai-shek, whose side has never been properly presented to the British people. The situation is now such that it is developing into a widening breach between Great Britain and the United States at a time when such a breach can be damaging to both countries and to the unity of the West.

On this subject, Churchill has served a warning to his own countrymen:

"The decision on whether or when these particular islands should be evacuated is not one the burden of which falls upon Her Majesty's Government, as we must recognize the natural preoccupations of other governments who are immediately affected by the threatened attack from Communist China.

"This is especially true at a time when the Chinese Communists keep stridently asserting that the islands are to be regarded as a stepping stone to the seizure of Formosa itself, with all that that must mean for the Chinese Nationalists under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, who have been given shelter and protection there by the United States, and to whom the United States are bound by over 14 years comradeship in war, both against the Chinese Communists and the Japanese invaders of China."

Churchill's use of language is never casual. He is speaking not of Formosa, but of what he calls "the coastal islands" which today amount to Matsu and Quemoy. If, by any means, these two areas fall into the hands of the Chinese Communists, it is doubtful whether Formosa is defensible. But Formosa is only a phase of a broader situation which involves South Korea, Vietnam and Thailand. Regarding Vietnam and Thailand, there can be no doubt as to the British interest. But for Formosa, the British government cannot now get popular support to go along wholeheartedly with the American program which must include defense of Matsu and Quemoy or mean nothing.

The dilemma is not readily dissolvable and is of benefit to the Communists. The great fear of Europe, particularly in Great Britain, is that resistance to the imperialism of Red China may drag all the world into an atomic war in which Europe will be the speediest and most disastrous sufferer. In an earlier statement, Sir Anthony Eden undoubtedly expressed European opinion when he said:

"In this situation the first concern of Her Majesty's Government is to stop the fighting. They have therefore continued to urge on all concerned the importance of doing this and of preventing a wider conflagration. A solution of these delicate and difficult problems is not to be reached by force. A settlement can only be arrived at by the peaceful processes of patient negotiation."

Unfortunately, it is not to Chou En-lai's interest to negotiate for a cease-fire or a peace; it is to the advantage of the Chinese Communists to capture Formosa and to establish beyond doubt their hegemony over the states of Southeast Asia to the borders of India. Thus far, they have rejected the British and Indian efforts to establish a modus operandi for a cease-fire. Tennessee's Gov. Clements Runs Up Expenses Speaking For Democrats

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Under the Dome—Still operating on a shoestring budget, the Democratic National Committee may raise Tennessee's assessment to the committee to make up for Gov. Frank Clement's whopping expenses last fall. The governor gave speeches for the Democrats in only six Midwestern states, but turned in an expense account of $4,800 . . . In contrast, Tennessee's rugged campaigner, Sen. Estes Kefauver, went on a barnstorming, speech-making tour through 20 states, coast to coast. Yet he submitted a bill for only $1,200 expenses . . . Deputy Attorney General Bill Rogers, who escorted new Supreme Court Justice John Harlan to his Senate hearing, warned him ruefully: "A Senate hearing isn't a judicial process. It's more of a fraternity initiation." . . . The White House is quietly working out a compromise on reciprocal trade with the Senate's protectionist Republicans. Despite the victory given him by Speaker Sam Rayburn in the House, the President is willing to back down from a three to a two-year extension of the trade program. He'll also write in special protection for hardship industries. . . . The Democrats have coined a new title for Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, whose influence is felt in all departments of government. The Democrats call him "secretary of everything." . . . The Labor Department, already hard-pressed with the problems of manpower, will delve into a new one next week. A conference has been called on how to make best use of the nation's womanpower.

Bad News For Farmers

It will be a blow to the little farmers, but the Hoover Commission will soon spring drastic, new recommendations to tighten farm credit. The main effect will be to transfer the benefits of farm price supports, in part, from the farmers to the bankers.

These to-heck-with-the-farmers recommendations aren't supposed to be made public for several weeks, but this column has received a copy of the forthcoming Hoover Commission's report on streamlining the farm financing agencies.

Most jolting to farmers will be a recommendation "that the Commodity Credit Corporation cease to make loans on commodities and that it confine itself to purchase agreements on commodities."

This would revolutionize the whole price-support program, since most farmers draw their price supports in advance in the form of commodity loans. At harvest time, the farmers repay the government on as much of their crop as they can sell, then forfeit the rest as collateral.

The Hoover Commission's idea is to turn the juicy, $3,000,000,000, annual crop-loan business over to private banks. Explains the forthcoming report: "A considerable saving of administrative expenditures could be made if the corporation abandoned making loans to farmers on commodities and used the method of purchase agreements alone. The farmer could with such a government contract finance himself by loans on his commodities from private institutions pending his deterinmation as to when he would sell, and thus the private financial machinery could finance the crop at a considerable saving to the government."

In other words, the farmers would be forced to go to their banks and pay commercial interest rates for their crop loans. The bankers wouldn't risk a nickle since the purchase agreements would be tantamount to a government guarantee of the loans. What this would amount to is price supports for bankers.

Tighter Credit

Another Hoover recommendation that will knock the little farmers for a loop, calls for tightening credit on farm home loans. This will make it next to impossible for little farmers to buy their own homes. At it now stands, the Farmers Home Administration will loan up to 90 per cent on the appraised value of a farm. The Hoover Commission, however, wants the FHA to "require adequate equities under all its loan programs except disaster and emergency crop and feed loans."

Though vague, this indicates the FHA should, in Hoover's opinion, toughen its loan policy in line with private banks. Yet the whole purpose of FHA is to provide loans to farmers who have been turned down by their local bankers.

The Hoover report further urges "that the Congress require such interest fees, premiums or other charges as will cover administrative expenses, cost of money to the Treasury, and losses."

The effect of this will be to boost interest rates to the little farmers up to 12 or 13 per cent. One of the biggest "administrative expenses," for example, is to make sure these small farm loans are sound. This has resulted in a 99 per cent FHA repayment record.

The Hoover proposals would practically knock out the small-farm ownership program on the justification that "this commission, except in disaster and emergency loans, cannot approve of indirect subsidies to a fraction of the people from the taxpayers at large."

Yet in the same breath, the commission proposes what amounts to "indirect subsidies" to the bankers who, mysteriously, seem to be the beneficiaries of so many Hoover recommendations.

New Kind Of Drought

This same thinking is applied to the recommendations on crop insurance. Urges the forthcoming Hoover report: "We recommend that premiums charged by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation be increased to an amount which will cover losses, the cost of administration, provide reserves and provide for repayment of federal capital and thus its mutualization and ownership by the farmers."

Again this would result in an enormous increase in the cost to farmers. In fact, the cost would be so high that most farmers wouldn't be able to afford federal crop insurance. Rather than lead to "ownership by the farmers," it would more likely kill the program altogether.

The Hoover Commission will also come out with a host of minor, technical recommendations on streamlining the Farm Credit Administration. Almost without exception, these recommendations would tend to increase interest rates and generally dry up rural credit.

If the Hoover proposals go through, the little farmers can look forward to a new kind of drought—a credit drought.

Congress' Pay Raise Limits Appointments To Bench

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — When Congress raised the pay of its members, it imposed on them a handicap little realized by the public and perhaps by the senators and representatives themselves.

For under the Constitution no member of either house can be appointed to any office in the other branches of the government if the compensation or allowances for those offices have been increased during their terms. Hence, there can be no additions to the federal judiciary from Congress until the current terms of members of both houses expire.

Thus, members of the House will not become eligible for appointment again to the federal bench until after January 3, 1957, and senators who were elected for six-year terms last fall will not become eligible for appointment as federal judges until after January 3, 1961.

Many Vacancies Now

There are a lot of vacancies on the federal bench now, and some new justiceships that have been created which are unfilled. It has been customary in the past to fill some of these from among members of Congress. In some instances members of Congress have been appointed to the Supreme Court of the United States while still serving the terms for which they were elected. Notable examples were Senator Hugo Black of Alabama, who was nominated in 1937 by the late President Roosevelt, and Senator Byrnes of South Carolina. Not so many years ago Fred Vinson, who later became chief justice, was appointed by FDR to the Circuit Court of Appeals while serving as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

The raise in pay is a barrier not only to the judiciary but to some other offices. The Constitution says that no member of the House or Senate can be appointed to any government post that has been created during the term in which the member is still serving. If any ambassadorships or positions on any newly created governmental commissions are available, members of Congress cannot be appointed to them while serving out their present terms.

The exact language of the Constitution on this point is as follows:

"No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time."

Ruled Ineligible

Two instances occurred in past history in which members of Congress found themselves in conflict with that provision. One was in 1889, when a senator was appointed minister to Mexico during his term, during which Congress had increased the salary for that office. The attorney general ruled him ineligible.

The other case occurred in 1909 when the late President William Howard Taft appointed Senator Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania, Republican, to be secretary of state while Mr. Knox was still in Congress. For many weeks nobody raised the point. Then the late Oswald F. Schuette, Washington correspondent of a Chicago newspaper, drew attention to the conflict with the Constitution. Congress saved the day by passing a law reducing the salary of the secretary of state to what it was before Mr. Knox was designated. There has always been a question as to whether the spirit of the Constitution was complied with in that instance.

"One may conceive of great abuses which might arise did this prohibition not exist," writes Thomas J. Norton in his book on the Constitution. "Of course, after the term of a senator or representative has expired, he may accept the office created during his term or the office the emoluments of which were increased while he was in Congress."

Eliminates This Pressure

All this is related to the determination of the founding fathers to keep the legislative and executive branches of the government separate. Thus, the Constitution provides further that "no person holding any office under the United States, shall be a member of either house during his continuance in office."

It cannot be said that even these constitutional provisions have prevented attempts by presidents to dominate Congress through the dangling of prospective appointments before members in order to win or hold their support. Again and again in the cloakrooms of Congress, whispers have been heard that so and so was going along with the administration because he was expecting sooner or later to be appointed to a lifetime judgeship on the federal bench. And this has been rumored under both Democratic and Republican administrations. Certainly the recent pay raise fortuitously eliminates that form of pressure for a while anyway.

Baering Down On The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

It's absoloosely unconstitutional for New Yorkers to discover their telephone wires have been tapped like maple trees.

Everybody in town had his ears-dropping bagged and his chin-orchestration transcripted. Starting today we're going back to sign language, string talk and smoke signals.

There's only one safe way to telephone on the Isle of Manhattan. Go into a public booth, paint the glass black, drop in a dime, dial a wrong number, disguise your voice and hang up.

Hasn't been such wire-industry since the old Gonsdorf gang tapped the wires outside of western cities. They sent in fake racing results. And also wired each other money orders. It was a softer touch than baby curls.

The blackmailers were aiming their gouging Geiger counters at rumoradium. The fuzz was listening to the neighbor's children. The public was tapping th lines in private. And the feds had an orchestra of ear trumpets tuned to infinity.

The walls had ears, the keyholes had eyelashes and the mouthpieces had sore gums. The we-boys figured to clip a yard of guilty-edged coupons from cashable curiosity.

The only way to beat the rap was double-talk on the upstrabbit.

There is an old proverb that says listeners never hear good of themselves. Nor of other people.

The fellow who used to put a bug in your ear now stashes it in your ear-piece. Every time you telephone you are on a 16-party line with re-fills, replacements and proxies.

We suggest you engage an Apache secretary or refer to yesterday's sky-writing.

Otherwise those blonde voices and repetitious innuendos may classify you with the unfortunate crooner who was born without an echo chamber. We suggest you run the risk of being declared non compos minus and talk only to yourself.

You're Not Too Small

By Bob Considine

NEW YORK (INS) — Maryknoll Missionary James Keller wrote a book once upon a time called "You Can Change the World." His point was (and is) that no one is too small or unimportant to have some measurable effect on the present and future of this homeliest of the planets.

The book was read (and is still being read) by a lot of people of all shades of religious belief and by some with no belief at all. Two sincere readers turned out to be Dr. Robert Spitzer, biochemist in nutrition work, and Robert Sullivan, who is in the rubber business. Both are from Burlington, Wis.

Three years ago Spitzer's alumni paper — University of Wisconsin—invited him to join with others in the writing of separate tracts on "What U. S. universities can do to mold better Americanism." Spitzer didn't like the entire list of contributors. One had written a sappy book about Russia's leaders after a stint there during the war.

Common Bond

So Spitzer, in what he thought was the tiniest possible effort to "change the world," wrote a piece he called "Wanted, 150,000,000 Salesmen." Its theme was that all of us take our citizenship too lightly, that citizenship is the one thing that holds us together and forces us into the greatest power in history. We argue balefully about politics, religion, labor, movie and TV stars, public servants, automobiles, sports teams and individuals, dolls and every other commodity. But on one thing we stand cheek to cheek—we are citizens of the United States of America. But a lot of us accept this bond as if it were something like ozone.

Anyway, Spitzer and his friend Sullivan, neither of whom had ever written or publicized an article, got together on "Wanted, 150,000,000 Salesmen." The American Legion out that way put the article on records and tape. Spitzer went through the country taking pictures of Americans working in the fields, in factories and behind desks, going to school, work, church and play, and all of a sudden he had an illustrated lecture that people wanted to hear.

He and Sullivan preach that ours is "the greatest story never told." This country in less than 200 years has surpassed all others in material progress, opportunity, humanitarian projects, though some have been at it for 4,000 years. In addition to a host of spiritual values, we, who represent only seven per cent of the world's population, have 83 per cent of the world's automobiles, 81 per cent of the bathtubs, 79 per cent of the radios, 67 per cent of the vacuum cleaners, 86 per cent of the refrigerators, and 78 per cent of the world's life insurance.

American May Day

As part of their program of lighting a single candle instead of cursing the darkness, Spitzer and Sullivan, the biochemist and rubber man, engineered something called "May Day — U. S. Way" in Burlington. It is not essentially a brand new idea, but it worked better in Burlington. The Communists in this country regard May 1 as their unholy day of obligation. At risk of exposure, they and their pathetic American stooges on that day march in dozens of ragged parades, chanting the praises of a country that would quickly put them to death if they marched in opposition to the philosophy of the land. In Burlington, Americans Marched on May 1, 1954, and will march again this year.

And probably forever more.

It is not too easy for Americans to be as nationally minded as those of other nations which could not carry our water bucket into the ring. The years and the literature have tended to make outward appearances of love of country "corny." But every once in a while something comes along like a Pearl Harbor to unite us or a Spitzer and a Sullivan to remind us that we are united.

Roughly 1,000 Hairs Grow Per Square Inch Of Scalp

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The entire body is covered with hair, except for a few areas such as the palms and soles. Most of it is flesh colored and so delicate as to escape detection. A painstaking count would show approximately 1,000 hairs per square inch of scalp. This means a total of 120,000 hairs because the scalp contains about 120 square inches of space.

The finer the hair, the greater the number. Most blonds require 140,000 to 150,000 to cover the top; the black haired average 110,000, and those with coarse red hair usually have around 90,000. The top of the head has 10 times more hair follicles than does the beard and 20 times more than the back of a hand.

When allowed to grow, hair seldom gets longer than two feet. Three feet would be exceptional even though pictures of women have appeared showing tresses extending to the ground. Hair weight is determined by a scales that measures within 1/100th of a milligram.

The hair of the Negro is heaviest; that of the Mongoloid, lightest. Among the Caucasoids, the hair of the Nordic weighs the least and that of Mediterranean peoples, the most. The average weight for males is 18 per cent greater than for females.

Form and color follow a hereditary and racial pattern. Straight, coarse hair is common in Mongoloid types such as the American Indian. The appearance of wavy hair varies, depending upon the distance between the crest of each wave.

Authorities in this field classify kinking into two types. In the helical form, the ringlets have the same diameter as though formed originally around a cylinder. The spiral is similar except that the diameter of the loop diminishes toward the end, giving it a spring-like appearance.

Nature was far ahead of our hat manufacturers in providing a suitable covering for the skull. Hair patterns of primitive peoples were created to fit their needs. Helical hair, for example, is best for desert dwellers. The ensuing mat that forms over the head is separated from the scalp by a dead air space, which is helpful in dry, hot regions.

In the equatorial African, the hair is spiral as though covering the scalp with thousands of miniature Christmas trees. Furthermore, bare patches between the trunks of these tree-like growths furnish a greater area for evaporation of sweat.

TOMORROW: Elbow bursitis.

RIGHTABOUT

Mrs. T. G. writes: Is it dangerous to have the heart on the right side?

REPLY

It makes no difference where the heart is located, so long as it works. When the organ is on the right side, all the other internal organs usually are reversed also.

SKIN CANCER

W. E. writes: Could excessive smoking cause skin cancer?

REPLY

No. But pipe smokers may develop cancer of the lip in the area where the stem of the pipe is held.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me!

Banker Kadison's new secretary was the worst speller he ever had hired, but she was also the most alluring so, instead of firing her, he began to take her out nights. She envisaged matrimony, but gradually it dawned upon her that such an idea was farthest from his thoughts.

One day she stormed into his inner sanctum and threatened, "Two weeks from today I sue you for breach of promise unless I can sign myself 'Mrs. Montmorency Kadison.' "

"Sign it?" pooh-poohed the banker. "In two weeks' time you couldn't even learn to spell it!"

A cosmetic salesman made me miss a train by grabbing my arm and demanding, "Have you heard of the perfume company that went into bankruptcy and settled for 30 scents on the dollar?"

You're Telling Me!

A Hobart, Ind., centenarian asked his folks and friends not to make any "fuss" just because he was observing his birthday. The old gentleman had the right idea — after all, he was just doing what he had already done 99 times before.

In the U. S., according to Factographs, 7,000 tons of aspirin tablets are manufactured annually. And that's the painful truth!

The largest freshwater fish ever caught, according to a sports publication item, was a 3,221-pound, 26-foot-long sturgeon. Good grief! Wonder what they used for bait — a boa constrictor?

One drink of vodka, a Detroiter told a judge, was responsible for him attempting to impersonate an Air Force officer. Boy, that's getting high mighty fast!

A feed company executive says farm animals, such as cattle, turkeys, chickens and pigs, actually crave affection from humans. We'll go along — we just dearly love sirloin steaks, drumsticks and pork chops!

"Friendly Study" Has Its Problems

So long as the approach to the subject remains as it has started, there can be little quarrel with the investigation of the stock market which is being conducted by the Senate Banking Committee. The chairman of the committee calls it a "friendly study" and says the purpose of it is "education, not accusation."

Senator Capehart, a member of the committee, says he has no reason to believe there has been any "skullduggery or rigging," but he will be watchful for facts and information.

Although committee members have expressed the hope that calmness will mark the inquiry throughout, the possibility always exists in a probe of this kind that the conflict of views will be less than good-natured. That is particularly the fact because many of the witnesses have reason to remember what happened in 1929 and may be moved by their fears to testify that a similar collapse is in the making today.

There is danger, too—and the committee seems to recognize it—that the mere fact that an inquiry is under way will have an adverse effect on the orderly movement of stock prices. Quite wisely, Senator Fulbright, who heads this investigation, cautions impulsive investors not to rush into action on the basis of statements made on any one day by any one witness, however competent he may be.

The next day's developments and testimony may change the picture entirely and make the investors wish that they had not done what they did.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Churchill's Position

Winston Churchill is in an extremely difficult position. Since 1946, every propagandistic weapon has been used by the British government to condemn Chiang Kai-shek and to ruin his reputation in the eyes of the British people. This propaganda has spread over the continent of Europe and has manifested itself in such a country as India. The political reason for this activity was to prevent Asiatic diversions from lessening the interest of the United States in the affairs of Europe. Even before 1946, General MacArthur suffered from Washington's concentration on European affairs. Frazier Hunt, in his book, "The Untold Story of Douglas MacArthur," details MacArthur's difficulties arising from lack of materiel while he was actually fighting the Asiatic war.

Now Churchill is faced by a prepared public opinion in his own country which is embarrassing because it cannot be turned. Great Britain is definitely anti-Chiang Kai-shek, whose side has never been properly presented to the British people. The situation is now such that it is developing into a widening breach between Great Britain and the United States at a time when such a breach can be damaging to both countries and to the unity of the West.

On this subject, Churchill has served a warning to his own countrymen:

"The decision on whether or when these particular islands should be evacuated is not one the burden of which falls upon Her Majesty's Government, as we must recognize the natural preoccupations of other governments who are immediately affected by the threatened attack from Communist China.

"This is especially true at a time when the Chinese Communists keep stridently asserting that the islands are to be regarded as a stepping stone to the seizure of Formosa itself, with all that that must mean for the Chinese Nationalists under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, who have been given shelter and protection there by the United States, and to whom the United States are bound by over 14 years comradeship in war, both against the Chinese Communists and the Japanese invaders of China."

Churchill's use of language is never casual. He is speaking not of Formosa, but of what he calls "the coastal islands" which today amount to Matsu and Quemoy. If, by any means, these two areas fall into the hands of the Chinese Communists, it is doubtful whether Formosa is defensible. But Formosa is only a phase of a broader situation which involves South Korea, Vietnam and Thailand. Regarding Vietnam and Thailand, there can be no doubt as to the British interest. But for Formosa, the British government cannot now get popular support to go along wholeheartedly with the American program which must include defense of Matsu and Quemoy or mean nothing.

The dilemma is not readily dissolvable and is of benefit to the Communists. The great fear of Europe, particularly in Great Britain, is that resistance to the imperialism of Red China may drag all the world into an atomic war in which Europe will be the speediest and most disastrous sufferer. In an earlier statement, Sir Anthony Eden undoubtedly expressed European opinion when he said:

"In this situation the first concern of Her Majesty's Government is to stop the fighting. They have therefore continued to urge on all concerned the importance of doing this and of preventing a wider conflagration. A solution of these delicate and difficult problems is not to be reached by force. A settlement can only be arrived at by the peaceful processes of patient negotiation."

Unfortunately, it is not to Chou En-lai's interest to negotiate for a cease-fire or a peace; it is to the advantage of the Chinese Communists to capture Formosa and to establish beyond doubt their hegemony over the states of Southeast Asia to the borders of India. Thus far, they have rejected the British and Indian efforts to establish a modus operandi for a cease-fire. If they accept such proposals now, it will only be if they are assured that the United States will recede from its unwillingness to recognize Red China and will vote for a seat on the Security Council of the United Nations. Chou En-lai cannot accept "the two Chinas" formula and survive.

As Eden says, it is a delicate and difficult problem and, for the moment, there seems to be no hope for a solution. Maybe, it would be wise to leave it that way.

The raise in pay is a barrier not only to the judiciary but to some other offices. The Constitution says that no member of the House or Senate can be appointed to any government post that has been created during the term in which the member is still serving. If any ambassadorships or positions on any newly created governmental commissions are available, members of Congress cannot be appointed to them while serving out their present terms.

The exact language of the Constitution on this point is as follows:

"No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time."

Ruled Ineligible

Two instances occurred in past history in which members of Congress found themselves in conflict with that provision. One was in 1889, when a senator was appointed minister to Mexico during his term, during which Congress had increased the salary for that office. The attorney general ruled him ineligible.

The other case occurred in 1909 when the late President William Howard Taft appointed Senator Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania, Republican, to be secretary of state while Mr. Knox was still in Congress. For many weeks nobody raised the point. Then the late Oswald F. Schuette, Washington correspondent of a Chicago newspaper, drew attention to the conflict with the Constitution. Congress saved the day by passing a law reducing the salary of the secretary of state to what it was before Mr. Knox was designated. There has always been a question as to whether the spirit of the Constitution was complied with in that instance.

"One may conceive of great abuses which might arise did this prohibition not exist," writes Thomas J. Norton in his book on the Constitution. "Of course, after the term of a senator or representative has expired, he may accept the office created during his term or the office the emoluments of which were increased while he was in Congress."

Eliminates This Pressure

All this is related to the determination of the founding fathers to keep the legislative and executive branches of the government separate. Thus, the Constitution provides further that "no person holding any office under the United States, shall be a member of either house during his continuance in office."

It cannot be said that even these constitutional provisions have prevented attempts by presidents to dominate Congress through the dangling of prospective appointments before members in order to win or hold their support. Again and again in the cloakrooms of Congress, whispers have been heard that so and so was going along with the administration because he was expecting sooner or later to be appointed to a lifetime judgeship on the federal bench. And this has been rumored under both Democratic and Republican administrations. Certainly the recent pay raise fortuitously eliminates that form of pressure for a while anyway.

Baering Down On The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

It's absoloosely unconstitutional for New Yorkers to discover their telephone wires have been tapped like maple trees.

Everybody in town had his ears-dropping bagged and his chin-orchestration transcripted. Starting today we're going back to sign language, string talk and smoke signals.

There's only one safe way to telephone on the Isle of Manhattan. Go into a public booth, paint the glass black, drop in a dime, dial a wrong number, disguise your voice and hang up.

Hasn't been such wire-industry since the old Gonsdorf gang tapped the wires outside of western cities. They sent in fake racing results. And also wired each other money orders. It was a softer touch than baby curls.

The blackmailers were aiming their gouging Geiger counters at rumoradium. The fuzz was listening to the neighbor's children. The public was tapping th lines in private. And the feds had an orchestra of ear trumpets tuned to infinity.

The walls had ears, the keyholes had eyelashes and the mouthpieces had sore gums. The we-boys figured to clip a yard of guilty-edged coupons from cashable curiosity.

The only way to beat the rap was double-talk on the upstrabbit.

There is an old proverb that says listeners never hear good of themselves. Nor of other people.

The fellow who used to put a bug in your ear now stashes it in your ear-piece. Every time you telephone you are on a 16-party line with re-fills, replacements and proxies.

We suggest you engage an Apache secretary or refer to yesterday's sky-writing.

Otherwise those blonde voices and repetitious innuendos may classify you with the unfortunate crooner who was born without an echo chamber. We suggest you run the risk of being declared non compos minus and talk only to yourself.

You're Not Too Small

By Bob Considine

NEW YORK (INS) — Maryknoll Missionary James Keller wrote a book once upon a time called "You Can Change the World." His point was (and is) that no one is too small or unimportant to have some measurable effect on the present and future of this homeliest of the planets.

The book was read (and is still being read) by a lot of people of all shades of religious belief and by some with no belief at all. Two sincere readers turned out to be Dr. Robert Spitzer, biochemist in nutrition work, and Robert Sullivan, who is in the rubber business. Both are from Burlington, Wis.

Three years ago Spitzer's alumni paper — University of Wisconsin—invited him to join with others in the writing of separate tracts on "What U. S. universities can do to mold better Americanism." Spitzer didn't like the entire list of contributors. One had written a sappy book about Russia's leaders after a stint there during the war.

Common Bond

So Spitzer, in what he thought was the tiniest possible effort to "change the world," wrote a piece he called "Wanted, 150,000,000 Salesmen." Its theme was that all of us take our citizenship too lightly, that citizenship is the one thing that holds us together and forces us into the greatest power in history. We argue balefully about politics, religion, labor, movie and TV stars, public servants, automobiles, sports teams and individuals, dolls and every other commodity. But on one thing we stand cheek to cheek—we are citizens of the United States of America. But a lot of us accept this bond as if it were something like ozone.

Anyway, Spitzer and his friend Sullivan, neither of whom had ever written or publicized an article, got together on "Wanted, 150,000,000 Salesmen." The American Legion out that way put the article on records and tape. Spitzer went through the country taking pictures of Americans working in the fields, in factories and behind desks, going to school, work, church and play, and all of a sudden he had an illustrated lecture that people wanted to hear.

He and Sullivan preach that ours is "the greatest story never told." This country in less than 200 years has surpassed all others in material progress, opportunity, humanitarian projects, though some have been at it for 4,000 years. In addition to a host of spiritual values, we, who represent only seven per cent of the world's population, have 83 per cent of the world's automobiles, 81 per cent of the bathtubs, 79 per cent of the radios, 67 per cent of the vacuum cleaners, 86 per cent of the refrigerators, and 78 per cent of the world's life insurance.

American May Day

As part of their program of lighting a single candle instead of cursing the darkness, Spitzer and Sullivan, the biochemist and rubber man, engineered something called "May Day — U. S. Way" in Burlington. It is not essentially a brand new idea, but it worked better in Burlington. The Communists in this country regard May 1 as their unholy day of obligation. At risk of exposure, they and their pathetic American stooges on that day march in dozens of ragged parades, chanting the praises of a country that would quickly put them to death if they marched in opposition to the philosophy of the land. In Burlington, Americans Marched on May 1, 1954, and will march again this year.

And probably forever more.

It is not too easy for Americans to be as nationally minded as those of other nations which could not carry our water bucket into the ring. The years and the literature have tended to make outward appearances of love of country "corny." But every once in a while something comes along like a Pearl Harbor to unite us or a Spitzer and a Sullivan to remind us that we are united.

Roughly 1,000 Hairs Grow Per Square Inch Of Scalp

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The entire body is covered with hair, except for a few areas such as the palms and soles. Most of it is flesh colored and so delicate as to escape detection. A painstaking count would show approximately 1,000 hairs per square inch of scalp. This means a total of 120,000 hairs because the scalp contains about 120 square inches of space.

The finer the hair, the greater the number. Most blonds require 140,000 to 150,000 to cover the top; the black haired average 110,000, and those with coarse red hair usually have around 90,000. The top of the head has 10 times more hair follicles than does the beard and 20 times more than the back of a hand.

When allowed to grow, hair seldom gets longer than two feet. Three feet would be exceptional even though pictures of women have appeared showing tresses extending to the ground. Hair weight is determined by a scales that measures within 1/100th of a milligram.

The hair of the Negro is heaviest; that of the Mongoloid, lightest. Among the Caucasoids, the hair of the Nordic weighs the least and that of Mediterranean peoples, the most. The average weight for males is 18 per cent greater than for females.

Form and color follow a hereditary and racial pattern. Straight, coarse hair is common in Mongoloid types such as the American Indian. The appearance of wavy hair varies, depending upon the distance between the crest of each wave.

Authorities in this field classify kinking into two types. In the helical form, the ringlets have the same diameter as though formed originally around a cylinder. The spiral is similar except that the diameter of the loop diminishes toward the end, giving it a spring-like appearance.

Nature was far ahead of our hat manufacturers in providing a suitable covering for the skull. Hair patterns of primitive peoples were created to fit their needs. Helical hair, for example, is best for desert dwellers. The ensuing mat that forms over the head is separated from the scalp by a dead air space, which is helpful in dry, hot regions.

In the equatorial African, the hair is spiral as though covering the scalp with thousands of miniature Christmas trees. Furthermore, bare patches between the trunks of these tree-like growths furnish a greater area for evaporation of sweat.

TOMORROW: Elbow bursitis.

RIGHTABOUT

Mrs. T. G. writes: Is it dangerous to have the heart on the right side?

REPLY

It makes no difference where the heart is located, so long as it works. When the organ is on the right side, all the other internal organs usually are reversed also.

SKIN CANCER

W. E. writes: Could excessive smoking cause skin cancer?

REPLY

No. But pipe smokers may develop cancer of the lip in the area where the stem of the pipe is held.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me!

By Bennett Cerf

Banker Kadison's new secretary was the worst speller he ever had hired, but she was also the most alluring so, instead of firing her, he began to take her out nights. She envisaged matrimony, but gradually it dawned upon her that such an idea was farthest from his thoughts.

One day she stormed into his inner sanctum and threatened, "Two weeks from today I sue you for breach of promise unless I can sign myself 'Mrs. Montmorency Kadison.' "

"Sign it?" pooh-poohed the banker. "In two weeks' time you couldn't even learn to spell it!"

Parking Tags Show Decrease During 1954

The number of parking tickets issued in 1954 showed a considerable drop from the two previous years in the annual Cumberland Police Department report submitted yesterday by Mrs. Vivian L. Turley, records clerk.

Parking violators docketed over the past 12-month period totaled 6,073. There were 7,370 vehicles tagged in 1953 and 10,299 in 1952. The courtesy meter was used 3,989 times.

A monthly breakdown revealed: January, 569; February, 516; March, 1,070; April, 540; May, 633; June, 374; July, 334; August, 410; September, 221; October, 308; November, 463 and December, 635.

The majority of traffic accidents occurred on Fridays with Saturdays and Mondays running second and third, respectively.

Total damage for 1954 was estimated at $67,004 as compared to $65,847 in 1953 and $72,156 in 1952.

The summary disclosed three fatalities, including two pedestrians. One hit-run death in February has not been solved.

Mrs. Turley turned the statistics over to Chief R. Emmett Flynn.

House Vacancies Will Be Surveyed

A national survey to determine the rate of housing vacancies will be conducted this month by the U. S. Census Bureau, according to Supervisor Edgar L. Bryan of the bureau's district office at Pittsburgh.

The housing vacancy survey will be carried out in connection with the Census Bureau's Current Population Survey which collects facts on employment and unemployment. Information to be collected about vacant dwelling units encountered in the 25-thousand-family Current Population Survey sample panel includes number of rooms in each unit, rent asked, sales price, whether the dwelling is a single-family or multi-family unit and whether or not it is available for seasonal or year-round occupancy.

Court Clerk's Office To Get Improved Telephone System

At the request of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Circuit Court, the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday approved plans to modernize the telephone system in the clerk's office at the Court House.

Boden explained the main office and adjacent records room are not connected and there is usually much delay when calls come in for attorneys and other persons in the office on business.

An intercommunications system whereby a push button telephone hookup will be installed was agreed upon. Boden said the modern telephone setup would aid in the efficient operation of his office.

The commissioners received three complaints on road conditions and damage from water seepage during rainy weather.

Delbert Stevens, of Lonaconing, appeared before the board to ask that a drainage ditch alongside his residence be cleaned. He said during times of heavy rainfall the water overflows onto his property and fills his cellar. The matter was referred to J. Walker Chapman, county roads supervisor.

Mrs. Kilgore Izzett, who resides in the Slabtown section above Mt. Savage, appeared to ask that a road running into her home be repaired. She said the road has large rocks protruding and the rainy weather had made it almost impassable. This was also referred to Chapman.

Gilbert Warnick, of Barton, appeared to ask the board to install a drainage pipe under a road running adjacent to his home. He said that during heavy rains the water runs across the road and in winter it often freezes.

It was brought out that the owner of a small strip of land on which the pipe would be installed is not known. From the pipe the water would drain into a small stream and thence into Georges Creek. The commissioners decided to go ahead even though the property owner can not be located. It was said the piece of land in question is probably not worth much more than $100 and by placing the pipe in position the hazardous road icing can be avoided.

County Work Pact Opposed By Wilkinson

A contract was awarded yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners for the construction of an enclosure of the sun porch on the second floor at the County Infirmary.

The Mineral Coal Company, which is headed by C. A. Liller of Cresaptown, was given the job on a low bid of $14,148. The contract is in three parts, the basic enclosure, finished ceiling and finished floor.

The bids made by the Liller firm, the George Construction Company and R. G. Robeson, Inc., were tabulated by the Corinthian Engineering Service and an analysis was presented to the board by letter.

The analysis explained that the bids were asked in three parts so that the commissioners could decide how much they wished to expend on the project. The basic job is the enclosure of the large open porch. The ceiling would have an acoustical material which would also have insulating properties. This would make for quietness and also prevent heat loss in winter and protection in hot weather.

The flooring would consist of leveling the present porch with perlite concrete and then installing vinyl tile nine by nine inches in size. The firm was low bidder on the entire project and also for the enclosure and ceiling projects combined. The Robeson firm was low bidder on a combination of the enclosure and flooring work. It was also second low bidder on the complete job at $14,153.45. This was just $5.45 cents higher than the lowest bid. The George firm's bid on the complete job was $16,116.

When the vote came for the awarding of the contract Commissioner Charles N. Wilkinson voted "No." He explained that he was not voting against the infirmary project but was voting against giving the job to Liller.

Air Force Calls For Observers

There is a need for aircraft observer aviation cadets in the United States Air Force, according to M/Sgt. Ralph W. Stewart, local air force recruiter.

Often described as the "brains of the bomber and fighter interceptor," the aircraft observer is the aircrew member who converts a multi-engine aircraft from a transport vehicle to a weapon of war.

The aircraft observer is commissioned and awarded the silver wings of the aircraft observer upon completion of 52 weeks flying training. He then trains further in bombing: electronics; weather; gunnery; radar; maps and charts; celestrial, oral, and visual navigation; leadership; medical and physical training.

The qualifications for aircraft observer aviation cadet training are similar to the pilot aviation cadet requirements. Applicants must be between the ages of 19 and 26½, high school graduates, single, male citizens, and in excellent physical condition.

Teachers Plan Further Action For Pay Boost

"On to Annapolis" was the theme of the Allegany County Teachers Association Saturday at a special meeting called to discuss the teacher pay raise backed by the Allegany County Commissioners.

A majority report of the board, by President William H. Lemmert and James Orr, "looked with favor" on the $300 advocated for next year by the Allegany County Board of Education, but the Commissioners did not commit themselves further.

A minority report by Charles N. Wilkinson recommended the $500 increase next year which is being sought by the teachers association.

Miss Gertrude Williams, association president, said no action was taken on these two recommendations, but added a motion was made for the legislative and publicity committees to meet with the county's delegates and state senator in Annapolis this week. The meeting is to be arranged today by J. Stanley Hunter, legislative committee chairman.

The association also drafted a resolution which is being published today commending Wilkinson for his $500 annual pay increase support.

In other business, three motions for that would revise the constitution of the association were tabled.

Port Group To Meet

County Work Pact Opposed By Wilkinson

A contract was awarded yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners for the construction of an enclosure of the sun porch on the second floor at the County Infirmary.

The Mineral Coal Company, which is headed by C. A. Liller of Cresaptown, was given the job on a low bid of $14,148. The contract is in three parts, the basic enclosure, finished ceiling and finished floor.

The bids made by the Liller firm, the George Construction Company and R. G. Robeson, Inc., were tabulated by the Corinthian Engineering Service and an analysis was presented to the board by letter.

The analysis explained that the bids were asked in three parts so that the commissioners could decide how much they wished to expend on the project. The basic job is the enclosure of the large open porch. The ceiling would have an acoustical material which would also have insulating properties. This would make for quietness and also prevent heat loss in winter and protection in hot weather.

The flooring would consist of leveling the present porch with perlite concrete and then installing vinyl tile nine by nine inches in size. The firm was low bidder on the entire project and also for the enclosure and ceiling projects combined. The Robeson firm was low bidder on a combination of the enclosure and flooring work. It was also second low bidder on the complete job at $14,153.45. This was just $5.45 cents higher than the lowest bid. The George firm's bid on the complete job was $16,116.

When the vote came for the awarding of the contract Commissioner Charles N. Wilkinson voted "No." He explained that he was not voting against the infirmary project but was voting against giving the job to Liller.

Air Force Calls For Observers

There is a need for aircraft observer aviation cadets in the United States Air Force, according to M/Sgt. Ralph W. Stewart, local air force recruiter.

Often described as the "brains of the bomber and fighter interceptor," the aircraft observer is the aircrew member who converts a multi-engine aircraft from a transport vehicle to a weapon of war.

The aircraft observer is commissioned and awarded the silver wings of the aircraft observer upon completion of 52 weeks flying training. He then trains further in bombing: electronics; weather; gunnery; radar; maps and charts; celestrial, oral, and visual navigation; leadership; medical and physical training.

The qualifications for aircraft observer aviation cadet training are similar to the pilot aviation cadet requirements. Applicants must be between the ages of 19 and 26½, high school graduates, single, male citizens, and in excellent physical condition.

Teachers Plan Further Action For Pay Boost

"On to Annapolis" was the theme of the Allegany County Teachers Association Saturday at a special meeting called to discuss the teacher pay raise backed by the Allegany County Commissioners.

A majority report of the board, by President William H. Lemmert and James Orr, "looked with favor" on the $300 advocated for next year by the Allegany County Board of Education, but the Commissioners did not commit themselves further.

A minority report by Charles N. Wilkinson recommended the $500 increase next year which is being sought by the teachers association.

Miss Gertrude Williams, association president, said no action was taken on these two recommendations, but added a motion was made for the legislative and publicity committees to meet with the county's delegates and state senator in Annapolis this week. The meeting is to be arranged today by J. Stanley Hunter, legislative committee chairman.

The association also drafted a resolution which is being published today commending Wilkinson for his $500 annual pay increase support.

In other business, three motions for that would revise the constitution of the association were tabled.

Heat Will Soften Window Pane Putty

To replace window panes, it is necessary to remove every trace of old putty so the new putty will stick. Sometimes this is difficult without damaging the wood surface.

One way to do it is to heat the old putty to soften it. New tank type propane blow torches, throwing a fine pencil flame, are handy for this job. Gently heat the putty until it is pliable. Move the flame slowly and steadily. Do not hold it too long in one spot.

Use a putty knife or scraper to remove the heated putty as you progress with the flame. Then apply a heavy coat of linseed oil to the bare wood to keep it from soaking oil out of the new putty.

A Safety Paint

Non-skid paint, containing an abrasive such as pumice stone, can be used to prevent slips on steps and cellar stairs. It was developed to prevent crewmen from slipping inside military tanks and is now widely used in industrial plants.

LaSalle Crushes West Virginia, 95-61, In NCAA Contest

Tom Gola Gets 24 Markers In Garden Battle

14,315 See Game; Hundley Cools Off After Hot 1st Half

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, March 8 (AP)—Defending champion LaSalle gave Rod Hundley a chance to show his stuff, then called on superior speed, team skill and Tom Gola to rout West Virginia 95-61 in a first round game of the National Collegiate basketball championships tonight.

A crowd of 14,315 in Madison Square Garden saw LaSalle set an NCAA Tournament scoring record against the Southern Conference champions after Canisius had trimmed Williams 73-60 and Villanova had squeaked through to a 74-73 decision over Duke. LaSalle set the previous record in last year's final when it beat Bradley 92-76.

LaSalle will play the Ivy League champions, either Princeton or Columbia, in the second round at Philadelphia Friday while the at-large teams, Canisius and Villanova will clash.

Hundley, West Virginia's sophomore "Hot Rod," made it a close game through most of the first half as he sank eight field goals. The score was tied eight times and Hundley's shot did it on three occasions and put West Virginia ahead twice.

Then, late in the period LaSalle put on a 14-point spurt and from there on Hundley was stopped cold. He sank just one free throw in the second half.

Meanwhile Gola, limited to one field goal in the first half, lived up to his All-America billing in the second when he racked up 18 points. In addition, Gola's superb defensive rebounding was an important factor. In that half he was as good as when he won the tournament's most valuable player award last spring.

Gola scored 24 points. He had plenty of help in the scoring line from Alonzo Lewis, who got 22 and from Frank Blatcher, who had 13. Pete White outscored Hundley 19-17 for West Virginia.

Villanova, Canisius Score Tourney Wins

NEW YORK, March 8 (AP)—Villanova which seems to thrive on Atlantic Coast competition, held off the closing challenge of Duke's ACC entry in the NCAA Tournament to win 74-73 in a first-round game tonight. Villanova will meet Canisius, 73-60 winner over Williams, in the second round at Philadelphia Friday.

The Villanova-Duke game, starting out slowly with a steady accompaniment of whistle-tooting for fouls, wound up in a blaze of scoring as the Blue Devils closed the gap from 10 points to one in the last three minutes.

Villanova, which led 39-29 at the half and 57-44 in the middle of the second period, almost came apart in the closing minutes as sharpshooting Joe Belmont and Don Tobin began hitting with their outside shots and slicing through the defense.

Duke got as close as two points once, 71-69 but never could get the lead.

Williams, the smallest of 24 colleges to qualify for the national collegiate championship, put on a terrific two-man show by its co-captains, Tony Moro and Ron Wilson, and displayed a tight zone defense that gave the upstate New Yorkers all kinds of trouble.

But Canisius' superior speed and the outside shooting of John McCarthy finally paid off. Moro sank nine field goals and as many fouls for 27 points.

Pirates Have No Place To Go But Up; Added Experience Is Club's Best Hope

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series on the major league teams.

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

FORT MYERS, Fla.—The Pittsburgh Pirates may have been a bit comical as they lost 101 games last season but there's no humorous touch this spring to the Buccaneer effort to improve.

The Pirates, buried in the lowest dungeon of the National league bastille, as it were, for the last three seasons, are working out most vigorously at Terry field, a $100,000 production furnished by the city of Fort Myers.

General Manager Branch Rickey and Manager Fred Haney see nothing comic about the 1955 squad. They are working hard and even trying a new gimmick — a five-man infield setup for spot use.

Despite the eighth-place finish the last three years and the lack of major league material on the 1955 club, the Pirates have one thing going for them — they can only go up.

Haney, starting his 20th year in a managerial capacity in baseball, is a bit on the optimistic side.

"I THINK," Fred said as he relaxed in a hotel room here, "we'll have a much better ball club, based on experience and the return of a few of our boys who have been in the service."

Strange, too, is Haney's comment on his pitching staff, which could win but 53 games last year:

"I think we'll have a pretty good pitching staff. Our pitching last year was strong enough to make a higher bid. But we made more errors than any club in the league and we failed to get that punch when needed.

"You know," Haney continued, "we weren't beaten as much last year by the other teams as we were by ourselves. And a year's experience for some of our boys may do the trick.

"We were a determining factor in the pennant race, despite our record. We took four straight from Brooklyn when they were but a game behind New York. We beat the Giants more than we beat any other club in the league.

"IT ALL proves one thing," Fred added, "and that is that we did have days when we didn't make so many mistakes."

Coming out of the service to help are Dick Groat, the former Duke All-American cage and baseball star, who probably will be the shortstop.

Littlefield, who was 10-11 with the Pirates, could be the ace. He was with Baltimore part of last year.

King, who was quite a hit in camp last spring, had a fine 16-5 record with New Orleans. "The thing that impressed me about King," commented Haney, "is that the boy just doesn't give up any bases on balls."

WADE has been a reliefer but may be used as a starter. Bowman, a Giant castoff, had a fine 22-13 record with Hollywood. Friend, Law and Surkont were regulars last year although their records are not impressive.

Two newcomers who may make a real bid are Lino Dinoso, a Cuban who won 19 for Hollywood, and a one-eyed youngster, Charley (Whammy) Douglas, who won 28 for Brunswick and was looked at in the early rookie camp. Douglas is on the New Orleans roster.

All told, there are 17 pitchers on the roster here with additions from the rookie camp.

The catching, Haney believes, will be satisfactory with Toby Atwell and Jack Shepard sharing the duties. Shepard, who was signed off the Stanford campus in 1953, showed progress last year in his first full season in the majors as a member of the Pirates.

VIC JANOWICZ, onetime Ohio State football great, who was listed as an infielder and did some catching for the Pirates the last two years, has given up baseball for football.

The Pirate infield is the biggest problem, according to Haney.

Haney has one solid choice, Sid Gordon, but Sid can play the outfield, too, and he will be Haney's ace in the hole depending on whether he can complete a good infield or a good outfield.

The $64 question in the infield is first base where Dale Long, Preston Ward and Bob Skinner are competing. Haney says Skinner could be a great hitter. This will be only his second year in the big time. He hit .249 and knocked in 46 runs for the Bucs last year.

Gene Freese, on the New Orleans roster, is expected to be the second baseman although Curt Roberts, who played it last year, and Dick Smith, from Hollywood, are competitors. Freese was a .300 hitter.

AT THIRD, Freese's brother, George, who hit .324 for New Orleans, will be tested along with Lee Walls, an outfielder from Hollywood. If they don't work out Gordon will get it.

Frank Thomas, the home-run hitting outfielder, is the solid choice on the whole club but is not signed at this writing. He reportedly got $12,000 last year and wanted $18,000 this season. Thomas batted in 94 runs and is sought by several clubs.

A second outfield spot may go to Roberto Clemente, a Cuban drafted from Montreal for $2,500. Clemente played in the winter league and has the makings. Montreal reportedly gave him a $10,000 bonus for signing.

Gerry Lynch, the ball of fire sensation in last year's camp, tightened up when he saw the upper decks in the major league cities, but he may be ready now to play the outfield. Other competitors are Tom Saffell, from Hollywood, and Felipe Montemayor, who needs someone to make him hustle.

Dick Hall, listed as an outfielder, will get a chance to pitch. He twirled in the Mexican league this winter.

Henderson Bows Out • • • His Teams Were Here • • • Fans Forgot $41,668 • • • Grove's Average 20.2

By C. V. BURNS

"I'VE had enough."

Those were the words of Eli Camden Henderson the other day when he announced his resignation as head basketball coach at Marshall College, Huntington, W. Va.

The man who is bowing out after a coaching career of 41 years is better known in the sports world as the one and only "Cam" Henderson.

Mention of "Cam" Henderson should ring a bell with "oldtimers" in this area for it was in Cumberland two of his best teams performed. That was in the days "Cam" coached football and basketball at Davis & Elkins College.

When Mid-City Park was opened on Wineow street in 1923 the first college football teams to play there were Henderson's Senators from D.&E. and Ken Shroyer's Western Maryland College Green Terrors from Westminster. The date was October 20, 1923, and Davis & Elkins won by the score of 14-6.

Henderson turned out powerful cage and grid teams at the Elkins school and perhaps his best quint was that of the late 1920s whose personnel included Ran McKinney, now Grafton High School coach; Max "Hippo" Poscover, Christy, Barrett, Kochenderfer and Warren. This team traveled extensively and journeyed to the Pacific Coast one season.

On January 14, 1928, this aggregation, dubbed the "Scarlet Hurricane," played Coach Fred Rice's Catholic University quint here and it was a game that will linger long in the memory of local fans. Scene of action was the State Armory and it was the first meeting of top-notch college quints in Cumberland.

Highlight of the game was the spectacular shooting of one Ray Foley, of Catholic U., who dumped in eleven goals, eight shots coming from mid-court, as the Washington team topped D.&E., 43-29.

John J. Long, present Cumberland finance commissioner, playing his senior year with C.U., was presented a gold watch by his admirers here, funds for the gift being raised by Charley Babst, donor of the annual Babst Award at Allegany High School, and Paul Gallen, who now operates a tavern on South Mechanic street.

We always have admired "Cam" Henderson from the first time we met him at the big party D.&E. threw at a local hotel after the 1923 grid contest.

When "Cam" announced his retirement with the expiration of his contract on June 30, 1955, he said:

"I am 65 years old and am happy to be retiring in good health so that I may be able to enjoy the days remaining to me down on the farm where I grew up near Clarksburg.

"You know I couldn't stay any longer if I wanted to. I am 65 now," he repeated.

"CAM" HENDERSON

The "Old Man," as he is now called, gave up grid coaching at Marshall in 1949. His basketball team won 17 and lost four this season.

In 1947 Marshall's quint won 32 and lost 5 and copped the NAIB (now the NAIA) tournament at Kansas City. In 1952 Henderson was elected to the Helms Foundation Hall of Fame.

Among his greatest basketball stars at Marshall College were Jule Rivlin and Andy Tonkovich, who played here many times with Wheeling teams against Cumberland in the All-American Pro Basketball League.

RACING FANS are careless with their money, judging from the 1954 report of the Maryland Racing Commission.

In 1951 the tracks had on their hands $41,668.90 representing uncashed mutuel tickets. That amount went into the state treasury last year.

Under State law, uncashed tickets must be held by the tracks for three years and then turned over to the state treasury if still unredeemed.

THE LONGEST winning streak of the current season in the tri-state area is credited to Ridgeley High School which will oppose Aurora High in an area game Friday at Keyser.

WHEN Alma Grove, Bruce High School forward, scored 22 points in the final game of the season against St. Mary's of Cumberland yesterday at Westernport she finished the season with 222 tallies in 11 games for the nice average of 20.2 points.

J. FRED COLWILL, who has served as racing secretary of the Cumberland Fair Association for the past several years, will be one of the stewards when Bowie opens its 33-day meeting today.

The 42-year-old Colwill has served as racing secretary at Pimlico, Timonium, Marlboro and Bel Air in recent years and was steward at the Thistledown track in Ohio last year.

Jorge Pasquel Dies In Mexico Plane Tragedy

Gained Fame In 1946 For Baseball Raids

MEXICO CITY, March 8 (AP) — Jorge Pasquel, multi-millionaire Mexican sportsman whose 1946 raids on the big leagues led to a court battle over baseball's reserve clause, was killed last night when his private plane crashed in the San Luis Potosi Mountains.

Five others, including the pilot, co-pilot two mechanics and Pasquel's personal barber, also died in the crash about 225 miles northwest of Mexico City.

The Viking plane took off from Pasquel's ranch shortly before 9 p.m. Monday. Radio contact with the craft was lost soon afterwards. Rescue parties reached the wreckage today.

The dapper Pasquel, who with his four brothers inherited a small fortune and ballooned it into more than 60 million dollars, was a close friend of political leaders and movie stars but his principal fame came from his baseball raids in 1946.

As president of the Mexican League, he moved north of the border with pockets bulging and lured some of the major leagues' biggest stars into the "outlaw" circuit.

NBA Bantam Title Bout Set Tonight

SAN FRANCISCO, March 8 (INS)—A last minute surge of interest today led to a forecast that a crowd of more than 10,000 will fill San Francisco's Cow Palace tomorrow night for the NBA world bantamweight title fight between Raul Macias of Mexico and Chambern Songkitrat of Thailand.

The ringsiders will include more than 500 rabid Macias fans enroute from south of the border by plane, train and bus plus hundreds of other Mexicans in the San Francisco Bay area and elsewhere in California.

Songkitrat, 10,000 miles from home, will have a group of Thailand students from the University of California rooting for him.

LaSalle Crushes West Virginia, 95-61, In NCAA Contest

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, March 8 (AP)—Defending champion LaSalle gave Rod Hundley a chance to show his stuff, then called on superior speed, team skill and Tom Gola to rout West Virginia 95-61 in a first round game of the National Collegiate basketball championships tonight.

A crowd of 14,315 in Madison Square Garden saw LaSalle set an NCAA Tournament scoring record against the Southern Conference champions after Canisius had trimmed Williams 73-60 and Villanova had squeaked through to a 74-73 decision over Duke. LaSalle set the previous record in last year's final when it beat Bradley 92-76.

LaSalle will play the Ivy League champions, either Princeton or Columbia, in the second round at Philadelphia Friday while the at-large teams, Canisius and Villanova will clash.

Hundley, West Virginia's sophomore "Hot Rod," made it a close game through most of the first half as he sank eight field goals. The score was tied eight times and Hundley's shot did it on three occasions and put West Virginia ahead twice.

Then, late in the period LaSalle put on a 14-point spurt and from there on Hundley was stopped cold. He sank just one free throw in the second half.

Meanwhile Gola, limited to one field goal in the first half, lived up to his All-America billing in the second when he racked up 18 points. In addition, Gola's superb defensive rebounding was an important factor. In that half he was as good as when he won the tournament's most valuable player award last spring.

Gola scored 24 points. He had plenty of help in the scoring line from Alonzo Lewis, who got 22 and from Frank Blatcher, who had 13. Pete White outscored Hundley 19-17 for West Virginia.

Villanova, Canisius Score Tourney Wins

NEW YORK, March 8 (AP)—Villanova which seems to thrive on Atlantic Coast competition, held off the closing challenge of Duke's ACC entry in the NCAA Tournament to win 74-73 in a first-round game tonight. Villanova will meet Canisius, 73-60 winner over Williams, in the second round at Philadelphia Friday.

The Villanova-Duke game, starting out slowly with a steady accompaniment of whistle-tooting for fouls, wound up in a blaze of scoring as the Blue Devils closed the gap from 10 points to one in the last three minutes.

Villanova, which led 39-29 at the half and 57-44 in the middle of the second period, almost came apart in the closing minutes as sharpshooting Joe Belmont and Don Tobin began hitting with their outside shots and slicing through the defense.

Duke got as close as two points once, 71-69 but never could get the lead.

Williams, the smallest of 24 colleges to qualify for the national collegiate championship, put on a terrific two-man show by its co-captains, Tony Moro and Ron Wilson, and displayed a tight zone defense that gave the upstate New Yorkers all kinds of trouble.

But Canisius' superior speed and the outside shooting of John McCarthy finally paid off. Moro sank nine field goals and as many fouls for 27 points.

AT THIRD, Freese's brother, George, who hit .324 for New Orleans, will be tested along with Lee Walls, an outfielder from Hollywood. If they don't work out Gordon will get it.

Frank Thomas, the home-run hitting outfielder, is the solid choice on the whole club but is not signed at this writing. He reportedly got $12,000 last year and wanted $18,000 this season. Thomas batted in 94 runs and is sought by several clubs.

A second outfield spot may go to Roberto Clemente, a Cuban drafted from Montreal for $2,500. Clemente played in the winter league and has the makings. Montreal reportedly gave him a $10,000 bonus for signing.

Gerry Lynch, the ball of fire sensation in last year's camp, tightened up when he saw the upper decks in the major league cities, but he may be ready now to play the outfield. Other competitors are Tom Saffell, from Hollywood, and Felipe Montemayor, who needs someone to make him hustle.

Dick Hall, listed as an outfielder, will get a chance to pitch. He twirled in the Mexican league this winter.

Henderson Bows Out • • • Fans Forgot $41,668 — His Teams Were Here • • • Grove's Average 20.2

By C. V. BURNS

"I'VE had enough."

Those were the words of Eli Camden Henderson the other day when he announced his resignation as head basketball coach at Marshall College, Huntington, W. Va.

The man who is bowing out after a coaching career of 41 years is better known in the sports world as the one and only "Cam" Henderson.

Mention of "Cam" Henderson should ring a bell with "oldtimers" in this area for it was in Cumberland two of his best teams performed. That was in the days "Cam" coached football and basketball at Davis & Elkins College.

When Mid-City Park was opened on Wineow street in 1923 the first college football teams to play there were Henderson's Senators from D.&E. and Ken Shroyer's Western Maryland College Green Terrors from Westminster. The date was October 20, 1923, and Davis & Elkins won by the score of 14-6.

Henderson turned out powerful cage and grid teams at the Elkins school and perhaps his best quint was that of the late 1920s whose personnel included Ran McKinney, now Grafton High School coach; Max "Hippo" Poscover, Christy, Barrett, Kochenderfer and Warren. This team traveled extensively and journeyed to the Pacific Coast one season.

On January 14, 1928, this aggregation, dubbed the "Scarlet Hurricane," played Coach Fred Rice's Catholic University quint here and it was a game that will linger long in the memory of local fans. Scene of action was the State Armory and it was the first meeting of top-notch college quints in Cumberland.

Highlight of the game was the spectacular shooting of one Ray Foley, of Catholic U., who dumped in eleven goals, eight shots coming from mid-court, as the Washington team topped D.&E., 43-29.

John J. Long, present Cumberland finance commissioner, playing his senior year with C.U., was presented a gold watch by his admirers here, funds for the gift being raised by Charley Babst, donor of the annual Babst Award at Allegany High School, and Paul Gallen, who now operates a tavern on South Mechanic street.

We always have admired "Cam" Henderson from the first time we met him at the big party D.&E. threw at a local hotel after the 1923 grid contest.

When "Cam" announced his retirement with the expiration of his contract on June 30, 1955, he said:

"I am 65 years old and am happy to be retiring in good health so that I may be able to enjoy the days remaining to me down on the farm where I grew up near Clarksburg.

"You know I couldn't stay any longer if I wanted to. I am 65 now," he repeated.

The "Old Man," as he is now called, gave up grid coaching at Marshall in 1949. His basketball team won 17 and lost four this season.

In 1947 Marshall's quint won 32 and lost 5 and copped the NAIB (now the NAIA) tournament at Kansas City. In 1952 Henderson was elected to the Helms Foundation Hall of Fame.

Among his greatest basketball stars at Marshall College were Jule Rivlin and Andy Tonkovich, who played here many times with Wheeling teams against Cumberland in the All-American Pro Basketball League.

RACING FANS are careless with their money, judging from the 1954 report of the Maryland Racing Commission.

In 1951 the tracks had on their hands $41,668.90 representing uncashed mutuel tickets. That amount went into the state treasury last year.

Under State law, uncashed tickets must be held by the tracks for three years and then turned over to the state treasury if still unredeemed.

THE LONGEST winning streak of the current season in the tri-state area is credited to Ridgeley High School which will oppose Aurora High in an area game Friday at Keyser.

WHEN Alma Grove, Bruce High School forward, scored 22 points in the final game of the season against St. Mary's of Cumberland yesterday at Westernport she finished the season with 222 tallies in 11 games for the nice average of 20.2 points.

J. FRED COLWILL, who has served as racing secretary of the Cumberland Fair Association for the past several years, will be one of the stewards when Bowie opens its 33-day meeting today.

The 42-year-old Colwill has served as racing secretary at Pimlico, Timonium, Marlboro and Bel Air in recent years and was steward at the Thistledown track in Ohio last year.

Jorge Pasquel Dies In Mexico Plane Tragedy

Gained Fame In 1946 For Baseball Raids

MEXICO CITY, March 8 (AP) — Jorge Pasquel, multi-millionaire Mexican sportsman whose 1946 raids on the big leagues led to a court battle over baseball's reserve clause, was killed last night when his private plane crashed in the San Luis Potosi Mountains.

Five others, including the pilot, co-pilot two mechanics and Pasquel's personal barber, also died in the crash about 225 miles northwest of Mexico City.

The Viking plane took off from Pasquel's ranch shortly before 9 p.m. Monday. Radio contact with the craft was lost soon afterwards. Rescue parties reached the wreckage today.

The dapper Pasquel, who with his four brothers inherited a small fortune and ballooned it into more than 60 million dollars, was a close friend of political leaders and movie stars but his principal fame came from his baseball raids in 1946.

As president of the Mexican League, he moved north of the border with pockets bulging and lured some of the major leagues' biggest stars into the "outlaw" circuit.

NBA Bantam Title Bout Set Tonight

SAN FRANCISCO, March 8 (INS)—A last minute surge of interest today led to a forecast that a crowd of more than 10,000 will fill San Francisco's Cow Palace tomorrow night for the NBA world bantamweight title fight between Raul Macias of Mexico and Chambern Songkitrat of Thailand.

The ringsiders will include more than 500 rabid Macias fans enroute from south of the border by plane, train and bus plus hundreds of other Mexicans in the San Francisco Bay area and elsewhere in California.

Songkitrat, 10,000 miles from home, will have a group of Thailand students from the University of California rooting for him.

Emmanuel Methodist Breaks Tie For 2nd, Beats Central, 57-14

Emmanuel Methodist broke a triple tie for second place in the Sunday School Basketball League by defeating Central Methodist yesterday on the YMCA court by the score of 57-14.

The win gave Emmanuel sole possession of the runner-up berth with a 22-3 record, a half game back of the top team, Calvary Methodist, which has won 22 and lost two.

Thurl Roy sparked the Emmanuel offensive with 11 baskets and 22 points. Terry Weltman of Emmanuel and Eugene Cave of Central collected 11 points each.

Trinity Lutheran defeated Trinity Methodist, 57-27 in another game played yesterday. First Baptist won via the forfeit route over Centenary.

George Loy headed Trinity Lutheran's attack with 16 points while Harold Knippenberg was runner-up with 12.

In games scheduled for today on the "Y" court, St. Matthew's plays the Maccabees at 5 o'clock and First Methodist meets St. Luke's at 6 o'clock. Lineups:

JUST A-SITTIN' and a-dreamin' at the New York Giants Phoenix, Ariz., training camp is Joe Amalfitano who appears doomed to ride the bench at the Polo Grounds next season again. Joe, a "bonus baby" saw no action during the 1954 pennant race but collected a full World Series share. According to rules, bonus players must remain with a team two seasons. (International)

Robinson-Lombardo Match Is Postponed

CINCINNATI, March 8 (AP)—The 10-round boxing bout scheduled for next Tuesday between Sugar Ray Robinson and Johnny Lombardo today was postponed until March 29.

Robinson's handlers in New York asked for a change in date, saying the former welterweight and middleweight champion needed the time to get in better condition.

Robinson was suspended for life in Massachusetts last night as a result of pulling out of a fight with Georgie Small of Brooklyn last Saturday night.

He pleaded illness and withdrew from the contest a few hours before he was scheduled to enter the ring. Physicians said he was not sick.

Turpin Knocks Out Spanish Champion

LONDON, March 8 (AP)—Former world middleweight champion Randy Turpin of Great Britain tonight knocked out Spanish heavyweight champion Jose Gonzalez in 2 minutes 20 seconds of the seventh round of their scheduled ten-round bout.

The fight, before 18,000 in Earls Court, found Turpin ahead all the way. Gonzalez, 173½, won the third round and the fifth was even.

Schaus Named Coach Of Year In Conference

WVU Mentor Honored After First Season

RICHMOND, Va., March 8 (AP)—The accomplishment of guiding West Virginia to its first Southern Conference basketball championship in his initial year as coach today earned conference coach of the year honors for a one-time Mountaineer great, Fred Schaus.

West Virginia, after a 106-67 drubbing at the hands of Richmond in midseason, came back to win the regular season conference title and then won three straight in last weekend's league tournament, upsetting favored George Washington in overtime in the title game.

Succeeded Brown

Schaus became West Virginia coach last summer when Robert N. (Red) Brown moved up to the post of athletic director. His team had a 16-10 record in over-all competition, plus three tournament triumphs.

West Virginia, the only team to defeat George Washington twice in the 1954-55 season, never before had advanced beyond the semi-finals of the Southern Conference tourney since it joined the loop in 1950.

In his playing days at West Virginia, Schaus scored 1,009 points in three years to mark up a 16.5-point average for 61 games—a record that stood until it was surpassed in the 1950's by Mark Workman and Eddie Becker.

Schaus also played professional basketball with the Fort Wayne Pistons and New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Assn.

Native Of Ohio

Other coaches who received votes were Bill Reinhart of George Washington, Billy McCann of Washington and Lee, Lester Hooker Jr. of Richmond and Lyles Alley of Furman.

Robinson-Lombardo Match Is Postponed

CINCINNATI, March 8 (AP)—The 10-round boxing bout scheduled for next Tuesday between Sugar Ray Robinson and Johnny Lombardo today was postponed until March 29.

Robinson's handlers in New York asked for a change in date, saying the former welterweight and middleweight champion needed the time to get in better condition.

Robinson was suspended for life in Massachusetts last night as a result of pulling out of a fight with Georgie Small of Brooklyn last Saturday night.

He pleaded illness and withdrew from the contest a few hours before he was scheduled to enter the ring. Physicians said he was not sick.

Turpin Knocks Out Spanish Champion

LONDON, March 8 (AP)—Former world middleweight champion Randy Turpin of Great Britain tonight knocked out Spanish heavyweight champion Jose Gonzalez in 2 minutes 20 seconds of the seventh round of their scheduled ten-round bout.

The fight, before 18,000 in Earls Court, found Turpin ahead all the way. Gonzalez, 173½, won the third round and the fifth was even.

Schaus Named Coach Of Year In Conference

WVU Mentor Honored After First Season

RICHMOND, Va., March 8 (AP)—The accomplishment of guiding West Virginia to its first Southern Conference basketball championship in his initial year as coach today earned conference coach of the year honors for a one-time Mountaineer great, Fred Schaus.

West Virginia, after a 106-67 drubbing at the hands of Richmond in midseason, came back to win the regular season conference title and then won three straight in last weekend's league tournament, upsetting favored George Washington in overtime in the title game.

Succeeded Brown

Schaus became West Virginia coach last summer when Robert N. (Red) Brown moved up to the post of athletic director. His team had a 16-10 record in over-all competition, plus three tournament triumphs.

West Virginia, the only team to defeat George Washington twice in the 1954-55 season, never before had advanced beyond the semi-finals of the Southern Conference tourney since it joined the loop in 1950.

In his playing days at West Virginia, Schaus scored 1,009 points in three years to mark up a 16.5-point average for 61 games—a record that stood until it was surpassed in the 1950's by Mark Workman and Eddie Becker.

Schaus also played professional basketball with the Fort Wayne Pistons and New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Assn.

Native Of Ohio

Other coaches who received votes were Bill Reinhart of George Washington, Billy McCann of Washington and Lee, Lester Hooker Jr. of Richmond and Lyles Alley of Furman.

Gandharva Wins Over 62-1 Shot At Gulfstream

Indicative, 24-1, Takes Show Money

MIAMI, Fla., March 8 (AP)—Brookmeade Stable's Gandharva, heroine of Saratoga's Spinaway Stakes in 1954, marked her 1955 schedule with an impressive victory over six other 3-year-olds at Gulfstream Park today before 18,746.

The highly esteemed daughter of Olympia, evidently too classy for the opposition, was in front all the way and had something left as she crossed the wire a length to the good in the sixth, an overnight test of $3,500. It was named for the Illinois Athletic Club.

Broadmoor Farm's 62 to 1 Shy Peg, longest priced horse in the race, was a creditable second, though doing her best to outfinish E. Constantin Jr.'s Indicative, a 24 to 1 shot, by a neck. Fourth was Mrs. Lottie Wolf's Ciderman. Then came Shimke, the second choice; Charlie's Gem, winner of the De-Soto Handicap at Tropical, and bright Lark. Ciderman and Bright Lark are candidates for the $100,000 Florida Derby on March 26.

Gandharva, completing a riding double for Apprentice Don Brumfield, was a stout favorite, paying $4.90, $3.80 and $3.00. Shy Peg returned $24.20 and $8.40. The show price on Indicative was $5.50. The winner covered the 6 furlongs on a fast track in 1:11 4/5. She was making her first start since finishing third in the Alcibiades at Kentucky's Keeneland Park back in October.

She raced only seven times as a juvenile, winning three, with one second and one third, for earnings of $54,598. She earned $2,100 today. There is no question Gandharva will be pointed for the Acorn and the Coaching Club American Oaks at Belmont Park later in the season.

Another juicy daily double, worth $368.10, was formed today when Teaneck Flash ($9.60) scampered off with the opener and No Release ($47.70) scored in the second.

Carrasquel Fined $100 For Feigning Illness

TAMPA, Fla., March 8 (INS)—Shortstop Chico Carrasquel of the Chicago White Sox was fined $100 today for failure to report for practice.

Carrasquel was reported ill. Manager Marty Marion went to the club's hotel to check on his condition and reported he found otherwise.

Marion then announced to the entire squad that Chico had been ordered to shell out $100. It was the first time in many years that a White Sox player had been fined during the training season.

Expensive Sticks

BOSTON (AP)—The Bruins National Hockey League club gets stuck with plenty of broken hockey sticks. Players break about $2,000 worth of sticks each year.

The master stick-breaker is forward Leo Boivin. He averages about three per game at $3 each.

By PAT ROBINSON

NEW YORK, March 8—(INS)—Little Jimmy Murray, the affable San Francisco fight promoter, intends to charge $40 for a fight that may not be worth two bucks.

That, of course, is the Rocky Marciano-Don Cockell heavyweight title fight, which Jimmy, in collusion with the International Boxing Club, Inc., intends to foist on his unsuspecting neighbors around the Golden Gate.

When he was here last week, Murray said he expected no trouble getting 40 bucks apiece for the ringside pews.

When the match was signed IBC president Jim Norris blithlely predicted the gate would run to $500,000 or more, which proves Jim is an optimist of the first rank.

Five years later Mike had the consummate gall to charge $100 tops for another Louis-Conn affair (and what a stinkeroo it was) at Yankee Stadium and 45,266 made a gross gate of $1,925,564.

Now it isn't you and your girl friend who build up those tremendous gats. No indeed. Rather they are built up by nationally known business concerns who buy thousands of dollars worth of tickets to give to their out-of-town customers as a good will gesture.

Much as we love San Francisco we doubt that it has enough concerns willing to toss away dough for such an "attraction" as the Marciano-Cockell affair figures to be.

If that pair draw $250,000 we should consider they had done marvelously well.

Let's suppose that 65,000 do fill Kezar Stadium. That doesn't mean there will be that many paying customers. Not by several thousands.

Mike Jacobs used to figure on at least 5,000 dead heads with Annie Oakleys. There would be a minimum of 500 cops in on the cuff. Another 500 firemen. At least 1,000 more from the city building outfit. At least 3,000 complimentary ducats for the press. Then there would be another 500 for employes' friends, fighters and their managers and seconds to say nothing of a horde of chiseling politicians.

So you see if that gate were to run $500,000 in San Francisco it would be a modern miracle.

Boonsboro Wins 15 Straight, Faces Southern High Friday

Washington County Team Could Be Tourney Darkhorse

When Southern High School of Oakland faces Boonsboro High School of Washington county in the second game of Friday night's tripleheader in the Maryland District No. 1 basketball tournament on the Fort Hill High School court it could be meeting the "darkhorse" in Class "B" competition.

Boonsboro, coached by Frank Keyser, owns the highest winning percentage of the seven teams competing in the two-day event here. The Washington countians have won 16 out of 17 games and come here with a 15-game winning streak. Their only setback came in the second game of the campaign at the hands of Hancock, 71-58, but they avenged that loss later to the tune of 49-43. Boonsboro's victims in the last fifteen games were Clearspring, Middletown, Quincy, St. James Jayvees, Smithsburg, Williamsport, Clearspring, Quincy, Hancock, Smithsburg, St. Mary's, of Hagerstown, Williamsport, Middletown, Quincy and St. James in that order.

Southern Owns 13-8 Mark

Southern, coached by Leonard Ritchie, enters the tourney with a 13-8 record. The Highlanders' most prized win was a 56-48 decision over Allegany High School.

The Boonsboro-Southern contest is set for 7:45 with Bob Pence and Bill Hahn as the officials.

Valley High of Lonaconing and Middletown High of Frederick county will open the tourney Friday at 6 o'clock with Klim and Solic as the officials.

Coach John Meyers' Black Knights won the Allegany County Class "B" title with a 4-0 record against Mt. Savage and Bruce and have copped 17 of 21 contests. Four of Valley's wins were scored over Class "A" schools. The Knights defeated Keyser, Fort Hill, twice, and split even with Allegany.

Coach Carroll Horine's Middletown team qualified for the District event by whipping Thurmont, 45-29. The Frederick countians come here with an 11-7 record and rate as the underdogs against Valley which captured state honors last season.

Hubs To Test Beall

The third game on Friday night's program pits Beall High of Frostburg against Mel Henry's Hagerstown High quint at 9:30 o'clock. Beall finished its regular season with a 15-5 record, captured the W.M.I. League championship with an 8-2 mark and earned county Class "A" honors with three wins and one loss. Coach "Ebbie" Finzel's Mountaineers whipped Fort Hill twice and split even with Allegany in Class "A" contests.

Hagerstown should prove a worthy opponent for the Frostburg quint. The Washington countians have won 16 out of 21 contests. The Hubs hold two decisions over Allegany and split even with Fort Hill, Frederick and Martinsburg.

Frederick In Finals

Frederick, coached by Homer C. Brooks, former Allegany High and West Virginia University player, drew a bye in the opening round and battles the Hagerstown-Beall winner Saturday night at 9 o'clock. The Cadets won 15 and lost 2. The losses were suffered at the hands of Hagerstown and Frederick with whom Frederick split even.

Winners in Saturday night's games advance to the state championship event next weekend at College Park. With Allegany High out of the running there will be a new state Class "A" champion this year. Valley High will retain the "B" crown if it goes all the way.

Indicative, 24-1, Takes Show Money

MIAMI, Fla., March 8 (AP)—Brookmeade Stable's Gandharva, heroine of Saratoga's Spinaway Stakes in 1954, marked her 1955 schedule with an impressive victory over six other 3-year-olds at Gulfstream Park today before 18,746.

The highly esteemed daughter of Olympia, evidently too classy for the opposition, was in front all the way and had something left as she crossed the wire a length to the good in the sixth, an overnight test of $3,500. It was named for the Illinois Athletic Club.

Broadmoor Farm's 62 to 1 Shy Peg, longest priced horse in the race, was a creditable second, though doing her best to outfinish E. Constantin Jr.'s Indicative, a 24 to 1 shot, by a neck. Fourth was Mrs. Lottie Wolf's Ciderman. Then came Shimke, the second choice; Charlie's Gem, winner of the De-Soto Handicap at Tropical, and bright Lark. Ciderman and Bright Lark are candidates for the $100,000 Florida Derby on March 26.

Gandharva, completing a riding double for Apprentice Don Brumfield, was a stout favorite, paying $4.90, $3.80 and $3.00. Shy Peg returned $24.20 and $8.40. The show price on Indicative was $5.50. The winner covered the 6 furlongs on a fast track in 1:11 4/5. She was making her first start since finishing third in the Alcibiades at Kentucky's Keeneland Park back in October.

She raced only seven times as a juvenile, winning three, with one second and one third, for earnings of $54,598. She earned $2,100 today. There is no question Gandharva will be pointed for the Acorn and the Coaching Club American Oaks at Belmont Park later in the season.

Another juicy daily double, worth $368.10, was formed today when Teaneck Flash ($9.60) scampered off with the opener and No Release ($47.70) scored in the second.

Carrasquel Fined $100 For Feigning Illness

TAMPA, Fla., March 8 (INS)—Shortstop Chico Carrasquel of the Chicago White Sox was fined $100 today for failure to report for practice.

Carrasquel was reported ill. Manager Marty Marion went to the club's hotel to check on his condition and reported he found otherwise.

Marion then announced to the entire squad that Chico had been ordered to shell out $100. It was the first time in many years that a White Sox player had been fined during the training season.

Expensive Sticks

BOSTON (AP)—The Bruins National Hockey League club gets stuck with plenty of broken hockey sticks. Players break about $2,000 worth of sticks each year.

The master stick-breaker is forward Leo Boivin. He averages about three per game at $3 each.

NEW YORK, March 8—(INS)—Little Jimmy Murray, the affable San Francisco fight promoter, intends to charge $40 for a fight that may not be worth two bucks.

That, of course, is the Rocky Marciano-Don Cockell heavyweight title fight, which Jimmy, in collusion with the International Boxing Club, Inc., intends to foist on his unsuspecting neighbors around the Golden Gate.

When he was here last week, Murray said he expected no trouble getting 40 bucks apiece for the ringside pews.

When the match was signed IBC president Jim Norris blithlely predicted the gate would run to $500,000 or more, which proves Jim is an optimist of the first rank.

Five years later Mike had the consummate gall to charge $100 tops for another Louis-Conn affair (and what a stinkeroo it was) at Yankee Stadium and 45,266 made a gross gate of $1,925,564.

Now it isn't you and your girl friend who build up those tremendous gats. No indeed. Rather they are built up by nationally known business concerns who buy thousands of dollars worth of tickets to give to their out-of-town customers as a good will gesture.

Much as we love San Francisco we doubt that it has enough concerns willing to toss away dough for such an "attraction" as the Marciano-Cockell affair figures to be.

If that pair draw $250,000 we should consider they had done marvelously well.

Let's suppose that 65,000 do fill Kezar Stadium. That doesn't mean there will be that many paying customers. Not by several thousands.

Mike Jacobs used to figure on at least 5,000 dead heads with Annie Oakleys. There would be a minimum of 500 cops in on the cuff. Another 500 firemen. At least 1,000 more from the city building outfit. At least 3,000 complimentary ducats for the press. Then there would be another 500 for employes' friends, fighters and their managers and seconds to say nothing of a horde of chiseling politicians.

So you see if that gate were to run $500,000 in San Francisco it would be a modern miracle.

Boonsboro Wins 15 Straight, Faces Southern High Friday

Washington County Team Could Be Tourney Darkhorse

When Southern High School of Oakland faces Boonsboro High School of Washington county in the second game of Friday night's tripleheader in the Maryland District No. 1 basketball tournament on the Fort Hill High School court it could be meeting the "darkhorse" in Class "B" competition.

Boonsboro, coached by Frank Keyser, owns the highest winning percentage of the seven teams competing in the two-day event here. The Washington countians have won 16 out of 17 games and come here with a 15-game winning streak. Their only setback came in the second game of the campaign at the hands of Hancock, 71-58, but they avenged that loss later to the tune of 49-43. Boonsboro's victims in the last fifteen games were Clearspring, Middletown, Quincy, St. James Jayvees, Smithsburg, Williamsport, Clearspring, Quincy, Hancock, Smithsburg, St. Mary's, of Hagerstown, Williamsport, Middletown, Quincy and St. James in that order.

Southern Owns 13-8 Mark

Southern, coached by Leonard Ritchie, enters the tourney with a 13-8 record. The Highlanders' most prized win was a 56-48 decision over Allegany High School.

The Boonsboro-Southern contest is set for 7:45 with Bob Pence and Bill Hahn as the officials.

Valley High of Lonaconing and Middletown High of Frederick county will open the tourney Friday at 6 o'clock with Klim and Solic as the officials.

Coach John Meyers' Black Knights won the Allegany County Class "B" title with a 4-0 record against Mt. Savage and Bruce and have copped 17 of 21 contests. Four of Valley's wins were scored over Class "A" schools. The Knights defeated Keyser, Fort Hill, twice, and split even with Allegany.

Coach Carroll Horine's Middletown team qualified for the District event by whipping Thurmont, 45-29. The Frederick countians come here with an 11-7 record and rate as the underdogs against Valley which captured state honors last season.

Hubs To Test Beall

The third game on Friday night's program pits Beall High of Frostburg against Mel Henry's Hagerstown High quint at 9:30 o'clock. Beall finished its regular season with a 15-5 record, captured the W.M.I. League championship with an 8-2 mark and earned county Class "A" honors with three wins and one loss. Coach "Ebbie" Finzel's Mountaineers whipped Fort Hill twice and split even with Allegany in Class "A" contests.

Hagerstown should prove a worthy opponent for the Frostburg quint. The Washington countians have won 16 out of 21 contests. The Hubs hold two decisions over Allegany and split even with Fort Hill, Frederick and Martinsburg.

Frederick In Finals

Frederick, coached by Homer C. Brooks, former Allegany High and West Virginia University player, drew a bye in the opening round and battles the Hagerstown-Beall winner Saturday night at 9 o'clock. The Cadets won 15 and lost 2. The losses were suffered at the hands of Hagerstown and Frederick with whom Frederick split even.

Winners in Saturday night's games advance to the state championship event next weekend at College Park. With Allegany High out of the running there will be a new state Class "A" champion this year. Valley High will retain the "B" crown if it goes all the way.

Jury Awards $408 Verdict

After deliberating more than an hour, an Allegany County Circuit Court jury yesterday afternoon awarded a $408.65 verdict to Roy L. Burkett and Glen H. Burkett, trading as Glen-Roy Oldsmobile Company.

The plaintiffs, through Attorney William R. Carscaden, had filed a $500 damage suit against Fred J. Rosenbaum and M. Virginia Rosenbaum, his wife. They charged that last August 16 they repaired the defendants' 1951 model automobile and billed them for $408.65 but payment had not been made.

The defendants, through Attorney Thomas N. Berry, argued that the repairs were "grossly in excess" of what had been authorized. However, the all-male jury of which Milton C. VanMeter was foreman, awarded the exact amount of the bill.

The Burketts said the repair work included checking noise in the engine, repairing and cleaning the engine, grinding the valves, installing crankshaft and timing chain, ring bearings and fuel pump, removing and installing the motor.

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris presided at the trial.

A ream of reports from the University of Maryland leaves little doubt that the compost being made here is "extremely high in elements needed by various types of soil."

The young Italian chemist explained that various types of soil need to be fortified or replenished with various types of elements or with other things so they can retain moisture and air.

In the compost being made here, just about everything required can be provided. For very special situations, he said, control in the laboratory will provide exactly what is needed.

At the present time, Minter is negotiating with several jobbers and distributors to get the compost on the market. Already, several large firms have asked for immediate distribution rights.

He and his assistants are working now on plans to package the material so it can be acquired by the consumer in small, medium and large packages, and in a short time, Minter believes, production can be stepped u noticeably and more people can be employed.

Celanese Plans Full Scale Production Of Fiber X-36

Celanese Corporation of America before the end of 1955 will begin full-scale commercial production of Fiber X-36, a super-strong industrial fiber which has been under development and evaluation for the last four years, Harold Blancke, president, announced yesterday.

Equipment and machinery are now on order for the operation which will be located at the Rome, Ga., fiber manufacturing plant of the Company, he said.

"Although a chemical brother to Fortisan, the regenerated cellulose yarn which Celanese launched in 1940, Fiber X-36 is made by an entirely new process developed specifically for the production of the heavy deniers required in industrial applications," Blancke said.

The product will be marketed as Fortisan-36 in continuous filament form, and at the outset will be available in 800 denier continuous filament. Other sizes in the heavy denier ranges may be produced. It is expected that the price will be announced in the near future.

"It is anticipated that Fortisan-36 production will get under way early in the final quarter of the year. Until that time some sample quantities from present pilot operations will be available.

In the process of appraising the market opportunities for Fortisan-36, the fiber has been evaluated by a wide number of corporations operating in various fields. Reports from these consumers indicate a bright potential for the material, Blancke said, due to its properties of great strength, low elongation and dimensional stability in such fields os power transmission belting, high pressure hose, fire hose, conveyor belts, webbing, body armor and backing for heavy duty carpets.

The new product, Blancke said, tends to fill a gap which exists between high tenacity rayon on one side and glass fiber and industrial steel wire on the other. There are indications that Fortisan-36 will find its way into important industrial applications for which no existing fiber is completely satisfactory. Such possibilities exist in both the civilian and military fields.

R. Finley Thompson, Alleg[illegible] plant manager, said local Fortisan production operations will be unaffected.

RAND'S CUT RATE

HERE'S HOW New 1955 No-Nox burns clean...

This spark plug is from one of the many sets of original equipment plugs used in Gulf test fleet cars. Normally, plugs need cleaning or replacement after 5,000 to 10,000 miles. This plug and its mates did not need cleaning or replacement after 15,000 miles with new NO-NOX.

what's more...No gasoline—no, not a single one—has higher octane than...

GULF'S PLEDGE to the motoring public

GULF

- We at Gulf make this promise to America's motorists. We will not permit a single competitor—no, not a single one—to offer a gasoline superior to our own superb No-Nox.
- It is our sincere belief that No-Nox is the finest gasoline on the market today, and no matter what others do or say we will keep it the finest—in power, in performance, in engine protection.
- This is not a boast, not a claim. It is a pledge to you, the motoring public—a pledge backed by the resources—and the integrity—of the Gulf Oil Corporation.

New 1955 GULF NO-NOX

Get the full advantage of all this octane power. Fill up now with new Super-Refined Gulf NO-NOX and feel the difference in power that really works for you mile after mile. Right from the start, you'll get these lasting benefits:

- More complete engine protection than with so-called "miracle-additive" gasolines.
- Extra gas mileage in the short-trip, stop-and-go driving motorists do most.
- Stall-proof smoothness . . . instant starts . . . fast, fuel-saving warm-up.
- No knock, no pre-ignition—even in today's high-compression engines.

In the process of appraising the market opportunities for Fortisan-36, the fiber has been evaluated by a wide number of corporations operating in various fields. Reports from these consumers indicate a bright potential for the material, Blancke said, due to its properties of great strength, low elongation and dimensional stability in such fields os power transmission belting, high pressure hose, fire hose, conveyor belts, webbing, body armor and backing for heavy duty carpets.

The new product, Blancke said, tends to fill a gap which exists between high tenacity rayon on one side and glass fiber and industrial steel wire on the other. There are indications that Fortisan-36 will find its way into important industrial applications for which no existing fiber is completely satisfactory. Such possibilities exist in both the civilian and military fields.

R. Finley Thompson, Allegany plant manager, said local Fortisan production operations will be unaffected.

This spark plug is from one of the many sets of original equipment plugs used in Gulf test fleet cars. Normally, plugs need cleaning or replacement after 5,000 to 10,000 miles. This plug and its mates did not need cleaning or replacement after 15,000 miles with new NO-NOX.

what's more...No gasoline-no, not a single one-has higher octane than...

New 1955 GULF NO-NOX

Get the full advantage of all this octane power. Fill up now with new Super-Refined Gulf NO-NOX and feel the difference in power that really works for you mile after mile. Right from the start, you'll get these lasting benefits:

- More complete engine protection than with so-called "miracle-additive" gasolines.
- Extra gas mileage in the short-trip, stop-and-go driving motorists do most.
- Stall-proof smoothness . . . instant starts . . . fast, fuel-saving warm-up.
- No knock, no pre-ignition—even in today's high-compression engines.

GULF'S PLEDGE to the motoring public

GULF

- We at Gulf make this promise to America's motorists. We will not permit a single competitor—no, not a single one—to offer a gasoline superior to our own superb No-Nox.
- It is our sincere belief that No-Nox is the finest gasoline on the market today, and no matter what others do or say we will keep it the finest—in power, in performance, in engine protection.
- This is not a boast, not a claim. It is a pledge to you, the motoring public—a pledge backed by the resources—and the integrity—of the Gulf Oil Corporation.

It's super-refined...to burn clean! The '55 gasoline for all high-compression engines

Second Annual Home Show Opens Here Thursday

3-Day Exhibit To Have Many Building Ideas

It was said long ago that in the spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love.

Many a man also turns his thoughts in spring to building or buying a new home or improving the one he already has.

With this thought in mind, the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce is all set to present its second annual Cumberland Home Show Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the Footer Building at the end of South Mechanic Street. The show will be open Thursday and Friday from 6:30 until 10 p. m. and on Saturday from 1:30 until 10 p. m.

No admission is charged but Jaycees have urged that all children be accompanied by their parents or other adults.

The more than 70 booths on the first and second floors of the Footer Building will feature a wide variety of ideas, George L. Carney Jr., show chairman, emphasized.

Besides building materials, exhibits at the Home Show will offer many suggestions for those who wish to repair the homes they already have. Ideas for the home owner who wants to clean, paint and beautify his home also will be available. Other displays will help the home owner with suggestions about furniture and appliances for his home an dother ideas which make home life more pleasant.

Last year the Cumberland Jaycees started the Home Show without any assurance of success. Some 9,300 residents from throughout the Tri-State area came to the show in three days. Financially, the first Home Show was so successful that the Jaycees were able to purchase a $1,000 Rockette for Memorial Hospital. The Rockette is a mechanical device which rocks new-born babies until they begin breathing naturally and normally. Obstetricians figure the device has saved the lives of a number of children in the past year.

HOME SHOW THEN AND NOW—Crowds like the one pictured at the top which thronged the Footer Building last March for the first Cumberland Home Show are expected to be surpassed this week when the second annual show gets under way with expanded facilities. More than 9,300 attended last year's show and officials expect that record to be topped. The lower picture shows a portion of one of the first exhibits to be completed for the opening of the new show. It is a model house in various stages of completion.

Exhibitors Busy With Finishing Touches For Over 70 Booths Which Will Provide Variety For Home Show Here This Week

Representatives from some 40 different manufacturing firms and business houses in Cumberland are busy on the first and second floors of the Footer Building on South Mechanic Street today putting the finishing touches on more than 70 booths for the second annual Cumberland Home Show which starts tomorrow.

A couple of the exhibits were almost ready Sunday for the show's opening but many of the other exhibitors have been working feverishly all week to get their displays in readiness for the big show sponsored by the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce.

One of the exhibits which has taken much work to prepare has as its background a 48-inch high wall built of blocks. Concrete floor slabs extend out from the wall four feet to represent a basement. The block wall will be coated with a waterproof wall coating and the floor slabs will be painted with masonry oil paint. An electric pump will be connected to keep an active spray of water on a block tank showing how the wall coating stops the water.

Another booth will be lined with colored sheets of fibre glass which the exhibitor makes into awnings and partitions. This exhibit will feature a drapery line, storm doors and windows, venetian blinds and aluminum awnings.

Doc Stork and Pop Stork will be featured in a "Call an Expert" theme which a local diaper service is showing in its booth. The display background for this exhibit has just arrived from New Orleans.

Another exhibitor, who handles building materials from foundation to roof, will show a complete line of these materials.

One of the Cumberland's financial institutions, the first to have its exhibit in place for the show, has rented two booth spaces. It has a black and white color scheme with an illustration relating to repairs necessary for the proper maintenance of the home.

This display also includes a large model home, showing methods of interior and exterior construction. The message of this booth is that a home improvement loan can be obtained from the particular institution.

Exhibitors at the show will include the Celanese Corporation of America, Queen City Oil Company, Russell L. Shrontz, distributor of standard dry wall products; the South Cumberland Planing Mill, John E. Sharp and Company, Sears Roebuck and Company, the Wilson Hardware Company, George S. Warner, upholstery; Dy-Dee Service, Super Concrete Company, Inc., Sterling Electric Company, Inc., Cumberland Cloak and Suit Company, Rosenbaum's, Cumberland Cement and Supply Company, Buchanan Lumber Company, Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, Davis Motion Picture Service, L. Bernstein Furniture Company, Liberty Trust Company, Potomac Edison Company, S. T. Little Jewelry Company, First Federal Savings and Loan Association, First National Bank of Cumberland, Burkey's Television and Appliance Center, Curl's Camera Shop, Monarch Foods, R. H. Lapp and Sons, Rusco Window and Supply Company, Inc., Vandegrift's Piano Store, Clingan Electrical Supply Company, McKaig's Machinery and Supplies, Cumberland Maytag Appliance Center, Vogel-Ritt of Penn-Mar-Va Inc., Wolf Furniture Company, Tri-State Bottled Gas Company, Green-Hartman Appliance Center and Hill's Toy Store.

Home Show Visitors Offered Chance To Win Many Prizes

Visitors to the second annual Cumberland Home Show starting Thursday at 6:30 p. m. will have the opportunity of winning many prizes again this year.

George L. Carney Jr., general chairman of the show, said that the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce, the show sponsor, again will offer a 21-inch screen console model television set as the grand prize. It will be given away Saturday night at the close of the three-day show.

But aside from the TV set, there will be many other prizes offered by the more than 40 different exhibitors.

One of the Cumberland banks which has arranged an exhibit for the show Thursday and Friday nights and Saturday afternoon and night will give away a $50 savings bond on the final night.

Another exhibitor, a maker of building materials, will offer a $100 certificate for building materials. Prizes to be given away by still another business firm at the show are a stroller and high chair for infants with total value of $38. They will be the prizes in an expectant name contest.

A camera shop will give away a $50 home development and enlargement outfit, a $13.65 flash camera outfit and memberships in a camera club.

Virtually all of the exhibitors will have some valuable prizes to give away at the three-day show. Souvenirs and advertising literature also will be available in the show.

A festive atmosphere will be provided by the balloons which will be given to the youngsters attending in large quantity.

Most Cellar Water Comes From Roof

More cellar dampness is caused by roof water than by underground water sources. Tests have shown that in most cases the ground water level is well below a cellar floor.

Cellar was can normaly keep out the amount of rain water that falls on the ground next to the foundation. But when the greatly increased drainage of a roof is allowed to seep into the small areas next to house, cellar walls are subjected to a task for which they were not designed.

Colors Are Tricky

A safe rule in selecting a paint color is to choose a sample considerably lighter than the shade you have in mind. Any color on a large area takes on a darker appearance than it does on a small sample. Walls also reflect colors and deepen the effect.

Dacron Paint Rollers

A new fleece covering for paint rollers is made of Dacron polyester fiber. It is rated to hold 27 per cent more paint than other fleece and will not mat or wilt.

Wide Use Of Glass In Modern Home Adds Importance To Grounds Planning

Planning the grounds around a house, whether you are building or modernizing a house, is more important today than it used to be. The wide spread use of glass in the modern home and the blending of indoor-outdoor living make the garden and the grounds far more important to today's family than they were a generation ago.

When you consider that an average lot comprises 5,000 to 6,000 square feet of space, and the average house occupies only about a fifth of that area—and sometimes less, especially when the lot is larger—you can see what you can gain by planning the other four-fifths to provide as much living area as possible.

Controlling The View

Architects have found that the best way to control a view on a small lot is to place the outlook from the living room on the rear of the house, instead of toward the street. This makes it possible to use fences, hedges and suitable plantings to create whatever view is desired.

Indoor and outdoor areas can be related by extending a terrace from the glass wall areas of the living room. And many architects are going a step farther. They tie interior space to exterior space by employing a flooring material, such as large clay tile of the dull red quarry type for both the living room floor and the surfacing of the terrace. The use of the same pavement in both spaces effectively unifies the indoor and outdoor areas.

An Outdoor Tile

Red quarry tile, often used in foyers and around fireplaces, blends well with natural wood finishes. It has enough color for floors so that a minimum of rugs are used with it. It is practical for homes with radiant heated slabs and it is easy to clean and maintain.

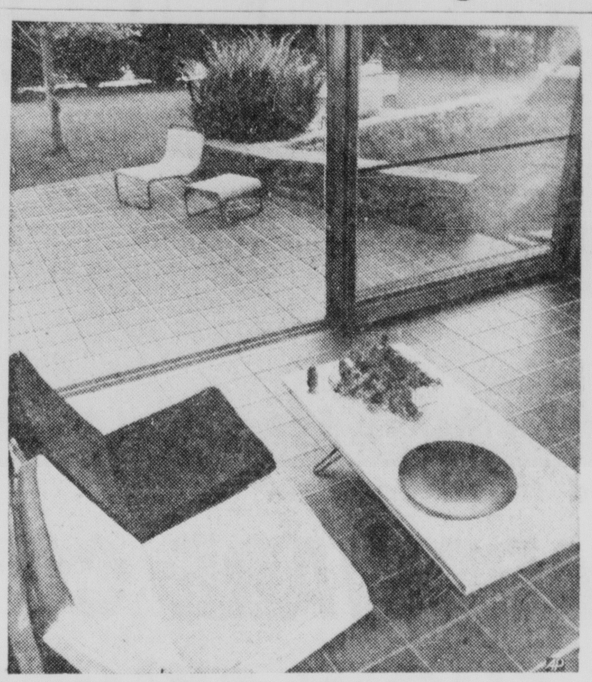
Being frost-proof, this material is one of the few interior materials that are suited to outdoor use.

Trees are important in planning a lot. Think twice before you let a builder cut down a shade tree to expedite construction of a new house or an addition. Careful planning may enable you to save a tree that would take 20 to 30 years to grow from sapling stage. Very often a terrace or porch can be built around a tree and adequate moisture and ventilation can still be provided for the roots.

Play space for children is a must in planning grounds. A terrace can be ideal for them and keep them from the hazards of street play.

Storage is another factor. Where will the lawn mower and garden tools be kept? Tricycles, bicycles, wagons and sleds need space. A simple solution is to make a garage or carport a little longer, with storage space at the end. Sometimes an inconspicuous tool shed at one side of the lot will fill the bill.

Lot planning can be more flexible than house planning. You can transport shrubs and hedges if you change your mind. But it is wise to plan your paved areas, such as terraces or patios carefully. They are more or less permanent adjuncts to a home.



MERGING the outdoors with the indoors, only a window wall of double glazing marks the boundary when the pavement of the terrace also forms the living floor. This is an example of dull red quarry tile, which is frostproof.

Floor Drain Keeps Bathroom Neat

A smart trick in bathroom planning is to place a drain in the tiled floor and slope the floor slightly toward the drain.

This simplifies mopping the floor and when children splash in the tub or shower, the water goes down the drain instead of standing in puddles on the floor.

It is a safety measure, too. On those rare occasions when someone lets a bathtub or wash basin overflow, the water merely runs down the drain in the tile floor, instead of under the door and on the carpets of other rooms.

New Clothes Tree Boosts Closet Use

The efficiency of a storage closet can be increased from 50 to 100 percent by lining the walls with pegboard, perforated hardboard. Mounting such panels on furring strips places them out from the wall a fraction of an inch to accommodate various metal hooks and fixtures.

A new fixture is the closet tree. This comprises a vertical metal pole reaching from floor to ceiling with adjustable side arms extending out toward the walls. It makes the hanging of garments easy for children as well as adults.

The height of the arms can be changed at 3-inch intervals with a screwdriver. They swing in arcs to allow access to the walls.

This Table Shows Area Paint Will Cover

How far will a gallon of paint go? This is a problem the home handyman would like to solve before he buys an unnecessary amount of paint.

Rough, porous surfaces, and those lacking a primer or other undercoater, naturally call for more paint than walls or woodwork in good pre-painted condition.

The following table for one coat of paint, where no sizing has been used, was prepared by the M. J. Merkin Co. to show the areas which one gallon of paint will cover.

Type of Surface	Sq. Ft.
Smooth painted surfaces	700-800
White coat plaster	500-600
Sand finish plaster and textured walls	250-350
Wallpaper	350-450
Gypsum wallboard	250-350
Concrete surfaces	400-500
Brick surfaces	300-400
Cinder block	200-250

For average - size rooms with surfaces in good condition, where a one-coat finish is planned, and where ceilings are a different color than the walls, with the height of walls about 8 feet, the following number of quarts will be needed:

Room Size	Walls	Ceiling	Woodwork	Floor
6x9	2	1	½	½
9x9	3	1	½	½
10x12	3	1	1	1
14x14	4	2	1½	2
20x18	5	3	2	2

Paint By The Yard

Coated fabric wall coverings, popular for durability in kitchens, are now available in 21 new solid colors as well as in wallpaper designs. The material is scrubbable.

When buying hardwood flooring, check carefully the species you order. A mixed species of flooring will wear unevenly, with the softer boards wearing faster than the harder wood.

Wide Use Of Glass In Modern Home Adds Importance To Grounds Planning

Planning the grounds around a house, whether you are building or modernizing a house, is more important today than it used to be. The wide spread use of glass in the modern home and the blending of indoor-outdoor living make the garden and the grounds far more important to today's family than they were a generation ago.

When you consider that an average lot comprises 5,000 to 6,000 square feet of space, and the average house occupies only about a fifth of that area—and sometimes less, especially when the lot is larger—you can see what you can gain by planning the other four-fifths to provide as much living area as possible.

Controlling The View

Architects have found that the best way to control a view on a small lot is to place the outlook from the living room on the rear of the house, instead of toward the street. This makes it possible to use fences, hedges and suitable plantings to create whatever view is desired.

Making Dutch Door May Be Easy Project

A Dutch door has many advantages as well as time-tested popularity. With top and bottom sections swinging independently, the upper part of the door can stand open while the lower section is locked. This can be a safeguard for children and pets and makes the door practicable indoors as well as for entrance use.

A Dutch door can fill a real purpose between a kitchen and dining area, or as a door to a child's room.

Almost any stock pine paneled door, new or old, can be made into a Dutch door, but it must be of the design with a thick section crosswise through the middle. Here's how you can do it:

1. Decide on a cutting line through the middle rail — the thick section. If possible, locate this line slightly above the exact middle of the door.
2. Attach two hinges above the selected cutting line and two below it. If the door has been in use before, the top and bottom hinges may be left in place, providing you can find two new hinges that exactly match the old ones. If matching hinges can't be obtained, four brand-new hinges will give a better looking job and a better hanging door.
3. Saw the door apart along the chosen line.
4. Plan about 1/16-inch from the bottom of the top section for clearance. If the door is to be used as an exterior door, slightly more planing may be necessary to accommodate weatherstripping.
5. Sand the edges smooth and round all corners slightly.
6. Hang the sections of the door carefully for free swinging.
7. Install a sliding bolt vertically near the outside edge of the top section, just above the lower edge. Attach the bolt receptacle at a corresponding point on the bottom section. When this bolt is engaged, the entire door will swing as one unit.

Detergent Is Best For Cleaning Tile

Soap is not recommended for cleaning tile work in a bathroom. In hard water areas, the combination of the soap and water can form an insoluble film on the tile work. A water-softening detergent in warm water is more successful.

Joints between tiles can be kept clean by scrubbing with a fiber brush. Some tile men recommend the use of lemon oil to prevent mildew and keep tile work sparkling.

Check Your Electric Wiring If You Use Appliances

Portable electric heaters are becoming so popular in supplementing heat for extra rooms that overloads are being placed on many house circuits.

The current consumption of portable electric heaters ranges from 250 watts for a single heat lamp, to 1,650 watts for larger room heating units.

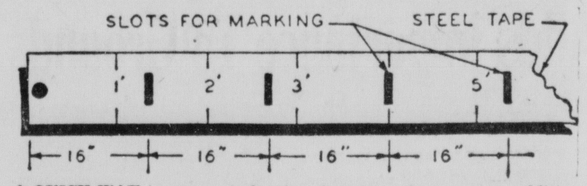
If a large capacity electric heater is plugged into a single 15-ampere circuit, common in most homes, no other appliance can be connected without blowing a fuse or tripping a circuit breaker.

According to one of the largest wire manufacturers, Kennecott Copper Corp., about 34 million homes have the minimum 15-ampere circuits. Wiring authorities consider this inadequate to handle many of the new electric appliances now on the market. They recommend that such houses be rewired with 20-ampere circuits, allowing up to 2,400 watts per circuit.

Colors For Masonry

An easy way to color masonry walls is to use dry powder cement-base paints. These usually comprise Portland cement, lime and mineral pigment. When mixed with water and applied to a dampened surface, they create a finish that is similar to concrete or mortar.

Time-Saving Tip For Framing Job



A QUICK WAY to space studs when framing a house or an addition is to cut slots in a steel measuring tape for each 16 inches. This is the standard spacing for such structural members—16 inches on their centers. You can make a pencil mark through each slot while the tape rests on the work. This is a tip from the idea pool of the American Builder, trade publication of home builders.

Indoor-Outdoor Scenes Blend To Banish Basement Gloom

Larger Windows and sunlighted terrace gardens are making modern basements livable. Here are two pictures of a novel idea of extending a picture window down to the basement window level, with an indoor window well extending up into the living room. It was used in a famous show house.

THE BASEMENT terrace garden, where the trees are planted, provides a year-round cascade of greenery in cheerful contrast to the visual drabness of downstairs areas. This design was worked out by Rudolph A. Matern, architect.

Dripping Faucets

A dripping faucet soon can waste more water than a new faucet costs. If a new washer fails to stop the leak, grind the valve seat down with the special tool used for this purpose.

Sanding Is Important

Indoor-Outdoor Scenes Blend To Banish Basement Gloom

Larger Windows and sunlighted terrace gardens are making modern basements livable. Here are two pictures of a novel idea of extending a picture window down to the basement window level, with an indoor window well extending up into the living room. It was used in a famous show house.

THE BASEMENT terrace garden, where the trees are planted, provides a year-round cascade of greenery in cheerful contrast to the visual drabness of downstairs areas. This design was worked out by Rudolph A. Matern, architect.

Dripping Faucets

A dripping faucet soon can waste more water than a new faucet costs. If a new washer fails to stop the leak, grind the valve seat down with the special tool used for this purpose.

Sanding Is Important

Interior Rooms Add Livability To Modern Residence

Newest Design Stresses What Can Be Done

A house plan that is both compact and contemporary, without sacrificing comfort, beauty or convenience, can be called modern.

To win that distinction, a house does not have to be freakish or look like a public lobby. But it does have to be easy to live in. No house can be considered modern if it is not completely livable.

Shown here is a house designed to illustrate a maximum of the latest ideas in architectural planning. Interior bathrooms, skylights, a paved entrance foyer that carries the red quarry tile or varicolored slate flags of the patio indoors, a broad window wall facing the rear garden and opportunities for the use of glass block partitions are among features of this plan.

Room arrangement has the advantage of private sleeping, living and work areas, yet all rooms are convenient to one another to afford a smooth flow of indoor traffic. The paved entrance foyer has a guest closet and provides access to either sleeping, living or work areas. There is a sliding door between this entry and the bedroom hall. This is a distinct advantage for those who like to get their sleep while young people enjoy their party.

Living Room Features

A large brick fireplace in the living room provides for a hearth which can carry the foyer tile or flag pavement into that room. In addition to the wall of windows, there is a door from the living room to the patio. Open trellis work over the patio can be covered with corrugated plastic panels of fiber glass for protection against the rain.

Since the living room has switched from the busy steet front to the quiet garden rear of the house, the kitchen in turn takes its place in front to give the housewife more convenient access to the front door. This kitchen has a built-in range and oven and a window over the sink. There is a broom closet and plenty of counter and cabinet space. A separate breakfast nook or dinette is made private from the kitchen by sliding doors.

A feature of this area is a floating cabinet between breakfast nook and living area. This sets about 6 inches above the floor and is attached to the sidewalls.

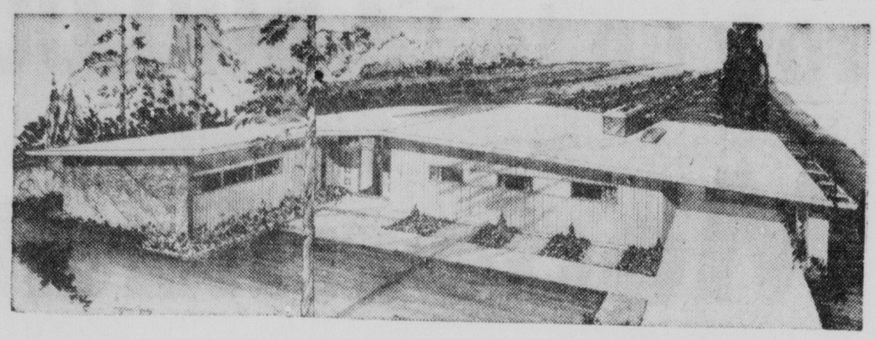
No Basement Needed

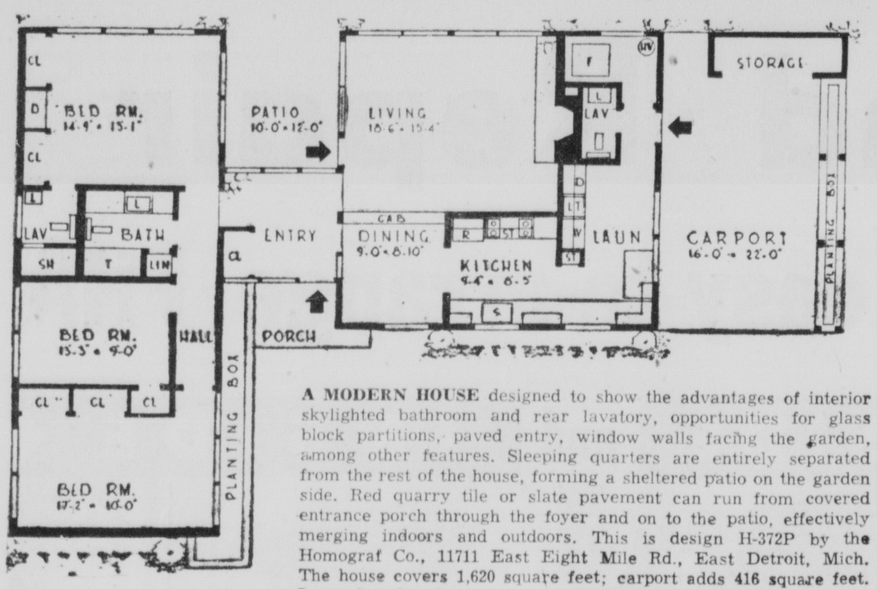
An ample laundry-utility area eliminates need for a basement. It provides space for a food freezer, ironer, washer, dryer, with lots of window area. Heating facilities are tucked away to the rear of the laundry.

A convenient lavatory is adjacent to the laundry and side door from carport. This is an advantage for families with children.

This lavatory, like the main bathroom, is an interior room with a skylight and mechanical ventilation. The arrangement of both the lavoratory and the main bathroom illustrate some of the advantages offered by modern interior rooms when it comes to planning the remainder of a house.

A small bathroom with a stall shower, adjoining the master bedroom, still is located on the exterior wall, but the Homograf designers of this house, suggest that an outer wall of glass block and a ventilating fan could increase the efficiency of the room over inclusion of a window.





A MODERN HOUSE designed to show the advantages of interior skylighted bathroom and rear lavatory, opportunities for glass block partitions, paved entry, window walls facing the garden, among other features. Sleeping quarters are entirely separated from the rest of the house, forming a sheltered patio on the garden side. Red quarry tile or slate pavement can run from covered entrance porch through the foyer and on to the patio, effectively merging indoors and outdoors. This is design H-372P by the Homograf Co., 11711 East Eight Mile Rd., East Detroit, Mich. The house covers 1,620 square feet; carport adds 416 square feet. Large laundry, heater space and storage shed at end of carport eliminate need for a basement. Low pitched roof is nearly flat.

Stationary Tub Goes Glamorous Losing Weight

The stationary laundry tub has taken on glamour. Soap-stone, porcelain and concrete have given way to fiber glass-reinforced plastic in green, blue, yellow or white. The weight of the tub has been reduced by 90 per cent—so light that a woman can lift it. The prosaic angle-iron stand has been replaced by a graceful wrought iron fixture. The tubs are made of the same material now being used for lightweight bathtubs, sports car bodies and military body armor.

LIGHTWEIGHT and graceful, this tub is made of plastic and fiber glass.

Over-Scouring Bath Fixtures Spoils Enamel

Don't scour your plumbing fixtures if you want them to keep their new and lustrous appearance.

This is the advice of experts, who point out that all household cleansers are mildly abrasive. If used in moderation with plenty of water, most cleansers are harmless. But hard scouring, with too much cleanser and not enough water, will scratch the finish of fixtures.

The enamel of a bathtub also can be scratched if you stand in the tub with your shoes on. Shoe soles carry gritty particles. Dropping tools, or scraping fixtures, with kitchen utensils and scrub pails also will make the finish more susceptible to stains.

Amateur photographers are warned not to use a bathroom for a darkroom. Plumbing fixtures can become stained from even a brief contact of film developer.

Stains also can be caused by raw vegetables or fruits allowed to stand in a sink for long periods. Other acid stains have been caused by storing soiled diapers in a bathtub or lavatory.

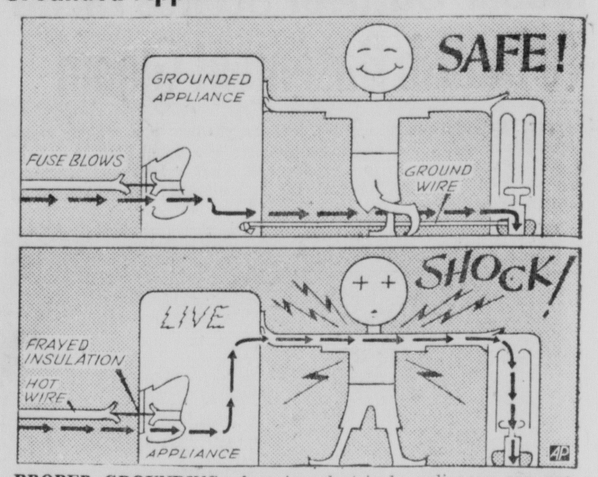
Right And Wrong Places For Trees

Choosing the right location for a tree can be as important as selecting the right tree.

A tree that sheds its leaves for winter can be used in places where summer shade is wanted without sacrificing winter warmth—around the south and west sides of house. Evergreens, on the other hand can be used for dense windbreaks or screens for privacy.

The litter created by some trees should be considered. Acorns, catalpa pods, useless fruit from certain flowering trees, are problems when lawn care is involved.

Grounded Appliances Guard You From Shock



PROPER GROUNDING of major electrical appliances can prevent many annoying and dangerous shocks and even save lives. When an appliance, such as a washing machine, dryer or range, is not grounded, it is possible for the housing to become charged because of a frayed wire or other defect.

Insulation Tile Can Be Attractive

Insulation board tile offers the home handyman an easy way to create an attractive ceiling in basement or attic and at the same time block much of the sound and heat loss that otherwise would be transmitted.

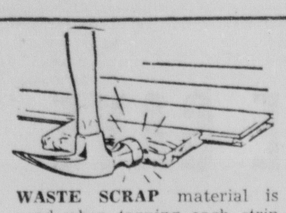
Planning the job properly is the only phase that is not so easy. The actual application of the material, for anyone handy with hammer and saw, is more simple than the planning.

So let's face it: First, get a few sheets of paper, a pencil and a tape measure. Find the length and width of the ceiling and make a drawing of this area to scale.

Now draw a line through the center of this rectangle vertically, and another line through the center horizontally. This is necessary because application of ceiling tile begins at the center of a room. This permits partial tiles along the edges of the finished ceiling to be of a uniform width.

Decide on the size of tile you plan to use—they come in 12 by 12 inches, 12 by 16 inches and other dimensions. Show on your scale drawing where each piece will appear. You can do this by starting the first course lengthwise with the room along the horizontal center line, with one end of the first tile flush against the vertical center line.

Unless the ceiling has been finished before, you'll need furring strips. These should be 1 by 3-inch strips of boards, nailed wall to wall across the ceiling at right angles to exposed rafters or joists. The furring strips must be spaced so that one side of each tile can be nailed to them. So if you're using 12 by 12-inch tile, your 1 b 3 furring strips should be 9 inches apart.



WASTE SCRAP material is used when tapping each strip of hardwood flooring into place. The tongue and groove of scrap and work are fitted together. This prevents marring the wood with the hammer. The same procedure is used for fitting pine paneling or other tongue and groove stock.

To play it safe, show on your drawing exactly where the furring strips will go. After your sketch is complete, take it to your building supply dealer. He will be able to make any corrections needed and can tell you exactly how many pieces of tile and furring strips you need.

With your material on hand, you're ready for a hammer, saw and nails. It's possible to use the automatic stapling hammer for faster application. Or you can apply the tile with adhesive. But it's wise to discuss these methods with the dealer.

Fastening the tile starts with the first course at the center of the room, the same as you started your working sketch. One side of the first tile is placed flush with the horizontal center line and one end is flush with the vertical line. The tongue on the tile, to be fitted into a groove in the next tile, should always be the leading or exposed edge.

On almost every ceiling tile job, the tile that goes up against the wall must be trimmed to fit. The width of these border units should be as nearly equal as possible on opposite sides of the room. This is why a careful drawing and good planning are necessary to get the job done properly.

Do-It-Yourself Craze Makes No Headway With Mystified Mexicans

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico has reacted to the do-it-yourself hobby with an indifferent "Why?"

Labor is so cheap that Mexicans who can afford a hobby prefer one with more prestige and glamour.

"We don't even stock the do-it-yourself gadgets," says Jack Ruddy of Salinas y Rocha, Mexico's largest department store chain. "The hobby just doesn't click down here."

For centuries the lower classes out of pure necessity have been 'doing-it-themselves" — building adobe homes, making their own simple furniture, even weaving cloth for their clothes and molding pottery for kitchen needs. They still do.

The middle class, which has made do-it-yourself, a six-billion-dollar-a-year business in the United States, is comparatively small in Mexico.

And Mexico's middle class shuns the hobby for several reasons. For one thing, many of this group have just pulled themselves out of the lower bracket, and doing manual labor could mean loss of face.

A major reason is that the salary of the average white collar worker or government employe is too small to finance the necessary gadgets, which would cost more here because of high import duties.

Take a man making 600 pesos ($48) a month—not an unusual income. To get a $200 lathe he would have to cough up 2,500 pesos. A $100 drill press would be 1,250 pesos. Even a simple utility drill means 500 pesos, almost a month's pay.

That leaves the upper class as potential do-it-yourselvers, and even in the United States this group produces few such hobbyists.

Those of the Mexican upper class could easily afford the estimated $2,000 needed to provide the outfit a complete hobbyist needs. But other hobbies appeal to them more. And a rich man who prefers to sit home and make a table to playing polo or even golf is considered eccentric.

Put your self in the place of a middle class Mexican making say, as much as 2,000 pesos ($160) a month:

He has a small home in the suburbs which he is paying for on the installment plan. The installments take up a sizeable chunk of his pay. But he's a proud homeowner and wants an attractive place.

He wants it to look nice to outsiders, so that means a lawn and flowers. Should he pay about 1,875 pesos for a power mower when he can hire a man to cut his lawn for maybe 10 pesos every two weeks?

Or say he wants a painted shelf in his closet, covered with fringed paper. Merely assembling the necessary material is complicated. He'd have to go to one store for paint, another for lumber, a third for supports, a fourth for paper. It's far easier—and cheaper—to pay a carpenter about 20 pesos a day to do the footwork as well as the woodwork, particularly as the tolls needed would run into hundreds of pesos.

Well, you say, how about pride of accomplishment?

A Mexican is artistic rather than utilitarian. He would much rather point to a painting of a nude over the mantlepiece and say "I did that" than boast of a handmade fence around the yard.

Plastic Drawers For Cabinets

Molded phenolic plastic drawers, now on the market, are a boon to the home handyman tackling a cabinet-making project.

These smooth, non-warping drawers are available in two standard sizes: 17⅛ inches wide by 14¾ inches long and 4¾ inches high with 3½ inches of inside depth; also 16¾ inches wide by 14½ inches long by the same height and inside depth. Other sizes are scheduled.

Since drawer making is one of the most complicated and time consuming tasks for the handyman, these prefabricated units ranging around $5 in cost, offer welcome short cuts.

Insulation Tile Can Be Attractive

Insulation board tile offers the home handyman an easy way to create an attractive ceiling in basement or attic and at the same time block much of the sound and heat loss that otherwise would be transmitted.

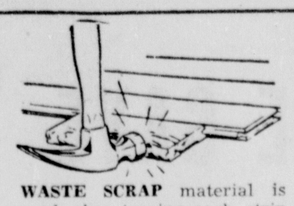
Planning the job properly is the only phase that is not so easy. The actual application of the material, for anyone handy with hammer and saw, is more simple than the planning.

So let's face it: First, get a few sheets of paper, a pencil and a tape measure. Find the length and width of the ceiling and make a drawing of this area to scale.

Now draw a line through the center of this rectangle vertically, and another line through the center horizontally. This is necessary because application of ceiling tile begins at the center of a room. This permits partial tiles along the edges of the finished ceiling to be of a uniform width.

Decide on the size of tile you plan to use—they come in 12 by 12 inches, 12 by 16 inches and other dimensions. Show on your scale drawing where each piece will appear. You can do this by starting the first course lengthwise with the room along the horizontal center line, with one end of the first tile flush against the vertical center line.

Unless the ceiling has been finished before, you'll need furring strips. These should be 1 by 3-inch strips of boards, nailed wall to wall across the ceiling at right angles to exposed rafters or joists. The furring strips must be spaced so that one side of each tile can be nailed to them. So if you're using 12 by 12-inch tile, your 1 by 3 furring strips should be 9 inches apart.



WASTE SCRAP material is used when tapping each strip of hardwood flooring into place. The tongue and groove of scrap and work are fitted together. This prevents marring the wood with the hammer. The same procedure is used for fitting pine paneling or other tongue and groove stock.

To play it safe, show on your drawing exactly where the furring strips will go. After your sketch is complete, take it to your building supply dealer. He will be able to make any corrections needed and can tell you exactly how many pieces of tile and furring strips you need.

With your material on hand, you're ready for a hammer, saw and nails. It's possible to use the automatic stapling hammer for faster application. Or you can apply the tile with adhesive. But it's wise to discuss these methods with the dealer.

Fastening the tile starts with the first course at the center of the room, the same as you started your working sketch. One side of the first tile is placed flush with the horizontal center line and one end is flush with the vertical line. The tongue on the tile, to be fitted into a groove in the next tile, should always be the leading or exposed edge.

On almost every ceiling tile job, the tile that goes up against the wall must be trimmed to fit. The width of these border units should be as nearly equal as possible on opposite sides of the room. This is why a careful drawing and good planning are necessary to get the job done properly.

Do-It-Yourself Craze Makes No Headway With Mystified Mexicans

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico has reacted to the do-it-yourself hobby with an indifferent "Why?"

Labor is so cheap that Mexicans who can afford a hobby prefer one with more prestige and glamour.

"We don't even stock the do-it-yourself gadgets," says Jack Ruddy of Salinas y Rocha, Mexico's largest department store chain. "The hobby just doesn't click down here."

For centuries the lower classes out of pure necessity have been 'doing-it-themselves" — building adobe homes, making their own simple furniture, even weaving cloth for their clothes and molding pottery for kitchen needs. They still do.

The middle class, which has made do-it-yourself, a six-billion-dollar-a-year business in the United States, is comparatively small in Mexico.

And Mexico's middle class shuns the hobby for several reasons. For one thing, many of this group have just pulled themselves out of the lower bracket, and doing manual labor could mean loss of face.

A major reason is that the salary of the average white collar worker or government employe is too small to finance the necessary gadgets, which would cost more here because of high import duties.

Take a man making 600 pesos ($48) a month—not an unusual income. To get a $200 lathe he would have to cough up 2,500 pesos. A $100 drill press would be 1,250 pesos. Even a simple utility drill means 500 pesos, almost a month's pay.

That leaves the upper class as potential do-it-yourselvers, and even in the United States this group produces few such hobbyists.

Those of the Mexican upper class could easily afford the estimated $2,000 needed to provide the outfit a complete hobbyist needs. But other hobbies appeal to them more. And a rich man who prefers to sit home and make a table to playing polo or even golf is considered eccentric.

Put your self in the place of a middle class Mexican making say, as much as 2,000 pesos ($160) a month:

He has a small home in the suburbs which he is paying for on the installment plan. The installments take up a sizeable chunk of his pay. But he's a proud homeowner and wants an attractive place.

Kitchen Sink May Waste Desirable Window Space

WORK TABLE wins window space from the kitchen sink.

By ROBERT A. WANDS

Must the kitchen sink be placed at the window, or is that desirable window space being wasted in the modern kitchen?

Does the housewife of today have to stand while working in the kitchen, or can she work while comfortably seated at a counter?

Those questions come up when we decided to modernize our kitchen.

Kitchens seem to be designed by men who must think that today's housewife spends all her time at the kitchen sink. This has resulted in placing the sink beneath the window.

We decided the kitchen sink need not occupy the window space. We placed a counter several inches lower than the standard 36-inch height, with clear space beneath, at the window. This counter, at which the housewife can be seated, is generally used for food preparation. Located between the refrigerator and the stove, it seems to be used more than any other counter space.

The counter is constructed of ¾-inch plywood, covered with plastic laminate to match the other countertops and edged with stainless steel. This top is fastened to a framework of 1 by 3-inch pine.

The framework is screwed to the window frame and to the adjoining counter at the left. The opposite corner is supported by one chromium plated leg of 1-inch pipe. The pipe is threaded to fit into a flange on the underside of the counter and into a steel foot fastened to the floor. A rubber crutch tip might have been used in place of the foot.

The length of the leg should be measured carefully, but slight inaccuracy can be compensated by adjusting the leg in the threaded flange.

Bathroom Color Choice Hinges On Basic Rules

A few basic rules for selecting colors in bathroom tilework and fixtures have been worked out by experience.

Color experts say that if a bathroom is small, as most of them are, the wisest course is to use the same color for both the walls and the floor. If you have two or more tile colors, you will automatically limit your choice of colors for accessories, since they will have to go with all the tile shades.

With a single tile color, on the other hand, you can use a number of different shades for accessories and still have a satisfactory room. The color scheme can be changed completely from time to time by using towels, shower curtains and bath mats in a different shade. Such a change of accessories will do as much as an ordinary redecorating job to freshen up the room.

How To Cut Shellac

Shellac is usually sold in 4 or 5-pound "cut" or strength. To thin for proper use, add an equal amount of denatured alcohol—not anti-freeze.

Machinist Develops New Stepladder

By WM. A. SWARTWORTH

Have you ever wondered why somebody doesn't do something about the straight edges on stepladder steps which play havoc with your shinbones every time you do a dab of painting or some similar chore?

Well, somebody has — at last. After much thought and a little work, John L. McGlothen, 65-year-old retired Pittsburgh, Pa., machinist, came up with a concave—or inwardly offset—tread that permits you to work in a sort of cradle.

Demonstrating his improved ladder recently, McGlothen, a big man, moved about—facing backward and forward—with an agility just about impossible on a conventional ladder.

"When using a straight-tread ladder," he explained, "a man must stand in a twisted, awkward and off-balance position. He cannot brace himself.

"With this ladder he has freedom of toe movements and can stand at ease, facing in any direction, with legs firmly secure in the recess of the tread."

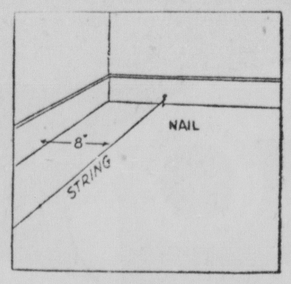
McGlothen has patents on both the tread and strut support design. But he has one big problem. No one has stepped forward with an offer to manufacture the new ladder.

Keeping New Doors From Warping

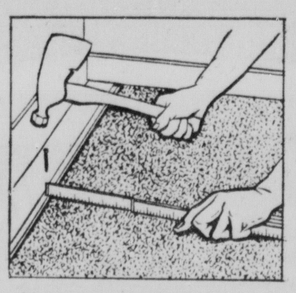
Proper care is required to keep new doors from warping. Under the standard guaranty of the National Woodwork Manufacturs' Assn., paneled doors of ponderosa pine are warranted against a warp or twist of more than ¼-inch upon delivery.

To maintain that standard, this treatment is recommended: (1) Store doors only in a dry room — never in a new building where plaster is wet. (2) Apply a primer coat immediately after delivery. (3) Never cut a lock mortise deeper than within one inch from the inside edge of a door stile. (4) Give the top and bottom edges of a door at least two coats of paint or varnish immediately after the door has been fitted.

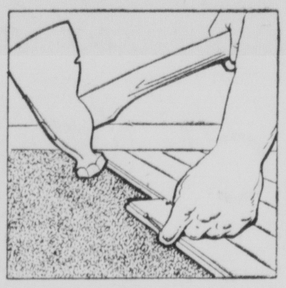
How To Lay Quality Floor



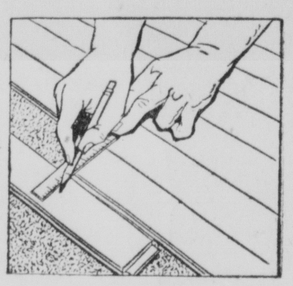
FIRST SWEEP a subfloor clean and cover it with 15-lb. asphalt saturated felt. Stretch a line between nails placed 8 inches out from a sidewall. This will be a guide for the first course. In many rooms the walls are not perfectly true.



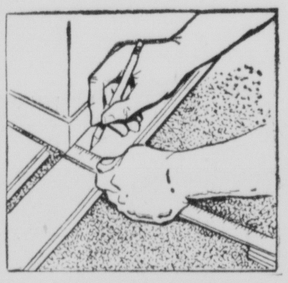
A LONG PIECE of flooring is placed with groove edge facing the sidewall and groove end toward the endwall. Space to be hidden by shoemold is left for expansion. This strip is face nailed every 10 inches. Measure from the string, then toe nail it.



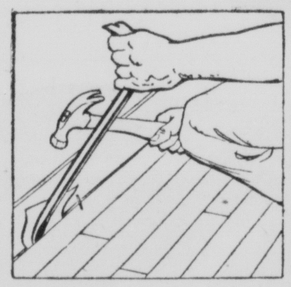
FIT THE GROOVE edge of each strip over the tongue of preceding strip. Toe nail at 10-inch intervals at an angle of 50 degrees where tongue leaves the shoulder. Countersink all toe nailing. Screwtype nails are preferred for holding power.



AVOID GROUPING joints closer than 6 inches apart. Select several varying lengths before nailing. To cut a piece to finish a course, reverse the strip when measuring. Always cut off the tongue end. Groove end must be retained for end joining.



TO FIT flooring around a door frame, place it flush with frame as shown here. Measure the gap and scribe carefully. Here the gap was 1 inch. Mark off the same distance on the strip to be fitted around the frame and saw out along the mark.



SPACE will not permit toe nailing the last two courses. So the next to the last course is merely fitted without nailing and a final strip is face nailed. It is pulled up snug with a crowbar. Baseboard or wall is protected with cardboard.

Machinist Develops New Stepladder

By WM. A. SWARTWORTH

Have you ever wondered why somebody doesn't do something about the straight edges on step-ladder steps which play havoc with your shinbones every time you do a dab of painting or some similar chore?

Well, somebody has — at last.

After much thought and a little work, John L. McGlothen, 65-year-old retired Pittsburgh, Pa., machinist, came up with a concave—or inwardly offset—tread that permits you to work in a sort of cradle.

Demonstrating his improved ladder recently, McGlothen, a big man, moved about—facing backward and forward—with an agility just about impossible on a conventional ladder.

"When using a straight-tread ladder," he explained, "a man must stand in a twisted, awkward and off-balance position. He cannot brace himself.

"With this ladder he has freedom of toe movements and can stand at ease, facing in any direction, with legs firmly secure in the recess of the tread."

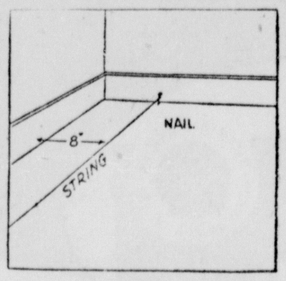
McGlothen has patents on both the tread and strut support design. But he has one big problem. No one has stepped forward with an offer to manufacture the new ladder.

Keeping New Doors From Warping

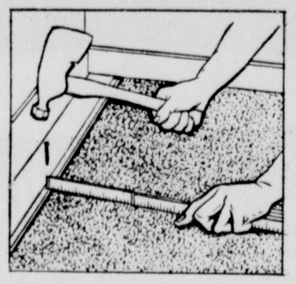
Proper care is required to keep new doors from warping. Under the standard guaranty of the National Woodwork Manufacturs' Assn., paneled doors of ponderosa pine are warranted against a warp or twist of more than ¼-inch upon delivery.

To maintain that standard, this treatment is recommended: (1) Store doors only in a dry room — never in a new building where plaster is wet. (2) Apply a primer coat immediately after delivery. (3) Never cut a lock mortise deeper than within one inch from the inside edge of a door stile. (4) Give the top and bottom edges of a door at least two coats of paint or varnish immediately after the door has been fitted.

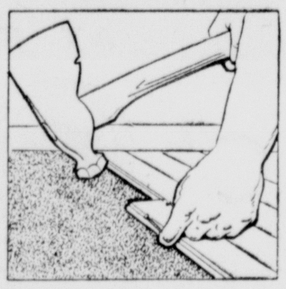
How To Lay Quality Floor



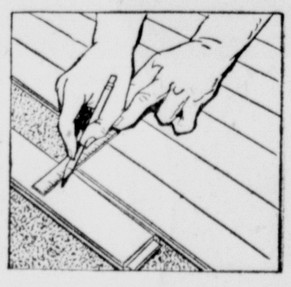
FIRST SWEEP a subfloor clean and cover it with 15-lb. asphalt saturated felt. Stretch a line between nails placed 8 inches out from a sidewall. This will be a guide for the first course. In many rooms the walls are not perfectly true.



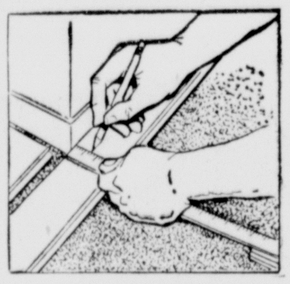
A LONG PIECE of flooring is placed with groove edge facing the sidewall and groove end toward the endwall. Space to be hidden by shoemold is left for expansion. This strip is face nailed every 10 inches. Measure from the string, then toe nail it.



FIT THE GROOVE edge of each strip over the tongue of preceding strip. Toe nail at 10-inch intervals at an angle of 50 degrees where tongue leaves the shoulder. Countersink all toe nailing. Screwtype nails are preferred for holding power.



AVOID GROUPING joints closer than 6 inches apart. Select several varying lengths before nailing. To cut a piece to finish a course, reverse the strip when measuring. Always cut off the tongue end. Groove end must be retained for end joining.



TO FIT flooring around a door frame, place it flush with frame as shown here. Measure the gap and scribe carefully. Here the gap was 1 inch. Mark off the same distance on the strip to be fitted around the frame and saw out along the mark.

SPACE will not permit toe nailing the last two courses. So the next to the last course is merely fitted without nailing and a final strip is face nailed. It is pulled up snug with a crowbar. Baseboard or wall is protected with cardboard.

Carelessness By Painter May Destroy Most Attractive House In Neighborhood

When the most attractive house on the block burned to the ground, residents in trim little neighboring homes weren't surprised. They'd been expecting it.

Years ago Jonesey had turned his basement into a workshop, filled it with stores of paint and a clutter of old furniture and junk picked up at auction sales.

Jonesey's basement was a mess—a combined factory, chemical laboratory, storage warehouse and recreation room. He was careless, too, in handling paints and solvents, even failing to provide good ventilation. And there wasn't an ash tray to be found.

No wonder his house burned down.

The likes of that guy Jonesey, says the National Board of Fire Underwriters, cause about 90 per cent of all fires.

What is the hazard? The oils, turpentine, mineral spirits and other common ingredients in paints. Lacquers contain acetone and amyl acetate (banana oil) and occasionally some benzine (petroleum naphtha). Paint removers usually contain some benzol. Even kerosene and turpentine gives off inflammable vapors when heated.

Rags containing paint or linseed oil or almost any vegetable or fish oil are subject to spontaneous heating under certain conditions. You're wise if you keep these in covered metal cans, or destroy them.

Industry Mobilizes To Make It Easier To Keep Home Up To Date

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER

Keeping your home up to date is becoming easier every year. New materials, new tools, new methods, more liberal financing and a greater mobilization of industry to encourage home modernization are among factors now helping every householder and home handyman.

The Census Bureau has discovered that the home fix-up market is billions of dollars bigger than previously estimated. A sample survey showed the census takers that within five months home owners had spent three billion dollars on repairs, improvements, alterations and additions.

"A rough estimate for the year," observed a leading economist, "probably would be in the neighborhood of eight billion dollars. The census figures apply only to owner-occupied residential buildings. Expenditures on tenant-occupied buildings would probably raise it 50 per cent.

Commenting on the census results, an authoritative trade publications said: "Even bigger news was that this provided the first real statistical basis supporting the growing belief that the home repair business is as big—or bigger than—the new housing industry."

The first evidence of how this knowledge is helping the individual home owner came from the lumber dealers. Launching a nationwide campaign to drive out what they call "suede shoe" fly-by-nighters and "dynamiters," the lumbermen drew up plans to go after modernization business.

Their plan is to provide a customer with architectural service, financing guidance, all materials needed and to do all the work for him—all in one package.

"The market potential is so great," says H. R. Northup of the National Retail Lumber Dealers Association, "that a lumber dealer need not worry about cutting out his contractors: the more modernization business he gets, the more he creates. The fix-up market is catching."

Many home improvements will now be easier to pay for. Under the Housing Act of 1954, various projects of this type can be financed with long-term mortgage credit under open-end mortgages. This is an arrangement whereby the home owner can reborrow money he has paid back on a mortgage, extending payments over the remaining term of the mortgage. Such payments are much smaller than under short term loans.

"Title I loans (short term financing) cannot do the job on big modernization because repayments are too stiff," says a Kansas modernizer. "But unfortunately, the mortgage lenders I know won't permit open-end loans because they do not know about them or haven't yet had time to catch up with the new legislation."

However, with nearly 50 old houses existing for every new house built each year, it may not take long for all branches of industry and commerce to realize that people who lack the ready cash for major home improvements should be given assistance in morrowing it.

The do-it-yourself fans finds it comparatively simple to buy and apply wallpaper, paint, floor coverings, wood panels, some masonry and details of equipment. But few have the time, skill or funds for rebuilding or adding a wing.

That is where constructive help is needed.

Plenty Of Window Space Needed In Home Planning

How much window space would you allow for each room in planning or modernizing a home?

Most building codes accept not less than 10 per cent of the area of a room as the area for windows. But research shows that glass areas should be more than double that amount for proper lighting.

Because windows can affect your comfort both physically and psychologically, the University of Illinois Small Homes Council has worked out a set of new rules to be applied to windows in an ideal house.

"Provide glass areas in excess of 20 per cent of the floor area of each room." That is the first rule. And the experts suggest that much more is desirable, especially for cloudy days.

South Is Brightest

"Place the principal window areas toward the south except in warm climates where a northern orientation will limit heat from the sun." This rule is based on the fact that the south sky is the brightest. Direct sunlight can also be controlled easier on the south than on the east and west.

"Windows in more than one wall of a room give more effective daylighting than windows in just one wall." Also one large window provides a better distribution of light than the same amount of space devoted to separate windows with dark areas between them.

Extending window heights as close to the ceiling as possible lengthens the depth of light penetration into a room.

Watch Your Curtains

Draperies, curtains and other window hangings should be placed above the head of a window and to the sides of the frame to free the entire glass area for light. "Dark, heavy draperies hung over the sides and top of a window can reduce the available daylight by 75 per cent," the experts found. "The practice of pulling window shades one-fourth or one-half way down results in loss of light in the rear of the room where it is needed the most."

When it comes to ventilation, the research showed that more than 10 per cent of the floor area of a room should be matched with windows that open.

"Screen only those parts of the window that open for ventilation," the council advises. "Full screens can absorb as much as 50 per cent of available daylight. Half-screens take up only 15 per cent."

WROUGHT IRON with glass and a straw basket resembling an inverted coolie hat in its base makes up this cocktail table by Italian designer Maurizio Tempestini. It is guaranteed against rust for out-of-door use and is available in lemon, aqua, flamingo, silver pink, white, bronze and peach. It is 31 inches in diameter.

For Sliding Doors

A new laminate is now available at lumber yards. It is a panelply of pressed wood in 4 by 8-foot sheets ½ and ¾-inch thick. Its advantages are warp-resistance and screw-holding power.

Now You Can Spray Paint Without Gun

A shortcut for a small paint job is offered by the new enamels in aerosol cans for spray painting. These cans, charged with freon gas, spray any object with paint as effectively as expensive equipment with a motor driven compressor.

Of course, each can contains only a comparatively small amount of paint—6 to 12 ounces, depending on size. So it would take a lot of cans to spray paint a house. But for refinishing a radiator, touching up chipped enamel on a refrigerator or kitchen cabinet, or giving any small piece of furniture a smooth finish like an automobile body, aerosol cans of spray paint are big time savers.

There is no cleaning of brushes or rollers when all you do is to press a button on top of a can and let the paint spray. You can get 13 colors, including gold and aluminum, plus a clear colorless lacquer. All of these dry within a few minutes. They can be used on wood, metal, leather, or paper.

Various decorative possibilities have been opened up by this invention.

"Do-It-Yourself" Helps You Modernize

Keeping your home up to date can be an enjoyable and satisfying project for your entire family. But you have to know where to start and when to stop.

New things to work with, new ways of speeding jobs for spare-time workers and a new spirit of cooperation among merchants, brought about by the do-it-yourself movement, are kind to your pocket book.

You can best decide where to start home modernization by deciding what home improvement your family needs the most. Even if that project should be a new kitchen, you can't solve it entirely merely by buying new equipment. You may want to install some new cabinets yourself, or build some shelves, or cover the floor, or redecorate the room.

Perhaps the family consensus will swing toward sprucing up the bathroom. You can even install colored clay tile yourself nowadays.

Solving Space Needs

But usually the greatest need is for more space or more living space to make your family life more pleasant. Homes can be enlarged in various ways.

A house with an attic is the easiest to enlarge. A dry basement or a cellar that can be made dry, is the second best candidate. An attached garage often can be converted quickly into an extra room, especially since carports have proved to be adequate for modern automobiles.

In all of those instances, you have four walls and a roof to start with.

Your next most practicable choices are to enclose a breezeway or a porch for use as an extra room. Here you usually have two walls and a roof. A minimum of framing and windows are required. But they call for professional help.

Most expensive to build is a wing on your house, because this involves a new foundation, a new roof, three new walls and partial destruction of the old wall. This is a project full of pitfalls for amateurs.

Think It Through

But even a new wing for an extra bedroom doesn't cost as much as new house construction, because you don't have the heavy burden of bathroom, kitchen and utilities to figure on. Auxiliary heat can be provided with modern space heaters, electric radiant glass panels, or if your furnace capacity is great enough, an extension from the present plant.

New building materials greatly simplify home enlargement projects. Sheet forms of sheathing, easily installed insulation complete with vapor barriers, various types of interior wallboards, floor covering tiles, pre-pasted wallpapers, quick drying and odorless paints—each with instructions from their manufacturers — make it possible for almost any man and/or woman to tackle such jobs.

Hardwood plywoods, veneered in rare woods, make beautiful paneling easy and economical. Imitation paneling is reproduced photographically on wallpapers and predecorated wallboard. New plastic laminates and fabrics are easy to apply.

But when it comes to structural work, such as enclosing a breezeway or porch, or building a wing, it is wise to call a halt to do-it-yourself plans. Building codes can be involved as well as the structural safety of your house.

It Pays To Be Smart

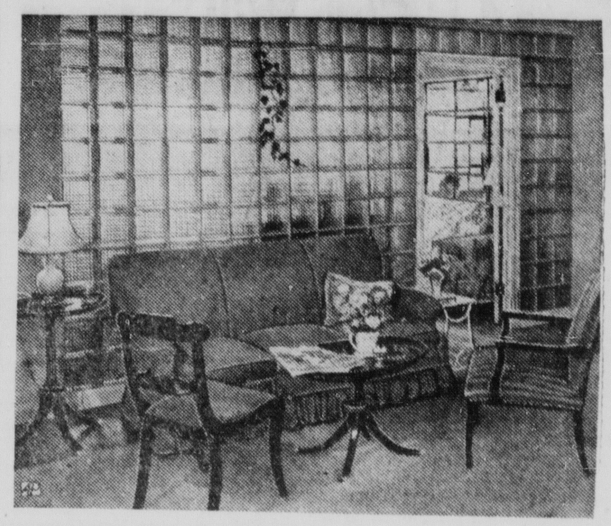
The smart do-it-yourself fan knows when a job calls for a professional. It's the difference between administering aspirin and leaving an appendectomy to a surgeon. Enlarging a window, installing a dormer, making changes in plumbing or electrical work are among jobs the wise amateur avoids.

Within limitations, you can save yourself a lot of money and annoyance by making many improvements to your home. Contractors are strong for the do-it-yourself movement, because they can't afford to tackle little jobs and don't want to lose your good will by charging you for the full time required from office to job to fix a dripping faucet.

Every householder today is expected to know how to turn off the water supply and replace a worn washer at the kitchen sink—how to replace a fuse plug without calling an electrician. But many novices have learned the hard way that it often costs more to get a botched-up bulding job rectified than it would have cost to have it done by a professional in the first place.

Hard Wearing Finish

A good floor finish is one of the sealer types that penetrate and become part of the wood, so that it will only wear away as the wood itself wears.



GLASS BLOCK opens wide opportunities for modernizing a house. Light without view can be obtained with a wall of textured glass blocks. Various patterns are available as well as clear glass where a view is wanted. Where such a wall is not exposed to the weather or to moisture, no mortar is required. The blocks are fitted on wood strips and wedges, creating a firm, lasting panel. Partitions and panels built with this set-in-wood method can be dismantled and relocated, using the same materials. You can take these walls with you.

Water Softener Now Standard In Many Homes

Water softeners are becoming standard equipment in many modern homes. In hard water areas, these units have been found to pay for themselves in savings in soap and detergents.

The Water Conditioning Foundation reports that in a typical area where water is moderately hard, as much as 1½ pounds of soap may be destroyed for every 100 gallons of water used in bathing, laundering and house cleaning.

When soap is added to hard water, a certain amount of the soap is used up in taking the hardness out of the water. This is so much lost soap as far as washing effectiveness is concerned.

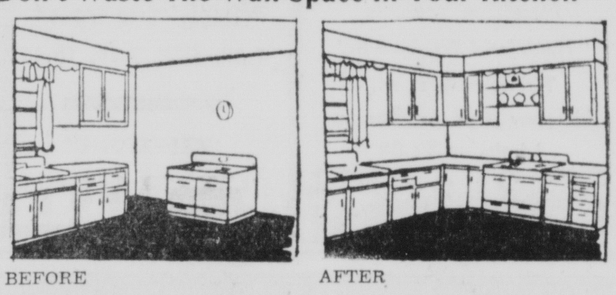
An objectionable by-product of soap in hard water is the familiar soap scum which shows up as a ring in the bathtub, a dull film on freshly washed silverware and glassware and a gray cast on laundered linen.

NEW cylindrical locks with the keyhole in the doorknob are bringing new designs in escutcheons. This Dallas star is one of the latest styles in quality hardware. It can be placed even in the center of a door.

Spray Painting Tip

A distorted spray from a paint guns is a sign of a dirty air cap. Take off the cap and wash it carefully in clean solvent. If the air holes need reaming, use a broom straw or a matchstick splinter. Never use a metal instrument.

Don't Waste The Wall Space In Your Kitchen



BEFORE AFTER

Short Cut To Modernization Of Home Interiors Offered By Venetian Blinds

A short cut in modernizing home interiors—once you have decided on your wallpaper and painting scheme — is to install venetian blinds. You can do a lot of decorating tricks with venetian blinds. By using a little ingenuity, you can employ blinds in ways that will save you real money.

These contrivances can make windows seem much larger than they actually are. They can give you the decorative appearance of a window where there is no window. They can cut down drafts in the winter and help with air cooling in the summer.

Here's how the indoor appearance of a window can be enlarged. Suppose your window is 3 feet wide. Hang a venetian blind 4 feet wide in front of it. Build a box valance 5 feet wide to accommodate the blind when it is raised. Hang your draperies from a rod inside that cornice so they will cover a foot or so on each side of the window.

The result is that you have a window 5 feet wide as far as interior appearances are concerned.

An Old Camouflage Trick

Architects have used the same kind of camouflage on the outside of windows for generations by employing shutters which people do not use. The same tactics indoors produce the effect of a wider window without cutting an expensive hole in a house.

Faking a window where there is none is just as easy. Suppose you have two small windows at the end of a room. They may be separated by a space that could have been used for a third window, if it wouldn't have made the exterior design look lopsided. You can treat that space as a third window and keep a venetian blind closed over it. Or you can treat the entire room end as a window wall, hanging a wide venetian blind across it with draperies down the corners.

As for stopping drafts, blinds act almost like storm windows. When closed they create a buffer space and diffuse whatever draft leaks in by acting as baffles.

In summer they insulate in another way. Tests have shown that when the slats of venetian blinds are tilted at 45-degree angles, they can reflect much heat while letting air circulate and add an insulating value varying from 20 to 35 per cent at the window.

Painting The Slats

A decorating advantage of venetian blinds is the possibility of painting the indoor sides of the slats any color to harmonize with a room scheme, while leaving the exterior sides a neutral shade to unify exterior appearances. A California manufacturer has been making metal venetian blinds for some time in 10 or more colors on the inside with an ivory finish for uniformity on the outside.

You can do the same thing with almost any type of venetian blinds. Remove the slats and place them inside-up on newspapers on the floor. New latex base paints will cover them neatly without brush marks. Or if you can get the exact shade you want in one of the new aerosol spray cans, you can spray paint them as neatly as a factory job.

As for suspension tape, you can get that now in virtually any contrasting or blending color you want. Or the ladies can dye it as easily as they tint their frilly frills.

Steel Wool Buff Keeps Floors Clean

The smoother the floor, the easier it is to clean. This applies to any type of flooring. Buffing with steel wool with an electric polisher is usually the best method. In many places power buffers can be rented, or professional floor polishers can be hired to come in about once a month. Buffing simplifies the care of hardwood floors as well as asphalt and rubber tile floors.

West Virginia Children To Get Polio Vaccine

Results Of Tests To Be Studied First

KEYSER—Tentative plans have been made for administering the Salk poliomyelitis vaccine to first and second grade school children in West Virginia.

The action was taken at a meeting, recently, of representatives of the State Department of Education, State Department of Health and the State Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Dr. N. H. Dyer, state director of health made the announcement.

Under the tentative plans, Dr. Dyer explained, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will provide vaccine for all first and second graders in public, private and parochial schools in the state and for children who participated in the 1954 Field Trials in Cabell, Kanawha, McDowell, Putnam and Wayne counties but did not receive the vaccine. Approximately 100,000 children will be eligible.

Operational management of the program of distribution and administration of the vaccine within the state will be the responsibility of the State Health Department. Local health departments, physicians, school officials and local National Foundation groups will be requested to assume program responsibility for planning and conducting inoculations at the county level.

The state health director emphasized that the plans will not be put into operation until favorable results have been announced at the completion of the evaluation of last year's field trials as well as approval and licensing of the vaccine by national authorities. The evaluation is presently being conducted at Ann Arbor, Mich., under the direction of Dr. Thomas L. Francis. Results are expected to be announced by April 1. If circumstances are such that the statewide inoculation plan is carried out this year, the vaccine will be available shortly after April 1 in order to complete the program before the end of the current school term.

Milk Marketing Hearing Planned In Clarksburg

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. — The public hearing to receive evidence on the establishment of a milk marketing order in the Wheeling, W. Va.; Steubenville, and East Liverpool, Ohio, area will be reconvened in the Assembly Room, Harrison County Courthouse, Clarksburg, at 10 a. m., March 15, agricultural extension specialists at West Virginia University said here.

The hearing was recessed on February 17, after it had been in progress since February 8. During that time, some handlers proposed that the marketing area be enlarged to include Doddridge, Lewis, Upshur, Barbour, Taylor, Monongalia, Preston, Tucker, and Randolph counties in West Virginia in the marketing area. The hearing was recessed to give everyone interested notice of the proposed enlargement.

Evidence also will be received at the March 15 session on other provisions of the proposed order, the Extension specialists explained.

Following the reconvened hearing, recommendations based on the evidence will be drawn up by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and submitted to producers and handlers for exceptions. Exceptions will be considered by the Department before final recommendations are issued. Producers in the area will then have an opportunity to approve or disapprove the establishment of an order.

Blaze Guts School Bus

BLOOMINGTON—Fire destroyed a 42-passenger school bus yesterday morning as the driver-owner started the vehicle here to leave to pick up students in the Savage River Dam area.

Four fire companies were called to the garage of Charles O. Wolfe at 7 a. m. when the vehicle caught fire.

The bus was gutted and the wooden garage partially destroyed despite efforts of volunteer firemen from the Bloomington Company, Tri-Towns Company, Potomac Company of Westernport, and Luke Company.

While the companies were on their way, he fought the flames with a hand extinguisher.

Wolfe has the contract to haul students from the Savage River Dam to Bloomington School and to Bruce High School, Westernport.

Gate 4-H Club Will Sponsor Public Meeting Thursday

KEYSER—The Gate 4-H Club will sponsor a meeting for the public at the Fountain School House Thursday. Preliminary plans were made at a recent meeting of the club at which Mrs. Edith Bell Amtower worked with the club officers and members in launching plans for the meeting. Eldon Adams is president. It is the wish of the club to have the public attend and learn more about the 4-H work.

The Gate Club, together with the Up-Streamers Club, completed plans for a window display at the McCoole Men's Shop in Keyser, which is attracting attention this week.

Much interest was expressed by members of the club in the Ham, Bacon and Egg Show and Auction to be conducted next week in the Keyser Fire Hall under sponsorship of the Keyser Kiwanis Club. The 4-" clubs of the county are anticipating help as a result of the show in plans for a new 4-H County Camp.

The theme of the recent meeting of the club was "Working Together." It was emphasized that the members work with all groups and make new friends daily. The program consisted in great part of songs, poems, scripture reading, prayer and Connie Brotemarkle gave a talk on Home Beautification.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Amtower, after which games were played.

West Virginia Children To Get Polio Vaccine

Results Of Tests To Be Studied First

KEYSER—Tentative plans have been made for administering the Salk poliomyelitis vaccine to first and second grade school children in West Virginia.

The action was taken at a meeting, recently, of representatives of the State Department of Education, State Department of Health and the State Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Dr. N. H. Dyer, state director of health made the announcement.

Under the tentative plans, Dr. Dyer explained, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will provide vaccine for all first and second graders in public, private and parochial schools in the state and for children who participated in the 1954 Field Trials in Cabell, Kanawha, McDowell, Putnam and Wayne counties but did not receive the vaccine. Approximately 100,000 children will be eligible.

Operational management of the program of distribution and administration of the vaccine within the state will be the responsibility of the State Health Department. Local health departments, physicians, school officials and local National Foundation groups will be requested to assume program responsibility for planning and conducting inoculations at the county level.

The state health director emphasized that the plans will not be put into operation until favorable results have been announced at the completion of the evaluation of last year's field trials as well as approval and licensing of the vaccine by national authorities. The evaluation is presently being conducted at Ann Arbor, Mich., under the direction of Dr. Thomas L. Francis. Results are expected to be announced by April 1. If circumstances are such that the statewide inoculation plan is carried out this year, the vaccine will be available shortly after April 1 in order to complete the program before the end of the current school term.

Milk Marketing Hearing Planned In Clarksburg

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. — The public hearing to receive evidence on the establishment of a milk marketing order in the Wheeling, W. Va.; Steubenville, and East Liverpool, Ohio, area will be reconvened in the Assembly Room, Harrison County Courthouse, Clarksburg, at 10 a. m., March 15, agricultural extension specialists at West Virginia University said here.

The hearing was recessed on February 17, after it had been in progress since February 8. During that time, some handlers proposed that the marketing area be enlarged to include Doddridge, Lewis, Upshur, Barbour, Taylor, Monongalia, Preston, Tucker, and Randolph counties in West Virginia in the marketing area. The hearing was recessed to give everyone interested notice of the proposed enlargement.

Evidence also will be received at the March 15 session on other provisions of the proposed order, the Extension specialists explained.

Following the reconvened hearing, recommendations based on the evidence will be drawn up by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and submitted to producers and handlers for exceptions. Exceptions will be considered by the Department before final recommendations are issued. Producers in the area will then have an opportunity to approve or disapprove the establishment of an order.

Blaze Guts School Bus

BLOOMINGTON—Fire destroyed a 42-passenger school bus yesterday morning as the driver-owner started the vehicle here to leave to pick up students in the Savage River Dam area.

Four fire companies were called to the garage of Charles O. Wolfe at 7 a. m. when the vehicle caught fire.

The bus was gutted and the wooden garage partially destroyed despite efforts of volunteer firemen from the Bloomington Company, Tri-Towns Company, Potomac Company of Westernport, and Luke Company.

While the companies were on their way, he fought the flames with a hand extinguisher.

Wolfe has the contract to haul students from the Savage River Dam to Bloomington School and to Bruce High School, Westernport.

These children were hauled to class yesterday by Herbert Barnard who has the Chestnut Grove section school bus contract.

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

A Z Q Z . . . Z T S E N N V Z X I E Q T Z Q R
R N Y Y X , E M X I G Q Z X N A Z R A Y N
A Z E Q X Q Y J M X N A Z L Y Q V X — Z T Z Q R Y M .

Comics As Straight Men

"United States Steel Hour," in a burst of creative imagination the other night, cast three people normally associated with comedy—Jack Carson, Ernest Truex and Cliff Norton — in straight roles, while over on another network a little earlier, David Niven, a straight actor, was doing what amounted to pratfalls on the Bob Hope show. Next week: Jackie Gleason in "Hamlet." This is the age of the big switch.

Actually, Carson, playing the part of a shop foreman (or some such thing), on a big assembly line gave a surprisingly big and powerful performance. Industry is getting more than its share of attention these days and, if this thing keeps up much longer, I'm going to set myself up as a financial adviser. Where "Patterns" showed how the upper administrative echelons of big business chewed the insides out of a man, this one, called "Man in the Corner," set out to demonstrate that the machines down in the lower echelons could be pretty remorseless, too. Business must be a terrible thing.

Carson played the part of a patsy whose immediate superior took all the credit for the good things and showered him with all the blame for the bad things on the assembly line. In his own home, he plays patsy to his mother and sister. The story of the worm that turns is an old, old story and this one, while it contained a few new wrinkles, was marked by some shoddy philosophizing and some badly overwritten scenes. But Carson did a real honest job of work with what he had and so did Cliff Norton, who is more often remembered for low comedy bits on the old Dave Garroway show, as Carson's shifty immediate superior, and Truex as the big boss of the plant.

I'm afraid I winced a bit near the end when the patsy gets promoted to floor manager (or some such thing) and gets the traditional speech: "For you on the floor, it won't be easy. It's a lonely business." But the play, for all its faults, had a lot of impact.

Big business is certainly getting the play these days and now the question arises as to whether the writers, a sheltered lot, know what the hell they're talking about. "Patterns," a study of life on the executive level, received unanimous praise as a taut and beautifully written drama. But its value as documentary has been sharply questioned by no less an authority than The Wall Street Journal.

"If this play really reflected the mood and atmosphere of business," says a Journal editorial, "if men under the perfectly real stresses of business acted as did these, the executive reaches would not only be a madhouse but business itself would long ago have collapsed through sheer incompetence.

"And if men actually lived by the ethical standards which the playwright cheerfully asks us to accept at the end of this play, then not only all truth but our society itself would hardly be worth saving from collapse."

In short, business strikes back. I expect The Machinist Age will have something to say about "Man In The Corner," too, which is all right with me. Let's get a controversy started. Just to throw in my own two cents worth, I'd like to point out that newspapermen have never been particularly happy about the way they're portrayed by the playwrights, either.

To get back to Mr. Hope and Mr. Niven, the Hope show was a little better than usual, except that there seemed to be a running feud between the two men. Hope seemed to be driving Niven out of his wits with ad libs, Niven at one point exclaiming: "Why do you always have to top me?" If they have to have this sort of thing, I wish they'd keep it backstage. It's painful to watch.

Contract Bridge

by Josephine Culbertson

POSTMORTEMS

MANY players object strongly to "postmortems"—their cry is: "Come on, let's play bridge!"

Well, everyone to his taste, but there is this to be said for open discussion: the opinions and arguments voiced by a player clearly reveal his caliber, and prospective partners (and opponents) are thereby put on due notice!

Consider, for example, the postmortem after the following hand:

North dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

	♠ A Q 6 ♥ J 8 5 4 3 2 ♦ A 3 ♣ 10 2
♠ K 9 8 ♥ A K 10 ♦ J 10 6 ♣ 9 7 5 4	N W E S	♠ 7 5 4 2 ♥ Q 9 7 6 ♦ 9 8 7 2 ♣ Q
	♠ J 10 3 ♥ — ♦ K Q 5 4 ♣ A K J 8 6 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♣	Dbl.
Pass	2 ♦	3 ♣	Pass
Pass	Pass

South, getting good breaks, collected no fewer than 12 tricks, and then he and his partner exchanged views about the fact that they had stopped at a partial.

South said, "I bid every time it was my turn—what more could I do?"

North's answer was on the vehement side. "You could have doubled two diamonds — that's what! How was I to know that we had any play for a club game? You would have bid exactly as you did with seven clubs to the ace-queen-jack and nothing else."

It is plain enough that South showed his own lack of skill, not only by his actual bidding but by his conversation. It was vital—just as North indicated—that South do something really aggressive with a hand as good as his, and surely the two-club and three-club bids did not measure up to this need. Particularly since he was void of North's suit, South should have been very glad to double the two-diamond call, whether the opponents were or were not vulnerable; and even though North-South missed their vulnerable game, they would have collected plenty of compensation.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

A Z Q Z . . . Z T S E N N V Z X I E Q T Z Q R R N Y Y X, E M X I G Q Z X N A Z R A Y N A Z E Q X Q Y J M X N A Z L Y Q V X—Z T Z Q R Y M.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: I FIND WE ARE GROWING SERIOUS, AND THEN WE ARE IN GREAT DANGER OF BEING DULL—CONGREVE.

Comics As Straight Men

"United States Steel Hour," in a burst of creative imagination the other night, cast three people normally associated with comedy—Jack Carson, Ernest Truex and Cliff Norton — in straight roles, while over on another network a little earlier, David Niven, a straight actor, was doing what amounted to pratfalls on the Bob Hope show. Next week: Jackie Gleason in "Hamlet." This is the age of the big switch.

Actually, Carson, playing the part of a shop foreman (or some such thing), on a big assembly line gave a surprisingly big and powerful performance. Industry is getting more than its share of attention these days and, if this thing keeps up much longer, I'm going to set myself up as a financial adviser. Where "Patterns" showed how the upper administrative echelons of big business chewed the insides out of a man, this one, called "Man in the Corner," set out to demonstrate that the machines down in the lower echelons could be pretty remorseless, too. Business must be a terrible thing.

Carson played the part of a patsy whose immediate superior took all the credit for the good things and showered him with all the blame for the bad things on the assembly line. In his own home, he plays patsy to his mother and sister. The story of the worm that turns is an old, old story and this one, while it contained a few new wrinkles, was marked by some shoddy philosophizing and some badly overwritten scenes. But Carson did a real honest job of work with what he had and so did Cliff Norton, who is more often remembered for low comedy bits on the old Dave Garroway show, as Carson's shifty immediate superior, and Truex as the big boss of the plant.

I'm afraid I winced a bit near the end when the patsy gets promoted to floor manager (or some such thing) and gets the traditional speech: "For you on the floor, it won't be easy. It's a lonely business." But the play, for all its faults, had a lot of impact.

Big business is certainly getting the play these days and now the question arises as to whether the writers, a sheltered lot, know what the hell they're talking about. "Patterns," a study of life on the executive level, received unanimous praise as a taut and beautifully written drama. But its value as documentary has been sharply questioned by no less an authority than The Wall Street Journal.

"If this play really reflected the mood and atmosphere of business," says a Journal editorial, "if men under the perfectly real stresses of business acted as did these, the executive reaches would not only be a madhouse but business itself would long ago have collapsed through sheer incompetence.

"And if men actually lived by the ethical standards which the playwright cheerfully asks us to accept at the end of this play, then not only all truth but our society itself would hardly be worth saving from collapse."

In short, business strikes back. I expect The Machinist Age will have something to say about "Man In The Corner," too, which is all right with me. Let's get a controversy started. Just to throw in my own two cents worth, I'd like to point out that newspapermen have never been particularly happy about the way they're portrayed by the playwrights, either.

To get back to Mr. Hope and Mr. Niven, the Hope show was a little better than usual, except that there seemed to be a running feud between the two men. Hope seemed to be driving Niven out of his wits with ad libs, Niven at one point exclaiming: "Why do you always have to top me?" If they have to have this sort of thing, I wish they'd keep it backstage. It's painful to watch.

Sen. Butler Sends School Congratulation

US Senator John M. Butler, in a letter to Victor D. Heisey, principal of Fort Hill High School, commended and congratulated the school for winning an award from the Freedoms Foundation.

Senator Butler said, "This is an honor of which you will be proud for all time. It is encouraging to know that we have citizens who are possessed of an intense desire to promote a better understanding among peoples and thus help create the way toward a lasting peace."

Contract Bridge

by Josephine Culbertson

POSTMORTEMS

MANY players object strongly to "postmortems"—their cry is: "Come on, let's play bridge!"

Well, everyone to his taste, but there is this to be said for open discussion: the opinions and arguments voiced by a player clearly reveal his caliber, and prospective partners (and opponents) are thereby put on due notice!

Consider, for example, the postmortem after the following hand:

North dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

	♠ A Q 6 ♥ J 8 5 4 3 2 ♦ A 3 ♣ 10 2
♠ K 9 8 ♥ A K 10 ♦ J 10 6 ♣ 9 7 5 4	N W E S	♠ 7 5 4 2 ♥ Q 9 7 6 ♦ 9 8 7 2 ♣ Q
	♠ J 10 3 ♥ — ♦ K Q 5 4 ♣ A K J 8 6 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♣	Dbl.
Pass	2 ♦	3 ♣	Pass
Pass	Pass

South, getting good breaks, collected no fewer than 12 tricks, and then he and his partner exchanged views about the fact that they had stopped at a partial.

South said, "I bid every time it was my turn—what more could I do?"

North's answer was on the vehement side. "You could have doubled two diamonds — that's what! How was I to know that we had any play for a club game? You would have bid exactly as you did with seven clubs to the ace-queen-jack and nothing else."

It is plain enough that South showed his own lack of skill, not only by his actual bidding but by his conversation. It was vital—just as North indicated—that South do something really aggressive with a hand as good as his, and surely the two-club and three-club bids did not measure up to this need. Particularly since he was void of North's suit, South should have been very glad to double the two-diamond call, whether the opponents were or were not vulnerable; and even though North-South missed their vulnerable game, they would have collected plenty of compensation.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my beloved husband, Paul Edward Spaur, who died 3 years ago, March 8, 1952.

What would I give to clasp his hand,
His happy face to see,
To hear his voice and see his smile,
That meant so much to me.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near.

Loving wife,
Betty Lou Sharon Spaur

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank all of my friends, neighbors and relatives for their kindness to me following the death of my beloved husband Millard W. Twigg. I especially wish to thank those who sent cards and floral tributes and those who donated the use of their automobiles.

Mrs. Millard Twigg

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my beloved husband, Paul Edward Spaur, who died 3 years ago, March 8, 1952.

What would I give to clasp his hand,
His happy face to see.
To hear his voice and see his smile,
That meant so much to me.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near.

Loving wife.
Betty Lou Sharon Spaur

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank all of my friends, neighbors and relatives for their kindness to me following the death of my beloved husband Millard W. Twigg. I especially wish to thank those who sent cards and floral tributes and those who donated the use of their automobiles.

Mrs. Millard Twigg

Prices Tumble As Selling Wave Engulfs Stock Market

NEW YORK, March 8 (AP) — A huge wave of selling burst over the stock market today just before the close and pounded prices down relentlessly.

Losses were in the range of 1 to 6 points in just about every major division of the list.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell $3.10. When that yardstick is applied to the total listed value of all securities on the New York Stock Exchange—more than 171 billion dollars—the loss for the day is an estimated three billion dollars.

Brokers had a variety of explanations for the sudden burst of selling. Many leaned to the belief that the selloff was a natural development inasmuch as the market has been advancing steadily and attaining repeated new high marks in recent days.

The "trigger" for the sudden rush to sell, thse brokers contended, could be found in Washington. Whether the Washington events forced the selling or merely provided an excuse for selling was a moot point.

In any event, it was pointed out that Senate Banking Committee under Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) had asked the Defense Department for full information on companies heavily engaged in defense work. Stocks of these companies have been highly favored by buyers at steadily advancing prices.

Prices Tumble As Selling Wave Engulfs Stock Market

NEW YORK, March 8 (AP) — A huge wave of selling burst over the stock market today just before the close and pounded prices down relentlessly.

Losses were in the range of 1 to 6 points in just about every major division of the list.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell $3.10. When that yardstick is applied to the total listed value of all securities on the New York Stock Exchange—more than 171 billion dollars—the loss for the day is an estimated three billion dollars.

The average closed at $158.60, not too far away from the historic peak of $162.60 established last Friday.

Brokers had a variety of explanations for the sudden burst of selling. Many leaned to the belief that the selloff was a natural development inasmuch as the market has been advancing steadily and attaining repeated new high marks in recent days.

The "trigger" for the sudden rush to sell, thse brokers contended, could be found in Washington. Whether the Washington events forced the selling or merely provided an excuse for selling was a moot point.

In any event, it was pointed out that Senate Banking Committee under Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) had asked the Defense Department for full information on companies heavily engaged in defense work. Stocks of these companies have been highly favored by buyers at steadily advancing prices.

Enabling Act Asked On Town's Filter Plant

Premium Pay Sought On Emergency Work

The Allegany County Delegation yesterday introduced a bill which would permit the Board of Allegany County Commissioners to share in the cost of a filtration plant for the Town of Westernport, according to Del. Charles M. See, chairman.

Two members of the delegation also introduced a bill which would require the State Roads Commission to pay time-and-one-half pay to crews called out in emergencies, and moved a resolution calling for the establishment of facilities for the education of handicapped children.

The first plan, House Bill 471, introduced yesterday and referred back to the delegation, is an enabling act which would give the County Commissioners the right to discuss and make adjustments with the Town of Westernport in connection with the community's water supply.

Lines Were Covered

Del. See said that when the Savage River Dam was built, it covered up lines and reservoirs in the Savage River which provided the water supply for the town.

He said the community says the quality of the water has suffered since the dam was placed into operation, and is considering the construction of a filtration plant.

He stressed there is nothing mandatory in the legislation, since is would only authorize county authorities to discuss the subject with town authorities, and to pay up to $50,000 toward the filter system.

Introduced by Delegates See and Lester B. Reed was Houes Bill 470, which was referred to the House Ways and Means Committee.

Del. See said the bill directs the Maryland SRC to pay time and one-half to employes when they are called out on emergency jobs such as snow fighting and to clear roads closed by landslides.

He said this premium pay would be in addition to the regular hours worked by the men.

The Delegation also approved and sent to the House Education Committee a resolution calling upon the Allegany County Board of Education to establish facilities for training handicapped children.

Del. See said the Delegation expects to have ready for introduction today an enabling act for an $800,000 school building and improvement program backed by the Board of Education and the County Commissioners.

To Study Teacher Pay

Slated today is a formal discussion on plans for a teachers' pay increase.

Del. See said the subject was discussed informally by the delegates last night, but that no formal discussion will be held until all members are present.

He said Del. Estel C. Kelley was unable to be present since he was working on the strip mining bill.

The Delegation has received endorsements from the Board of Education for a $300 a year increase, and a resolution indicating the County Commissioners "look favorably" upon the plan.

Officials said no legislation would be needed for a $300 program, but that a bill would be needed to force the $500 program asked by the Allegany County Teachers Association.

Man Sentenced To Seven Months

A 45-year-old Cumberland man yesterday was given seven months in the Maryland House of Correction yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court on two state auto violation charges.

Herbert Broughton Higson, RFD 2, city, was arrested Monday night after his automobile crashed over a 50-foot embankment on Williams Road just at the city limits.

Trooper James F. Lewis of the Maryland State Police who investigated the mishap said the car was completely demolished but Higson was unhurt.

Magistrate J. Milton Dick fined Higson $100 and sentenced him to six-months in the House of Correction for driving under the influence of alcohol and fined him $50 for reckless driving.

Magistrate Dick said the stiff penalty was imposed because it was a second drunken offense for Higson. Dick suspended the $100 fine but imposed an additional 30 days in the House of Correction when Higson was unable to pay the $50 fine for reckless driving.

Higson is being held in Allegany County Jail awaiting transfer to the state penal institution.

Compost Control Laboratory

This is a section of the control laboratory set up here recently by the American Compost Corporation, a firm organized by local interests, which converts waste material into fertilizer and compost material. The chemist is Italian-born Nino Della Rocco of Frostburg, who came to this country to live and work a few months ago. He was formerly doing research work with the Italian Compost Company in Naples, Italy and is a graduate of the University of Naples where he also did valuable research in soil improvement.

Progress Reported By Local Compost Manufacturers

By F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT
News Staff Writer

A new local industry, started about six months ago, has been making steady progress and officials say they hope to begin marketing a sizeable amount of their product very shortly.

Known as the American Compost Corporation, in which the principals are Addison Rinker, president; S. Russ Minter, vice president; and Florence B. Minter, secretary-treasurer; the firm has successfully made over 1,000 tons of high grade compost, and has established a production program of quality control.

Minter, well known local architect, became interested in the project when Rinker told him about his research into compost farming.

The idea behind the project is to manufacture from waste such as garbage, leaves, straw, and all other forms of useless material, a compost and fertilizer that is so much like nature's own compost that it looks, feels and smells like rich earth or topsoil taken from some unexplored woodland glen.

On a 40-acre farm off Williams Road, where Addison conducted his first experiments out of curiosity and as a hobby, a manufacturing center has been set up with eight men working full time. Trucks haul all manner of material to this isolated area where it is sorted, graded, and processed. The processing includes grinding and piling in huge piles. It is activated so that bacteria quickly break it down into compost.

The process is almost odorless and the final product is pure, odorfree and rich in the natural elements needed to grow any kind of vegetables, fruit, berries and lawns.

As production got under way, Minter said, it became necessary to set up a quality control laboratory.

Several thousand dollars have been invested in laboratory equipment, and a modern installation has been made on South Centre Street here, where a full-time chemist checks and rechecks the material.

This chemist, Nino Della Rocco of Caserta, near Naples, Italy, is a skilled agriculture specialist and an expert in compost manufacture and compost farming.

Minter established him here as a member of the new firm after he learned the young man was visiting a sister in Frostburg and had been associated with the Italian Compost Company in Naples before deciding to come to this country to make his home.

The young Italian specialist is a graduate of the University of Naples and his credentials show he holds degrees in chemistry, mathematics and physics.

He enjoys working in organic chemistry, talks quite freely about the contents and elements in all manner of chemical and natural fertilizers.

Della Rocco boasts that the locally made compost is the best he has ever seen, and then produces his records to prove it. Then, like a true scientist, he produces re-

Senior Citizens To Get Report On Area Club

Some of the strong points of the Uniontown Golden Age Club will be offered to Cumberland's Senior Citizens Club, according to Robert E. Pence, city recreation director.

Pence and Mrs. Eva Hogan, program director, went to Uniontown yesterday to observe the program in action there.

He said the club organized there last November now has about 75 members, and meets in the recreation room of Asbury Methodist Church.

Cumberland's club for those over 65, the Senior Citizens Club, was organized in January and now has about 35 members.

Pence said the Uniontown program differs from Cumberland's in that most activities are passive, while the program here calls for members of the club to take an active part in the programs.

He said the work there will be offered for considerartion here, since the department wants the members to decide what they shall do.

Bedford Valley Man Has Top Butterfat Producer

Top producers of butterfat during February among cows belonging to members of the Potomac Valley Dairy Herd Improvement Association was May, a grade Jersey owned by Carl Howsare of Bedford Valley, Pa.

The cow, a product of artificial insemination, produced 78 pounds of butterfat from 1,360 pounds of milk. According to figures compiled by Wheeler W. Arnold and Harry E. Miller, supervisors of the association, there were 848 cows on test last month.

The average production of all cows was 604 pounds of milk, 24.5 pounds of butterfat with a test of 4.06 per cent. Second top producer was Goosey, a grade Guernsey, belonging to Ernest A. Light, Pinto.

Her production mark was 77 pounds of butterfat from 1600 pounds of milk. The place cow was another artifically inseminated animal named Belle, a registered Holstein, owned by Midland residents, C. O. and Elizabeth Miller.

Their cow produced 73 pounds of butterfat from a total of 1,820 pounds of milk. Howsare had another cow in the top ten producers while Light had two.

The Millers also had two other cows among the first ten producers. Also included in the report were cows belonging to John T. Mason, Cresaptown, and Samuel L. Pinto, RD 1, Ridgeley, W. Va.

Swanger To Seek Immediate Trial In Larceny Case

A local man being held in Allegany County Jail on charges of grand larceny involving $2,000 worth of stolen B&O property last night indicated he would file a petition asking immediate trial on criminal information in the case.

Elwood A. Swanger, 25, of Virginia Avenue, who was sentenced Saturday to six months in the Maryland House of Correction on state motor charges, signed the petition for immediate trial on the larceny charges yesterday, according to Deputy Sheriff Edgar M. Lewis.

The deputy also said Swanger's attorney, Edward J. Ryan, intended to appeal the House of Correction sentence imposed by Magistrate J. Milton Dick on the motor charges.

Meanwhile, Pearl A. Brooks, 451 Pine Avenue, yesterday was given a 90-day jail sentence in Trial Magistrates Court after he pleaded guilty to receiving stolen B&O property valued at $100. The sentence was meted out to the scrap metal dealer by Magistrate Morris Baron.

Four teen-age Cumberland youths also involved in the series of thefts over the past three months are facing hearings in Juvenile Court as delinquent minors. They admitted selling the stolen railroad equipment to Brooks.

Another local man, Charles E. Swandol, 25, of Offutt Street, also is charged with larceny in the case.

Swandol likewise was sentenced to six months in the Maryland House of Correction on state motor charges and is currently serving a 35-day sentence in County Jail on two other motor convictions.

Beall Agency Gets County Insurance

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday awarded to the Beall Insurance and Realty Company of Frostburg the one-year contract for complete insurance coverage of all of the county-owned motor vehicles for $5,949.80.

For an additional $500 to $600 a floater will be added to the policy covering the movement of road equipment by truck, J. Glenn Beall Jr. informed the commissioners.

The commissioners report that the price being paid to the Beall agency for one year beginning March 15 is $2,611.96 less than the $8,561.76 paid some 20 different agents in the county for the same coverage in the past 12 months. The 20 agents also are supposed to obtain a share of the premium money from the Beall agency.

Action of the county commissioners was in line with a recommendation of the Allegany-Garrett Association of Insurance Agents. The policy covers some 40 passenger cars and trucks and about 35 pieces of road equipment. Previously, 11 of these vehicles were not covered.

W.Va. Revenue Measure Ready For Passage

Soft Drinks Tax Repeal Is Dropped

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 8 (AP)—The House advanced to passage stage a $12,100,000 bundle of tax bills after the Democratic leadership put through by slim margins of one and two votes today amendments embodying key items in its package revenue program.

Dropped from the plan during a caucus of House Democrats at the outset of today's session was proposed repeal of the penny-a-bottle soft drinks tax.

The decision to abandon the pop tax repeal enabled the House leadership also to shelve its proposals for extending the two per cent consumers' sales tax to cover utility bills and repealing the present $50 deduction under the gross sales tax. The soft drinks tax now is slated to remain in effect as a source of income for development of the West Virginia University medical and dental school.

Amendments approved today by votes of 49-47 and 48-47 called for tapping the gross sales tax and the related transportation privilege tax for an additional $11,000,000 in yearly income.

The two senate-approved bills into which the amendments were written would simply have cut from 10 to 5 per cent the deduction now allowed under gross sales and transportation privilege taxes. As amended and moved up for passage vote tomorrow, the bills now would:

1. Eliminate the 10 per cent credit entirely.

2. Increase the gross sales tax rate on wholesalers from .5 to .3 per cent.

3. Extend the present 30 per cent surtax to retailers, water companies, contractors and services, all now excluded.

4. Increase the tax rate on manufacturers from .3 to .4 per cent.

The Senate engaged in its longest session of the Legislature today, a meeting of four hours during which it devoted most of the time to rehashing an interim report from its conferees on the Road Reorganization bill.

The upshot of the discussion was to send the conference representatives back, without binding instructions, to continue to seek a compromise on the highly controversial legislation.

The Senate already has its version of the annual budget bill on the floor. It was held at amendment stage until tomorrow.

The House Finance Committee sent to the floor today its version of the budget for the fiscal year beginning next July 1, which also will be at amendment stage tomorrow.

The House version represents a net over-all reduction of $6,269,000 from the original measure submitted by the Board of Public Works.

The committee brought out a bill calling for $85,100,000 in regular appropriations and additional items, such as claims and the estimated cost of the next session of the Legislature, which brings the total to approximately $85,700,000.

The House adjourned until its customary meeting time of 2 p.m. tomorrow. The Senate will meet at 3 p.m. to allow committees additional time for their work.

Old Mines May Be Used For Storage, Sen. Butler Says

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP) — Abandoned coal mines in Western Maryland may be used by the Defense Department for storage, Sen. Butler (R-Md) said today.

The department has indicated an interest in these mines, largely in the Cumberland area, for storing air force material, Butler said.

As a result, the senator said, he will provide the department with a list of such mines and their location.

If such use is made of these mines, Butler added, it would help eliminate some of the unemployment of that area.

Revival services will be held in Mt. Olive Church on the Oldtown Methodist Circuit every night next week. Rev. William Anderson, minister of the circuit, said there will be special music each night.

County Blood Collection Shy 12 Pints

Only 132 Donated At Frostburg Stop

The Red Cross Bloodmobile from Johnstown, Pa., missed its two-day quota by 12 pints yesterday when the collection at the Farrady Post Home totaled only 132 pints, according to Mrs. J. C. Cobey and Mrs. Kathleen Todd, co-chairmen of the Red Cross in Frostburg.

Of those who contributed blood in Frostburg yesterday 105 had been scheduled for a visit. Another 71 booked to give blood failed to put in an appearance. Some 35 walk-in donors helped improve the record in Frostburg. Fourteen persons gave blood for the first time yesterday.

Eleven persons joined the One-Gallon Club yesterday when they donated their eighth pint of blood during the afternoon. They were Muriel Phillips, Viola Bucklew, James W. Crowe, Helen Harvey, William C. Keiling, Paul Jackson, James Brode, Wilfred Crowe and Ernest Pfaff, all of Frostburg, and Charles Gordon and Charles Aldridge, both of Mt. Savage.

Next visit of the bloodmobile to Allegany County will be Monday and Tuesday, April 4 and 5.

Lubrication Engineer To Address Lions Club

L. O. Warfield, a lubrication engineer, will give a 10-minute talk on "Modern Lubricants For Automobiles" at the meeting of the Cumberland Lions Club at 12:15 p. m. today at Central YMCA. YMCA.

City Officials To Protest Freeze In Sherbow Revenues

Mayor Roy W. Eves will head a City of Cumberland delegation which will go to Annapolis today to protest a plan to freeze the amount of money the city will get from "Sherbow Act" funds.

The Mayor, Water Commissioner William J. Edwards, Thomas B. Finan, city attorney, and George E. Davis, city collector, will attend a hearing planned today at 4 p. m. by the Senate Finance Committee.

Up for consideration is Senate Bill 323, sponsored by Senator Turnbull (D-Balto. County) which would limit the amount of money the state would turn over to political subdivisions from certain so-called "Sherbow funds" to the average amount received in a five-year period ending in 1955.

These income sources which have been shared by the state for a number of years, represent over 18 per cent of Cumberland's income and about 16 per cent of the county's budget.

Mayor Eves said the Maryland League is opposing the bill, citing it would result in serious revenue losses which would have to be made up by local taxes, and says it is "distinctly unwise to attempt to solve the state fiscal problem by transferring the problem to the local communities."

The Sherbow money is divided among counties and cities from the state's revenues from admission and amusement taxes, alcoholic beverage taxes, corporation franchise taxes, income taxes, recordation fees, license fees and horse racing revenues.

Senator Turnbull's bill does not limit the amount subdivisions could receive from their share of state gas and motor vehicle revenues.

Clogged Sewer Is Being Repaired

Two breaks in a 12-inch water line within 15 hours, and a clogged 24-inch sewer line, spelled grief yesterday for the City of Cumberland.

Early yesterday morning, Water Department crews replaced a broken portion of a 12-inch water main at the intersection of North Mechanic and Valley streets.

The line was put back into service after 12 hours of continuous work by the crews who were called out Monday at 9 p. m. after the snapped line interrupted water service from Smith to Pear streets.

A second break in the line occurred yesterday at noon north of the first break.

William J. Edwards, commissioner of water and electric light, said crews worked on the second break until the day shift quit, and that work would resume with the midnight shift. He added that service was not interrupted by the second break.

He said both breaks were attributed to the settling of earth which supports the line.

Officials said last night that it is believed the 24-inch line is clogged, and that it will be necessary to bypass the trouble spot with a temporary line in order to get to the source of the trouble.

They said it is possible the line in clogged with stone.

Street Commissioner William H. Buchholtz reported yesterday that a fire department pumper was used for a time yesterday to carry off excess water which collected from the stopped-up line.

Mercury Rises In Area After Sudden Drop

After Monday's sudden dip into the sub-freezing regions the Tri-State's temperatures began to rise yesterday and the outlook for today is for considerable cloudiness and warmer.

Garrett County, the cold spot of the state, had another inch of snow yesterday morning but by mid-afternoon the mercury was on the rise and the roads were clear and dry.

Some snow flurries hampered State Roads Commission crews during the day but last night all crews had returned and highways were clear, G. Bates Chaires, district SRC engineer said.

State Police reported some flurries in Frostburg and LaVale but toward evening the weather began to clear. There was no new snow east of Frostburg yesterday, they added.

Oakland in Garrett County experienced the lowest temperatures for the day with 10 above reported there. Frostburg had a reading of 12 and Big Savage 16 above, but throughout the remainder of the Tri-State area the thermometers went up.

Temperatures along the Western Maryland Railway line ranged from 32 to 36 degrees and no new snow was reported. On the Baltimore and Ohio, trainmen recorded light snow at Blazer and Altamont with temperatures of 34 degrees. At Hardman it was cloudy and 46, Terra Alta, 32 and cloudy, and at Orleans Road, 35 and cloudy.

Cumberland's official temperature rose from Mondays' high of 29 degrees to 42 yesterday.

Meetings Set Today On Bus Contract

Officials of Local 1110, Bus Drivers Union (AFL) and the Cumberland Transit Company will meet today at 10 a. m. at the Fort Cumberland Hotel for a meeting called by Mrs. Margaret W. Kimble, deputy commissioner of labor and industry, in an attempt to reach an agreement on a new contract.

John M. Elliott, international vice president of the union, said the local has scheduled a meeting today at 7:30 p. m. in the AFL Labor Temple to hear a report on progress made in the talks.

Earlier this week, Lawrence L. Grim, business agent, said the local's negotiating committee set tonight at midnight as the strike date unless an agreement is reached.

The Weather

Following Monday's sudden dip in temperatures Cumberland experienced a somewhat fairer and much warmer day yesterday. There was little wind to stir the fleecy clouds in the sky and the mercury rose to a high of 42 degrees in the city. The overnight low was recorded at 16 degrees and at 7:30 last night the thermometer registered 40. Humidity at 6 p. m. was a somewhat low 55 per cent. Forecast for today is fair and warmer.

Enabling Act Asked On Town's Filter Plant

Premium Pay Sought On Emergency Work

The Allegany County Delegation yesterday introduced a bill which would permit the Board of Allegany County Commissioners to share in the cost of a filtration plant for the Town of Westernport, according to Del. Charles M. See, chairman.

Two members of the delegation also introduced a bill which would require the State Roads Commission to pay time-and-one-half pay to crews called out in emergencies, and moved a resolution calling for the establishment of facilities for the education of handicapped children.

The first plan, House Bill 471, introduced yesterday and referred back to the delegation, is an enabling act which would give the County Commissioners the right to discuss and make adjustments with the Town of Westernport in connection with the community's water supply.

Lines Were Covered

Del. See said that when the Savage River Dam was built, it covered up lines and reservoirs in the Savage River which provided the water supply for the town.

He said the community says the quality of the water has suffered since the dam was placed into operation, and is considering the construction of a filtration plant.

He stressed there is nothing mandatory in the legislation, since is would only authorize county authorities to discuss the subject with town authorities, and to pay up to $50,000 toward the filter system.

Introduced by Delegates See and Lester B. Reed was Houes Bill 470, which was referred to the House Ways and Means Committee.

Del. See said the bill directs the Maryland SRC to pay time and one-half to employes when they are called out on emergency jobs such as snow fighting and to clear roads closed by landslides.

He said this premium pay would be in addition to the regular hours worked by the men.

The Delegation also approved and sent to the House Education Committee a resolution calling upon the Allegany County Board of Education to establish facilities for training handicapped children.

Del. See said the Delegation expects to have ready for introduction today an enabling act for an $800,000 school building and improvement program backed by the Board of Education and the County Commissioners.

To Study Teacher Pay

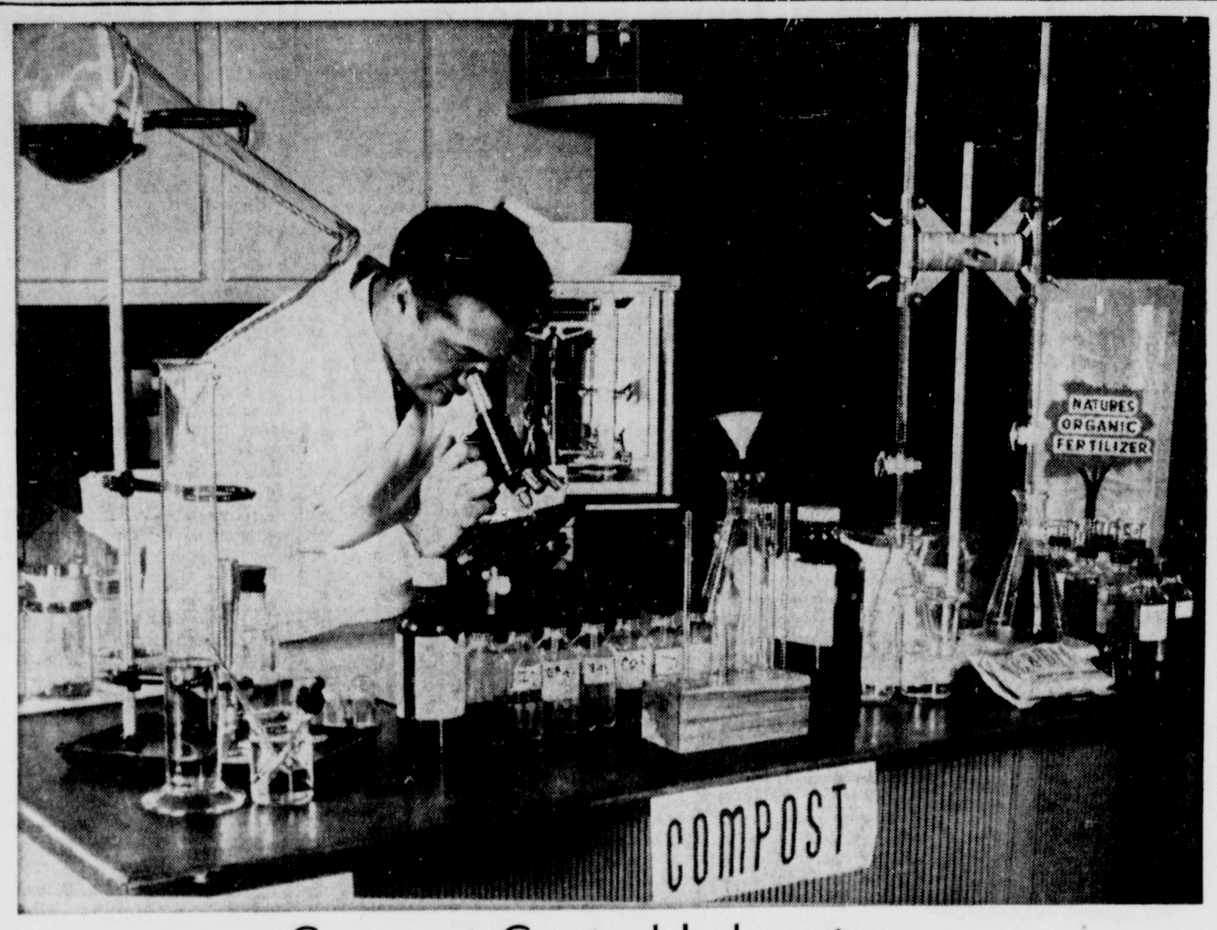
Slated today is a formal discussion on plans for a teachers' pay increase.

Del. See said the subject was discussed informally by the delegates last night, but that no formal discussion will be held until all members are present.

He said Del. Estel C. Kelley was unable to be present since he was working on the strip mining bill.

The Delegation has received endorsements from the Board of Education for a $300 a year increase, and a resolution indicating the County Commissioners "look favorably" upon the plan.

Officials said no legislation would be needed for a $300 program, but that a bill would be needed to force the $500 program asked by the Allegany County Teachers Association.



Compost Control Laboratory

This is a section of the control laboratory set up here recently by the American Compost Corporation, a firm organized by local interests, which converts waste material into fertilizer and compost material. The chemist is Italian-born Nino Della Rocco of Frostburg, who came to this country to live and work a few months ago. He was formerly doing research work with the Italian Compost Company in Naples, Italy and is a graduate of the University of Naples where he also did valuable research in soil improvement.

Progress Reported By Local Compost Manufacturers

By F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT
News Staff Writer

A new local industry, started about six months ago, has been making steady progress and officials say they hope to begin marketing a sizeable amount of their product very shortly.

Known as the American Compost Corporation, in which the principals are Addison Rinker, president; S. Russ Minter, vice president; and Florence B. Minter, secretary-treasurer; the firm has successfully made over 1,000 tons of high grade compost, and has established a production program of quality control.

Minter, well known local architect, became interested in the project when Rinker told him about his research into compost farming.

The idea behind the project is to manufacture from waste such as garbage, leaves, straw, and all other forms of useless material, a compost and fertilizer that is so much like nature's own compost that it looks, feels and smells like rich earth or topsoil taken from some unexplored woodland glen.

On a 40-acre farm off Williams Road, where Addison conducted his first experiments out of curiosity and as a hobby, a manufacturing center has been set up with eight men working full time. Trucks haul all manner of material to this isolated area where it is sorted, graded, and processed. The processing includes grinding and piling in huge piles. It is activated so that bacteria quickly break it down into compost.

The process is almost odorless and the final product is pure, odorfree and rich in the natural elements needed to grow any kind of vegetables, fruit, berries and lawns.

As production got under way, Minter said, it became necessary to set up a quality control laboratory.

Several thousand dollars have been invested in laboratory equipment, and a modern installation has been made on South Centre Street here, where a full-time chemist checks and rechecks the material.

This chemist, Nino Della Rocco of Caserta, near Naples, Italy, is a skilled agriculture specialist and an expert in compost manufacture and compost farming.

Minter established him here as a member of the new firm after he learned the young man was visiting a sister in Frostburg and had been associated with the Italian Compost Company in Naples before deciding to come to this country to make his home.

The young Italian specialist is a graduate of the University of Naples and his credentials show he holds degrees in chemistry, mathematics and physics.

He enjoys working in organic chemistry, talks quite freely about the contents and elements in all manner of chemical and natural fertilizers.

Della Rocco boasts that the locally made compost is the best he has ever seen, and then produces his records to prove it. Then, like a true scientist, he produces re-

Senior Citizens To Get Report On Area Club

Some of the strong points of the Uniontown Golden Age Club will be offered to Cumberland's Senior Citizens Club, according to Robert E. Pence, city recreation director.

Pence and Mrs. Eva Hogan, program director, went to Uniontown yesterday to observe the program in action there.

He said the club organized there last November now has about 75 members, and neets in the recreation room of Asbury Methodist Church.

Cumberland's club for those over 65, the Senior Citizens Club, was organized in January and now has about 35 members.

Pence said the Uniontown program differs from Cumberland's in that most activities are passive, while the program here calls for members of the club to take an active part in the programs.

He said the work there will be offered for considerartion here, since the department wants the members to decide what they shall do.

Man Sentenced To Seven Months

A 45-year-old Cumberland man yesterday was given seven months in the Maryland House of Correction yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court on two state auto violation charges.

Herbert Broughton Higson, RFD 2, city, was arrested Monday night after his automobile crashed over a 50-foot embankment on Williams Road just at the city limits.

Trooper James F. Lewis of the Maryland State Police who investigated the mishap said the car was completely demolished but Higson was unhurt.

Magistrate J. Milton Dick fined Higson $100 and sentenced him to six-months in the House of Correction for driving under the influence of alcohol and fined him $50 for reckless driving.

Magistrate Dick said the stiff penalty was imposed because it was a second drunken offense for Higson. Dick suspended the $100 fine but imposed an additional 30 days in the House of Correction when Higson was unable to pay the $50 fine for reckless driving.

Higson is being held in Allegany County Jail awaiting transfer to the state penal institution.

Swanger To Seek Immediate Trial In Larceny Case

A local man being held in Allegany County Jail on charges of grand larceny involving $2,000 worth of stolen B&O property last night indicated he would file a petition asking immediate trial on criminal information in the case.

Elwood A. Swanger, 25, of Virginia Avenue, who was sentenced Saturday to six months in the Maryland House of Correction on state motor charges, signed the petition for immediate trial on the larceny charges yesterday, according to Deputy Sheriff Edgar M. Lewis.

The deputy also said Swanger's attorney, Edward J. Ryan, intended to appeal the House of Correction sentence imposed by Magistrate J. Milton Dick on the motor charges.

Meanwhile, Pearl A. Brooks, 451 Pine Avenue, yesterday was given a 90-day jail sentence in Trial Magistrates Court after he pleaded guilty to receiving stolen B&O property valued at $100. The sentence was meted out to the scrap metal dealer by Magistrate Morris Baron.

Four teen-age Cumberland youths also involved in the series of thefts over the past three months are facing hearings in Juvenile Court as delinquent minors. They admitted selling the stolen railroad equipment to Brooks.

Another local man, Charles E. Swandol, 25, of Offutt Street, also is charged with larceny in the case.

Swandol likewise was sentenced to six months in the Maryland House of Correction on state motor charges and is currently serving a 35-day sentence in County Jail on two other motor convictions.

Beall Agency Gets County Insurance

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday awarded to the Beall Insurance and Realty Company of Frostburg the one-year contract for complete insurance coverage of all of the county-owned motor vehicles for $5,949.80.

For an additional $500 to $600 a floater will be added to the policy covering the movement of road equipment by truck, J. Glenn Beall Jr. informed the commissioners.

The commissioners report that the price being paid to the Beall agency for one year beginning March 15 is $2,611.96 less than the $8,561.76 paid some 20 different agents in the county for the same coverage in the past 12 months. The 20 agents also are supposed to obtain a share of the premium money from the Beall agency.

Action of the county commissioners was in line with a recommendation of the Allegany-Garrett Association of Insurance Agents. The policy covers some 40 passenger cars and trucks and about 35 pieces of road equipment. Previously, 11 of these vehicles were not covered.

W.Va. Revenue Measure Ready For Passage

Soft Drinks Tax Repeal Is Dropped

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 8 (AP)—The House advanced to passage stage a $12,100,000 bundle of tax bills after the Democratic leadership put through by slim margins of one and two votes today amendments embodying key items in its package revenue program.

Dropped from the plan during a caucus of House Democrats at the outset of today's session was proposed repeal of the penny-a-bottle soft drinks tax.

The decision to abandon the pop tax repeal enabled the House leadership also to shelve its proposals for extending the two per cent consumers' sales tax to cover utility bills and repealing the present $50 deduction under the gross sales tax. The soft drinks tax now is slated to remain in effect as a source of income for development of the West Virginia University medical and dental school.

Amendments approved today by votes of 49-47 and 48-47 called for tapping the gross sales tax and the related transportation privilege tax for an additional $11,000,000 in yearly income.

The two senate-approved bills into which the amendments were written would simply have cut from 10 to 5 per cent the deduction now allowed under gross sales and transportation privilege taxes. As amended and moved up for passage vote tomorrow, the bills now would:

1. Eliminate the 10 per cent credit entirely.

2. Increase the gross sales tax rate on wholesalers from .5 to .3 per cent.

3. Extend the present 30 per cent surtax to retailers, water companies, contractors and services, all now excluded.

4. Increase the tax rate on manufacturers from .3 to .4 per cent.

The Senate engaged in its longest session of the Legislature today, a meeting of four hours during which it devoted most of the time to rehashing an interim report from its conferees on the Road Reorganization bill.

The upshot of the discussion was to send the conference representatives back, without binding instructions, to continue to seek a compromise on the highly controversial legislation.

The Senate already has its version of the annual budget bill on the floor. It was held at amendment stage until tomorrow.

The House Finance Committee sent to the floor today its version of the budget for the fiscal year beginning next July 1, which also will be at amendment stage tomorrow.

The House version represents a net over-all reduction of $6,269,000 from the original measure submitted by the Board of Public Works.

The committee brought out a bill calling for $85,100,000 in regular appropriations and additional items, such as claims and the estimated cost of the next session of the Legislature, which brings the total to approximately $85,700,000.

The House adjourned until its customary meeting time of 2 p.m. tomorrow. The Senate will meet at 3 p.m. to allow committees additional time for their work.

Old Mines May Be Used For Storage, Sen. Butler Says

WASHINGTON, March 8 (AP)—Abandoned coal mines in Western Maryland may be used by the Defense Department for storage, Sen. Butler (R-Md) said today.

The department has indicated an interest in these mines, largely in the Cumberland area, for storing air force material, Butler said.

As a result, the senator said, he will provide the department with a list of such mines and their location.

If such use is made of these mines, Butler added, it would help eliminate some of the unemployment of that area.

County Blood Collection Shy 12 Pints

Only 132 Donated At Frostburg Stop

The Red Cross Bloodmobile from Johnstown, Pa., missed its two-day quota by 12 pints yesterday when the collection at the Farrady Post Home totaled only 132 pints, according to Mrs. J. C. Cobey and Mrs. Kathleen Todd, co-chairmen of the Red Cross in Frostburg.

During Monday's stop at the Eagles Home here, 156 pints were donated but the excess above the 150-pint daily quota was not sufficient to overcome yesterday's 18 pint deficit.

Of those who contributed blood in Frostburg yesterday 105 had been scheduled for a visit. Another 71 booked to give blood failed to put in an appearance. Some 35 walk-in donors helped improve the record in Frostburg. Fourteen persons gave blood for the first time yesterday.

Eleven persons joined the One-Gallon Club yesterday when they donated their eighth pint of blood during the afternoon. They were Muriel Phillips, Viola Bucklew, James W. Crowe, Helen Harvey, William C. Keiling, Paul Jackson, James Brode, Wilfred Crowe and Ernest Pfaff, all of Frostburg, and Charles Gordon and Charles Aldridge, both of Mt. Savage.

Next visit of the bloodmobile to Allegany County will be Monday and Tuesday, April 4 and 5.

City Officials To Protest Freeze In Sherbow Revenues

Mayor Roy W. Eves will head a City of Cumberland delegation which will go to Annapolis today to protest a plan to freeze the amount of money the city will get from "Sherbow Act" funds.

The Mayor, Water Commissioner William J. Edwards, Thomas B. Finan, city attorney, and George E. Davis, city collector, will attend a hearing planned today at 4 p. m. by the Senate Finance Committee.

Up for consideration is Senate Bill 323, sponsored by Senator Turnbull (D-Balto. County) which would limit the amount of money the state would turn over to political subdivisions from certain so-called "Sherbow funds" to the average amount received in a five-year period ending in 1955.

These income sources which have been shared by the state for a number of years, represent over 18 per cent of Cumberland's income and about 16 per cent of the county's budget.

Mayor Eves said the Maryland League is opposing the bill, citing it would result in serious revenue losses which would have to be made up by local taxes, and says it is "distinctly unwise to attempt to solve the state fiscal problem by transferring the problem to the local communities."

The Sherbow money is divided among counties and cities from the state's revenues from admission and amusement taxes, alcoholic beverage taxes, corporation franchise taxes, income taxes, recordation fees, license fees and horse racing revenues.

Senator Turnbull's bill does not limit the amount subdivisions could receive from their share of state gas and motor vehicle revenues.

Clogged Sewer Is Being Repaired

Two breaks in a 12-inch water line within 15 hours, and a clogged 24-inch sewer line, spelled grief yesterday for the City of Cumberland.

Early yesterday morning, Water Department crews replaced a broken portion of a 12-inch water main at the intersection of North Mechanic and Valley streets.

The line was put back into service after 12 hours of continuous work by the crews who were called out Monday at 9 p. m. after the snapped line interrupted water service from Smith to Pear streets.

A second break in the line occurred yesterday at noon north of the first break.

William J. Edwards, commissioner of water and electric light, said crews worked on the second break until the day shift quit, and that work would resume with the midnight shift. He added that service was not interrupted by the second break.

He said both breaks were attributed to the settling of earth which supports the line.

Officials said last night that it is believed the 24-inch line is clogged, and that it will be necessary to bypass the trouble spot with a temporary line in order to get to the source of the trouble.

They said it is possible the line in clogged with stone.

Street Commissioner William H. Buchholtz reported yesterday that a fire department pumper was used for a time yesterday to carry off excess water which collected from the stopped-up line.

Mercury Rises In Area After Sudden Drop

After Monday's sudden dip into the sub-freezing regions the Tri-State's temperatures began to rise yesterday and the outlook for today is for considerable cloudiness and warmer.

Garrett County, the cold spot of the state, had another inch of snow yesterday morning but by mid-afternoon the mercury was on the rise and the roads were clear and dry.

Some snow flurries hampered State Roads Commission crews during the day but last night all crews had returned and highways were clear, G. Bates Chaires, district SRC engineer said.

State Police reported some flurries in Frostburg and LaVale but toward evening the weather began to clear. There was no new snow east of Frostburg yesterday, they added.

Oakland in Garrett County experienced the lowest temperatures for the day with 10 above reported there. Frostburg had a reading of 12 and Big Savage 16 above, but throughout the remainder of the Tri-State area the thermometers went up.

Temperatures along the Western Maryland Railway line ranged from 32 to 36 degrees and no new snow was reported. On the Baltimore and Ohio, trainmen recorded light snow at Blazer and Altamont with temperatures of 34 degrees. At Hardman it was cloudy and 46, Terra Alta, 32 and cloudy, and at Orleans Road, 35 and cloudy.

Cumberland's official temperature rose from Mondays' high of 29 degrees to 42 yesterday.

John M. Elliott, international vice president of the union, said the local has scheduled a meeting today at 7:30 p. m. in the AFL Labor Temple to hear a report on progress made in the talks.

Earlier this week, Lawrence L. Grim, business agent, said the local's negotiating committee set tonight at midnight as the strike date unless an agreement is reached.

The Weather

Following Monday's sudden dip in temperatures Cumberland experienced a somewhat fairer and much warmer day yesterday. There was little wind to stir the fleecy clouds in the sky and the mercury rose to a high of 42 degrees in the city. The overnight low was recorded at 16 degrees and at 7:30 last night the thermometer registered 40. Humidity at 6 p. m. was a somewhat low 55 per cent. Forecast for today is fair and warmer.
